RUM-RUNNER SHOT IN TORONTO, RAID

POLICE FOUR HAIL OF BULLETS INTO VESSEL

Discoons Seize Large Quantity of Liquor and Motor Trucks—First Real Raid by Authorities

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—John Gogo, aged twenty-four, Port Dalhousie, Ont., was shot and killed today when the police attempted to seize the rum-running boat which was anchored at the foot of Levis Street, in the east end of this city. James Gogo, an uncle, was shot through the mouth, but his condition is not serious. Nine other men aboard the boat were locked up.

The police had been advised last night that the boat, heavily loaded with liquor, was on its way to Toronto from Belleville, and early this morning were notified that the boat would dock at the foot of Levis Street, where the liquor was to be loaded on waiting trucks.

As the yacht approached the dock the police stepped out and Captain Gogo promptly signalled the engine to back up. The police ordered the captain to come ahead, but he refused. It was then that the police opened fire. They fired several bullets into the air, thinking it would scare the captain into coming ashore, but he continued to hold out toward the centre of the bay. When the police saw that he had no intention of obeying the order they fired at close range.

First Shot Fatal

The first shot took effect, and young Gogo, who was stepping into the cabin, dropped dead. He was shot through the abdomen. His uncle also was a target for a bullet which embedded in his right jaw. A few minutes later the captain docked the yacht and the crew placed under arrest. They put up a stubborn fight with the police before submitting to arrest.

The police seized two motor trucks and two costly autos and the gasoline engine. They counted 2,544 bottles of whiskey in the cargo they seized at the boat's stern. A few of the bottles were in the cabin. A $2 a bottle, the shipment is worth $20,352.

When searched at the station, the men were carrying $1,500 in cash. None carry guns and in the cabin of the boat only a knife was found. The whiskey was in sacks, neatly sewn up. A bill of lading found on one of the men showed the stuff was listed as "From Windsor to Lockport, N.Y.," but the police claim the whiskey was from Belleville.

Today's tragic raid was the first time the police have come to close grips with the rum-runners, who have been stealing into Toronto under cover of night and discharging their cargoes into the eager hands of bootleggers.

GERMANS FLEEING TO SWITZERLAND

Enraged in Their Own Country Drives Many to Seek Asylum in Alpine Republic

GENEVA, Oct. 6.—German families, rich and poor, are fleeing from the unrest in their country and for the past few weeks have been crossing the Swiss frontier in large numbers.

They are admitted as are other tourists under the Swiss law, but the workmen, most of whom come from Bavaria and along the Rhine, receive permission to remain only one or two months, so that they will not compete with the Swiss workers, as there are already 100,000 unemployed in this country.

Many of the immigrants come into Switzerland penniless.

Week's Features

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—Mercantile failures in Canada and Newfoundland during the past week, reported to R. G. Dun & Co., totaled eighty-five, an increase of thirty-three over last week. Ontario reported two; Manitoba, thirteen; Saskatchewan, ten; British Columbia, five; and Alberta, two.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE CAPTURES GOTHAM

GREAT METROPOLIS GIVES HIM TREMENDOUS OVATION

Famous Welshman Thoroughly Enjoys His Visit to New York—Crowds Cheer Him

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The five-car special train bearing the party of David Lloyd George, former Premier of Great Britain, to Montreal on his first lap of his tour of Canada and the United States, pulled out of the Grand Central at 8:44 a.m. After being guided by police and detectives through a cheering throng of admirers, the dapper little Welshman, with his wife and daughter, Megan, were established in the private car "Ottawa," in which, as guests of Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C. N. E., they will live throughout their tour.

Stepping briskly down the marble staircase leading into the concourse of the vast station, Lloyd George perked his gray-headed head inquiringly this way and that. He appeared impressed with the twinkling viata of the concourse dome, high over his head, with its man-placed moon and stars.

As he passed into the subterranean trainshed a score of flashlights flared up to turn the dim chambers into brightness.

Greeted by Sir Henry

Sir Henry Thornton, with hand extended, advanced to greet him and to extend him the courtesies of the "Ottawa."

"I want you to know," he said, "that this will be your home to command as you have commanded many other houses."

Lloyd George thanked him, as did his wife and the smiling, radiant Megan.

"How soon will we reach the Hudson?" was the visitor's first question after he had been encoined in his car at the rear of the train. "And West Point—the army school—will we be able to see it from the train?" West Point interested him.

The cheers of those on the station platform mingled with the faint echoes of similar demonstrations far off in the distance as the train pulled out. Lloyd George, his wife and daughter waved New York adieu from the rear platform.

To no man, unless perhaps to General Pershing when he returned from France, had a more cordial welcome, a more strenuous display of friendship, been extended than that accorded Great Britain's former Prime Minister.

Centre of Interest

Although he had been first up this morning, one of the most strenuous days of a strenuous career, Lloyd George was bright-eyed, smiling, and the most cheerful of his party. He talked little, but smiled a lot, waving his black waistcoat and doffing his square-crowned derby in acknowledgment of the plaudits which accompanied his entourage of limousines from the Waldorf-Astoria to the station.

He rode with his wife and daughter in the car of Grover Whalen, commissioner of plant and structures, which was at the rear of the train. He was the centre of a mild demonstration at the hotel, the chairs and corridors adjoining "Peacock Alley" being filled with guests eager for a sight of him.

Tendered Ovation

His stay in New York was brief, but into less than twenty-four hours that he was in New York were crowded tributes after tributes and ovation after ovation. Only a few incidents were observed to mar the otherwise unanimous welcome. Irish republican sympathizers gathered at various places, but the police were so efficient in dispelling the disturbers that Mr. Lloyd George in some instances even failed to notice them.

After yesterday's strenuous programme the little white-haired statesman last night sank back in a chair in his suite at the Waldorf-Astoria and told his friends he had enjoyed it all.

Mr. Lloyd George goes to Canada, he said, to thank the Dominion for its part in the world war, after which he will return to this country to express his gratification for the same cause. He comes "to see and not to say, as he expressed it." His visit is unofficial. Besides the "Ottawa," which has been placed at the disposal of the government, the special train included the private car of George H. Ingalls, vice-president of the New York Central.

Indians Hurt in Fight

Tribute to Canada

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Canada occupied first place in the mind of Right Hon. David Lloyd George, Britain's war-time Premier. At a dinner last night he emphasized that his purpose in leaving Great Britain was to thank Canada for her part in the war. After remarking that George Washington had taught the British to be democratic, Mr. Lloyd George said:

"Yesterday morning I had the privilege of being received at your city hall and I referred to the way in which Canada had come to our aid. Canada is an independent of any interference in her internal affairs as the United States is, as far as Downing Street is concerned. She sent 400,000 troops to fight for one flag. Not one of those would come in response to a decree from Downing Street."

Free-Will Offering

"We could not have enrolled a single company of Canadians if we had issued an order that they should be called to support the British Empire. They came of their own free will on the appeal of their own ministers, supported by their own people. And the lesson you taught us in the eighteenth century has been the salvation of the British Empire as we know it today.

"In London, at this hour, we have representatives of the great dominions of the British crown, all sitting under conditions of perfect equality with representatives of Great Britain. Among them is General Smuts, who for twenty or thirty years fought against the British forces for the independence of his native land, and afterward signed a treaty to become an independent partner in the Empire. We have Mr. Cosgrave, head of the Irish Free State, sitting there as the result of a treaty, representing a free people, with the most complete independence so far as their internal affairs are concerned."

Many Invitations

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The flood of invitations from Western cities which Mr. Lloyd George received yesterday and last night induced him to take under advisement this morning's proposal that he extend his Canadian tour westward from Winnipeg to Vancouver and Pacific Coast states, it was announced by Mr. Peter B. Kyne, American author, who is managing the visitor's programme.

Mr. Kyne said, however, he doubted very much whether the present itinerary could be altered. Mr. Lloyd George was to have gone from Winnipeg down to Minnesota to circle south and eastward back to New York.

Invitations from California cities, particularly San Francisco and Los Angeles, have been particularly alluring to the former Prime Minister, said Mr. Kyne, for if he accepted them Mr. Lloyd George would also have the opportunity to gratify an expressed desire to visit Vancouver—Canada's largest Pacific Coast city.

Consideration is being given to the possibility of the trip being extended to Vancouver, but although no final decision has been reached, the indications are said to be against it. Mr. Lloyd George himself, it is said, would like to go to the Coast, and members of his party are urging him to do so, but it is felt he probably cannot remain away from England long enough to accomplish it. Above all, it is said to be his desire to adhere rigidly to the engagements already made in Canada and the United States. It is believed that if a trip to the Coast is made, it may not be until after the completion of his speaking tour as announced to date.

Cotton Spinners Seek To Lessen Competition

MANCHESTER, Eng., Oct. 6.—At a conference yesterday at which were represented millions in capital and a half a million cotton operatives, it was agreed after a long discussion, that the master spinners should meet representatives of the operatives at a series of meetings devoted to finding practical measures for betterment of the trade.

Yesterday's meeting was the outcome of recent agitation for the creation of some sort of control organization to prevent the existing competition of the operatives at a series of meetings devoted to finding practical measures for betterment of the trade.

Can Europe Hold Together?

(Copyright, 1922, in U.S. and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)
By JOHN F. SINCLAIR

Chapter XII—The Challenge to Modern Civilization

We have now studied and analyzed the economic and financial conditions in thirteen of the great European nations. Perhaps we should just call the roll of the rest.

Spain, Bulgaria and Greece are under the control of military dictators. The economic and financial conditions in each case is very bad. At this time each of these nations is under martial law.

Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Portugal are all hard up, and are far from being able to balance their imports with their exports. Neither have they been able since the war to pay their way to make their governments expenses come within receipts. Why? Because, like England and Belgium and Italy, those countries live by international trade. Without such a trade they must go down to a lower standard of living, to a lower level of life. That is just what has happened in these countries. Factories closing, unemployment growing and becoming a real burden within each of these countries. Switzerland lived before by selling luxuries and mountain scenery. Neither is in demand now in Europe. The hotels are empty, and the watch-making plants are idle. Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Portugal are all seafaring peoples. But hundreds of their vessels are rotting and rusting in the harbors of Northern and Eastern Europe without a thing to do.

Before the Great War the twenty-five different countries of Europe had submerged their national sovereignties to a point where international trade was fairly free between them. It was sufficiently free to enable each nation in Europe to maintain her rate of exchange at the gold point. Not so now.

Zone of Work Split by War

Norman Angell, the distinguished English economist, put it this way: "The factory which before the war had easy access to the world's materials, markets, because they were mainly within the same state, now finds the coal in one, raw materials in another, markets in a third foreign state; and sometimes, an unsurmountable obstacle to the necessary combination, stand customs barriers, varying currencies, suspicious rivalries, mutual repugnances, obligations, withholding of raw material for political reasons, anti-dumping laws, the resentment of each little state of the trade of the other, and the attempt to stop that trade."

This is hard for us to understand. We are accustomed to operate and trade in the largest free trade area in the world. It is not unusual to go from New York to San Francisco on an hour's notice, and it can be done. But to travel that same distance in Europe would take possibly a month to get the necessary passports, papers, permits. And to ship goods across the number of frontiers involved—well, no man ever tries to do it. Two or three frontiers are about all that can be successfully crossed. If you can, America divided into thirty-five different states, each with its customs barrier, consular vice, shifting currencies, and armies on the border ready to fight for national honor. The people of Europe are trying to live and grow under just such conditions.

The war again intensified nationalism and broke the machinery for international trade besides. After the war the number of independent nations was increased from twenty-five to thirty-five. Each nation has since the war has been trying desperately to become an independent economic unit—to live unto itself alone. Instead of Europe moving closer and closer to the idea of one economic unit—a perfectly natural and inevitable process—we now have the spectacle of Europe trying to develop a "fiercer nationalism" in order to hammer out thirty-five complete economic units. So far the effort has failed. Europe has been paralyzed by nationalism. At a time when the nations have been increasing their very acts caused the national income to decrease; when the strictest economy was needed to work out of the huge war expenses, the policy of this "fiercer nationalism" made for wild and almost unlicensed extravagance.

Only Two Balance Books

A nation to survive now must be able to take in revenue from taxes at least as much as it spends. Only two nations in Europe meet this test today, England and Finland. And I have my doubts about one of them. A nation to survive must also make the acute balance. The exports must be made to equal the imports. The rate of exchange of a nation in the world market regulates the direction of the export and the import of total imports and exports of a country are out of balance. If we put in to one pan of the scale the exports of the country, in the other the imports of the country, and they are out of balance, what can be done to make them balance? Cut down the imports or add to the exports. If this cannot be done, add to the exports a sufficient shipment of gold.

When Gold was Shipped out of a country before the war, interest rates

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, nervousness, stomach ache and inability to finish food, are really caused out of ten simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid places in the stomach, causing the formation of acid and acid indigestion.

Goatskin is the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn. It is the acid which causes the indigestion and the discomfort of the stomach. The treatment of the stomach is to stop or prevent this secretion of the food contents of the stomach. It is to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless. This is the only way to cure the acidity in the stomach, and is a perfectly harmless and independent remedy.

tended to rise and prices to fall. Thus the balance was brought back to normal. But the gold point has been broken. The European countries have no gold if export. Then what can take the place of gold? If certain imports then are imperative, and exports cannot be made sufficient, the country can put into the scale, to help balance her imports, the weight of her credit. If the nation can make an external loan, the proceeds act to bring back the balance. Just as an equal amount of exports would. But if a nation has "lost" its credit, and must have certain imports to live, that nation's middle name is Tragedy. There are now twenty-one nations in Europe that must have certain imports to live. How many have an excess of exports over imports? Not one of the twenty-one referred to. Neither have they sold for export. Then they must throw in the scale-pan their credit.

But only one of these nations referred to has certain credit on which she can borrow outside of her country if she becomes embarrassed—only England. Then production must slow down. It means less and less to live on, it means disease and death. It means the slowing down of production, the slowing down of the machinery of the world, the ultimate disintegration of our so-called modern industrial life, and with it modern civilization.

Europe Is Shipping Down

And that is actually what has happened in all of Eastern Europe and what is developing in all the countries of Western Europe today. If the machinery of production and of international trade is not restored, one nation after another will slip down into a more and more primitive society and life. This can only result in the death of perhaps one-fourth to one-third of the population of Europe. Then no European nation, with the exception of possibly Russia and Finland, can prevent itself from being ruined. By that I mean the people will have less food to eat and fewer clothes to wear.

SEE NO SIGNS OF BRITISH POLICY

LORD CURZON'S SPEECH CRITICIZED BY LONDON PRESS

Something Must Be Done to Revive Britain's Industry—Australia Urges Common Policy

LONDON, Oct. 6.—It cannot be said that Lord Curzon's statement before the Imperial Conference received a warm reception from the press. While there are indulgent comments on some parts of the official summary given to the newspapers, a majority of the editorial display impugning the definite British policy was revealed and that this country apparently is to wait and see what France does.

That section of the Liberal press represented by The Westminster Gazette and The Daily News deduces from the statement that the government's attitude toward the rights and wrongs in the Ruhr occupation is unchanged and that Premier Baldwin has, apparently, conceded nothing to Premier Poincaré as regards policy. These newspapers, however, express urgent expectations that a revival of British trade and a reduction of unemployment are impossible until some thing is achieved to relieve the economic situation.

Expectations "Bumped"

The Daily Chronicle, representing the views of David Lloyd George, writes indignantly:

"Rarely have expectations raised so high. Never were they bumped so heavily on the empyrean."

The Daily Mail calls for a definite statement of what the Foreign Secretary's statement failed to reveal.

Any settled policy on the part of Great Britain for dealing with the European problem.

The Times asserts that Lord Curzon's speech was bound to be in the nature of a prelude, but adds: "We had hoped that it might be a prelude to a plan of constructive action."

Premier Bruce, of Australia, after adventurous encounters with storms on the English Channel, has finally arrived in London. He strongly advocates a common foreign policy for the Empire.

"Australia," he declares, "holds it to be of the first importance that the sister nations of the Empire should agree upon a policy of intelligent co-operation in foreign affairs, in defence and in its economic development. A united British policy would materially help the present Anglo-French discussions."

To this end Premier Bruce stresses the necessity of greater imperial unity, a view which it is understood Premier Mann of New Zealand, has already emphasized during the conference.

Here a difference of opinion among the Dominion delegates. It is thought, is likely to arise, and the views of Premier King and Premier Smuts in the coming discussion are being awaited with unusual interest.

Corpse With Bullet Wound In Head Put In Burning Haystack

SASKATCHEWAN, Oct. 6.—With a bullet wound in the back of his head, the body of an unidentified man was pulled from a burning haystack near short distance southeast of the University of Saskatchewan here last night.

The body was so badly burned that identification was made by the police to be practically impossible.

Coroner Des Rosters stated it was clearly a case of murder. The man had been shot and his body had been thrown into the haystack, which had then been set on fire.

Frank Gopher Potson, ARDILL, Sask., said: "The three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Kiel here died yesterday as a result of drinking gopher poison."

BEER PLEBISCITE REGARDED LIKELY

GOVERNMENT DETERMINED TO END TROUBLES SOMEHOW
Attorney-General Warns Brewers and Gets Promise of Co-operation—Prohibition May Follow

Will the legalized sale of beer by the glass be the ultimate solution of British Columbia's beer troubles?

The question will almost certainly be settled within a few months; probably not by the Legislature, but by the people themselves by plebiscite. In the opinion of those best able to analyze the future course of liquor laws and conditions.

During the last two or three months the question of beer distillation has transcended all other difficulties of the Liquor Board, and it is clear that the Provincial Government is now fully aroused to the need for a showdown with those responsible for the present conditions and for the enactment of suitable remedial legislation.

In The Colonist several days ago Premier John Oliver strongly intimated that beer legislation would be before the House during the session commencing on October 29, and in the same statement he condemned the "wide open" conditions in certain British Columbia cities, notably Vancouver, as a result of laxity in the enforcement of liquor laws.

Last night Attorney-General A. M. Manson told The Colonist that liquor conditions, in a general sense, were improving; that complaints against disorderly drinking parties in hotels were becoming fewer; and that the troubles incident to the consumption of hard liquor were not nearly as prevalent as formerly. But he admitted that beer was bringing more difficulty than ever. As a result of these beer conditions, he has hurled a challenge into the ranks of the brewers. Briefly, he puts the case this way:

British Columbia brewers must plug the leakage of illicit beer or prepare for the consequences of prohibition.

Two Alternatives

Those are the two alternatives before the brewery interests of the Province, according to Attorney-General Manson, and he has virtually given them an ultimatum to that effect. After threatening legislative measures which would bring the brewers under much more complete control by the Government than at present, Mr. Manson has now agreed to consider a compromise plan suggested by the brewers themselves, which may work out just as effectively from the Government's standpoint and at the same time confine to a minimum the reorganization of the beer industry.

What the brewers want is an amendment to the present Liquor Control Act that will enable the public to buy beer by the glass at a reasonable price. They declare that such a privilege would quickly sound the death knell of the beer clubs and bootlegging outfits that have given the Government so much trouble lately.

If the predictions of not a few politicians are to be believed, the drift is now definitely towards the enactment of legislation to authorize the sale of beer to the public under much easier conditions than at present. This, in spite of assertions by cabinet ministers that the Government would not be bringing a beer-by-the-glass amendment. The old fight, engineered during the last two sessions by a group of legislators under Capt. Ian Mackenzie, of Vancouver, seeking the legalized sale of beer by the glass, is almost certain to be resumed when the Legislature meets this Fall, and added impetus to the campaign will be furnished by the complicated situation that has arisen between the Liquor Board, the brewers and the beer clubs. Legalized sale of beer by the glass will be held up by its proponents as the soundest and surest way of overcoming this difficulty.

The Brewers' Offer

Rather than submit to far-reaching control by the Liquor Board, the brewers have offered to co-operate with the board by forming a pool representing all the breweries to sell directly and solely to the Liquor Board. A draft of the scheme was laid before Mr. Manson last Thursday. It is stated that Mr. Manson regards the proposal favorably, provided that two or three changes are agreed upon, and the brewers are now considering how these changes will affect their interests. Another conference between the brewers and Mr. Manson may be held this week.

On his return yesterday from Vancouver Mr. Manson issued a statement in which he declared that a situation had grown up in Vancouver during the Summer months that was "both inexcusable and reprehensible." "It is calculated to destroy the Liquor Act and, if persisted in, to bring about bone-dry prohibition," he said. "I am not looking for a quarrel with the brewers, nor do I anticipate one, but I am determined that the law of the land shall be observed despite the totally unsatisfactory, dilatory and inexcusable conduct of some of the municipalities in connection with the enforcement."

Mr. Manson said that he had been disappointed with beer conditions for some time and that he had warned brewers that unless illegal distribution of beer was prevented the Government would no longer buy from them.

MANSLAUGHTER WAS CORONER'S VERDICT

Jury at Inquest Into Auto Accident Favored Composite Finding, But Had to Amend It

The coroner's jury that investigated the circumstances surrounding the death of Thorwald Birkland following an auto accident on Beach Drive near the corner of Newport Avenue brought in a verdict yesterday that the death came under the classification of manslaughter, with Arthur Thorpe, the driver of the car, held responsible for it. The first verdict offered the coroner, Dr. E. C. Hart, was to the effect that the cause of death was due to a motor accident through carelessness on the part of the driver and that the attention of the authorities of Oak Bay be called to the dangerous conditions at this point.

This, the coroner pointed out, was not in order and the jury must reach a conclusion either that the death was accidental or was to be classified as manslaughter. In the form submitted the verdict was contradictory. The jury thereupon retired again and when it returned submitted that its verdict was that death was due to carelessness on the part of the driver. The coroner said this could only be interpreted under the statute as one of manslaughter, to which they agreed, with the addition that the attention of the Oak Bay authorities should be called to the dangerous condition of the road at the point.

The jury consisted of Brig.-Gen. J. S. Dunbar (foreman), James Beveridge, Herbert H. Westman, R. Taylor, Laurence Adamson and K. C. Symons.

Fracture of Skull

Dr. John H. Moore testified that when he was first called to the St. Joseph's Hospital to attend the victim of the accident the man was bleeding from the right ear and the nose. He was unconscious. Later he saw him and about four o'clock in the morning he died.

He had made an autopsy upon the body and found that death was due to a fracture of the skull and hemorrhage. This might have been caused by a fall or a blow on the head.

Arthur Thorpe, the driver of the car which met with the accident, was warned by the coroner with reference to the accident. He wanted to give his evidence, subject to protection against its being used against him in any other court. He asked no protection in the matter. He testified that he was a taxi driver and had been called to the Roscamp house, on Niagara Street. A second car was asked for to take all the Mr. Birkland. Mr. James Davis had been called. He saw no drinking in the house and had not had a drink himself that day. About seven o'clock they started out. Mrs. Finnigan sat in the front seat with him, while three men sat in the back seat. He saw no liquor drunk in the car. He had driven carefully. One of the rear wheels of his car struck a small stone, he thought, which twisted the car out of its course. He tried to right it, but it crashed into the large boulder, smashing it up.

In reply to Chief Syme, witness said he was not thrown out of the car. The car of Driver Davis came up and Mr. Birkland was taken right to the hospital.

Saw No Drinking

John Roscamp had been asked to go on the trip by Birkland. With Sorenson they sat in the rear seat. He saw no liquor. After the accident he saw Birkland lying beside the wreck. The other car came up at once and he was placed in it. Witness said he had had nothing to drink that day. The two men on the seat with him had had some liquor. Mrs. Finnigan, of 2243 Blackwood Street, knew deceased well. He had not been drinking that day. She had had something to drink earlier in the day, but saw no drinking. In reply to the question of the chief, she said when the car took her and Birkland from her home to Roscamp's they stopped at the liquor vendors and a box of beer and beer bottles in it, she believed, was got and put in the car. These were not taken out at Roscamp's. James Davis, who is a taxi driver, told of being called to the Niagara Street house. He saw no drinking. Four ladies and a gentleman got into his car, which followed that driven by Thorpe.

He saw nothing to indicate that Thorpe had had any drink. As far as he could tell, his driving on this night was careful. He was not in sight when the accident happened. Chief Syme produced a sketch of the scene of the accident, giving details of what he found. The car had left the road and ran about twenty-six feet. The rock, estimated to weigh about 11,000 pounds, had been moved, it appeared, about one inch and a half by the impact. Commenting on this, the coroner did not know that it was required any great speed for a two-ton car striking a rock of six times its weight to be moved slightly. The chief found pieces of broken

FINDS CHURCH UNION CLOSER IN ENGLAND

Rev. R. Black Returns With Belief That Sections of Methodism Will Shortly Be Joined

Church union is drawing steadily nearer in England, Rev. R. Black, pastor of the Equinault Methodist Church, discovered on his recent visit to the Old Land. He returned yesterday after having been absent from Victoria since May, the trip being primarily for the purpose of visiting his parents.

"I believe that the various sections of Methodism will be united in the Old Country within the near future," Mr. Black told The Colonist upon his return. "After this takes place I feel that the union of the Methodist and Anglican churches will occur, for there is a constant increase in the fraternal spirit between the two. This year the Archbishop of Canterbury attended the Wesleyan Methodist Conference and delivered an address, while, for the first time in history, the president of the Conference preached in Bristol Cathedral."

Mr. Black had not seen England for thirteen years and was greatly interested in the various changes which have taken place.

"At the present time," he said, "there is a deep earnestness in regard to moral reform and a tendency to get away from the theological quibbling of the past."

Spiritual Healing

"An interest in spiritual healing is now being shown, and while I was over there a sermon was delivered on that subject in Westminster Abbey for the first time in centuries, drawing much newspaper comment. In one part of Norfolk, the bishop of a diocese consecrates oil for the anointing of the sick, and the anointing is done by the clergyman, the congregation praying."

Housing Problem Acute

"The housing problem is very acute, and the Government is endeavoring to find some solution. The purchasing of a house is not permitted to compel tenants to move until accommodation is found for them elsewhere. I saw thousands of buildings erected by the Government for various purposes during the war going to waste. Millions of dollars are tied up in this way."

"The railway system is more convenient than it was thirteen years ago, owing to the amalgamation of all the companies into four big ones, which utilize each other's lines. It is cheaper to get around by railway than it was the last time I was in England. Motor buses are now operating between various centres, their rates being below those of the railways with which they are competing. "The traffic situation in London is acute, and the barring of horses from the centre of the city is being considered."

FUNERAL OF VETERAN TOOK PLACE SATURDAY

Obsequies of Lieut. George Henry Lifton Conducted in Presence of Large Gathering

The remains of the late Lieutenant George Henry Lifton, R.N.V.R., who passed away at the St. Joseph's Hospital on Wednesday, were laid to rest with full naval honors yesterday afternoon. The cortege proceeded from the Thompson Funeral Home, 1625 Quadra Street, at 3:15 o'clock and at 3:30 service was held at St. John's Church, when the Rev. F. A. Chappman, M.A., officiated. The 90th Psalm was intoned and the hymn sung was "Abide With Me." Mr. G. Jennings Burnett presided at the organ. There was a large attendance, and many beautiful floral offerings covered the casket and hearse. The high esteem in which the late veteran was held by his many friends.

Among those present at the service were Captain F. W. H. James, president of the Naval Veterans of British Columbia; Lieutenant-Colonel Greer, members of St. Andrew's Lodge, No. 45, A.F. and A.M., and members of the Alexandra Lodge, No. 1118, B.O.E.U. of England. A firing party from the H.M.C.S. Patrician, in charge of Lieutenant F. G. Hart, fired three shots over the open grave, and the Trumpeter Corporal Boudier sounded "Last Post." The casket was draped with the Union Jack and the late veteran's sword and cap reposed on the casket.

The following officers acted as pallbearers: Lieutenant W. P. McDonagh, Lieutenant T. A. Brown, Lieutenant Steven Barratt, Officer Evans, Warrant Officer Brooker and Warrant Officer Hadley.

Interment was made in Ross Bay Cemetery.

ASK MR. COCHRANE TO SEE MR. LLOYD GEORGE

Mr. John Cochrane, vice-president for British Columbia of the Canadian Club, yesterday received an invitation from President C. C. Ferguson, of the Winnipeg Canadian Club, inviting him to attend the Lloyd George meeting on Saturday, October 13.

Mr. Cochrane replied by wire last night, stating that he would be unable to attend. "I congratulate Winnipeg on having the opportunity of meeting one of the greatest men in history," wired Mr. Cochrane. "British Columbia sends heartfelt wishes for successful function and most cordial greetings to your distinguished guest."

In 1910 thirteen of the chief cities of Germany had a combined fire loss of $1,067,208.

New Method of Reducing Fat

A new item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is being established in Europe. This system, which has made such wonderful results, has been made such the Marmola Prescription Tablets. It is said to be the only method of nothing better for this purpose in the world. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh and make the body trim, without the use of drastic measures, is a highly important and valuable discovery. The Marmola Prescription Tablets can be obtained of any druggist or the world over, at the Marmola Company, 4115 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. For one dollar a case, which is a decidedly economical price, containing the number of tablets each case contains. They are harmless. (Adv.)

FORTUNATE ESCAPE FROM FIRE AT SEA

Mrs. Henry Smith Had Fates With Her on Trip to Victoria Fifty-Eight Years Ago

Fortunate escapes from two marine disasters marked the trip of Mrs. Henry Smith, 3025 Oak Bay Avenue, from the Old Country to Victoria fifty-eight years ago. Mrs. Smith, who celebrates her eighty-fourth birthday today, was two months making the long trip out, traveling on four steamers and crossing the Isthmus of Panama by train. The ship on which Mrs. Smith had planned to sail with her two small children on her way here to join her husband, had all its accommodation taken, with the result that another vessel had to be sought. The first one was burned at sea and the baggage lost, although the passengers were saved.

Reaching San Francisco, Mrs. Smith found that she had missed by one day the steamer on which she had booked passage. It was burned at sea and the passengers lost their lives. She came up from the California Port in the old Sierra Nevada, landing at Equinault.

Mrs. Smith was born in Derbyshire, England. Joining her husband, who came to Victoria in 1862, she took up residence in Metchoin, where she remained for a year, moving then into Victoria and living in the Fairview district in a log cabin. She had fourteen children, ten of whom are still living. She has ten grandchildren and eighteen great-grandchildren.

The pioneer continues to enjoy good health. She has been a subscriber to The Colonist for over fifty years. She is spending her eighty-fourth birthday at the home of Mr. S. L. Smith, her youngest son, 41 Cambridge Street.

ANNUAL POLICE BALL

Committee Being Formed to Complete Arrangements for Holding of Big Event Next Month

Arrangements are being made for the holding of the big annual police ball of the local department, which is looked upon as one of the entertainment events of the winter season. The affair will be held some time during the latter part of November in the Armory, Bay Street, and, as in the past, nothing will be missing from the programme which goes to make an entertainment worth remembering until the next one comes along a year later. Committees are being formed to arrange for refreshments, music, tickets, programmes, and other ingredients of a celebration such as the annual police ball.

An occasional dose of DR. CALDWELL'S LAXATIVE SYRUP PEPSIN Keeps young girls fit

False Modesty Wrecks Health

THE young lady just assuming the responsibilities of a woman is very apt to be self-conscious of her physical functions, and in consequence neglect them. There is no time, however, when it is more important for her to look after them. Chief among her troubles is constipation, and her suffering will be serious when she gets older, if she does not regulate her bowels now. Mrs. J. Chubb, 3410 Adams, Montreal, recommends Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin to all her friends, and Mrs. Henry Joyon, Ottawa, Ont., says it is the best remedy for constipation she ever used.

Safe for Young and Old

Let mothers with growing daughters interest themselves in this matter and see that their judgment is enforced. A rule followed by many is to take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin once a week until the bowels function daily, and of each other times as there is headache, biliousness, nervous and feverishness, lack of energy and appetite, sleeplessness, indigestion.

A dose can be given in these conditions to any member of the family however young or old as Laxative Syrup Pepsin is a simple compound of Egyptian aloe with pepsin and pleasing aromatics, and perfectly safe.

Public Recognizes Merit

You will quickly see the difference between a mild laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin and other laxatives. Syrup Pepsin acts gently and does not grip. Increased doses are not necessary. A bottle can be had at any drug store, and a spoonful costs less than a cent. It has been successfully used for thirty years and is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles having been sold in drug stores last year. Keep Laxative Syrup Pepsin in your medicine chest.

SHAREHOLDERS TO BE MULCTED

PAY DOUBLE LIABILITY ON HOME BANK SHARES

Depositors Demand Bankers' Association Shall Pay Them One Hundred Cents on Dollar

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—Any hope of avoiding payment of double liability which the shareholders of the Home Bank of Canada may have been entertaining was shattered by a statement made today by Glyn Oslar, K.C., solicitor for Curator A. B. Barker.

"It is quite evident," he said, "that the double liability will have to be called for." Of the shareholders who will be called upon to put up as much again as the par value of the stock which they own, President H. J. Daly himself will be the hardest hit, his holdings amounting to $211,400. Among the other Toronto directors of the bank are: F. J. B. Russell, $5,000; S. C. Woods, $4,000; J. F. M. Stewart, $4,000; and R. P. Gough, $3,200; Percival Mitchell, London, England, $146,500; Lieutenant-Colonel C. A. Smith, Montreal, $5,000; C. A. Barnard, Montreal, $5,000.

Depositors' Demands
Depositors of the suspended Home Bank of Canada, at a meeting here yesterday, adopted a number of resolutions, the most important of which were those relating to a request for the federal and provincial governments to forego their preference claims on the bank's assets, and asking that the other chartered banks take over from the liquidator the assets of the bank and pay the depositors one hundred cents on the dollar.

The resolutions were later handed to Finance Minister Fielding, who received a deputation of depositors. He would not comment on the subject matter of the resolutions, but promised consideration of them.

"The failure of the Home Bank can be laid at the door of the Canadian Bankers' Association, because they were against government inspection," declared William Mellow, an employee of the head office of the Home Bank at the meeting. "I believe the Bankers' Association are morally responsible to see that the bank depositors get one hundred cents on the dollar. Also I think it is wrong that the government should have priority and it should not be allowed," Mr. Mellow said.

Seeks Valuation
J. E. Weidner, of Lindsay, Ont., legal adviser to the Eastern Canada depositors, advocated that the depositors should put a man in to value the assets and then ask the Canadian Bankers' Association to buy them.

"A thing we don't want is long-drawn-out litigation," he said. "We want to get our money back quickly." He also urged that the Home Bank failure was due to the Bankers' Association's influence that prevented outside inspection of banks.

"This was up to the Bankers' Association and the Canadian Bankers' Association said they wanted no outside inspection—they could take care of the morals of their brothers and sisters."

W. A. Buchner, K.C., of London, Ont., moved the resolution asking that the Canadian Bankers' Association purchase the assets of the Home Bank.

"They are responsible for the fact that there is no government inspection. If the Canadian Government does not pass such a law, the people of Canada will think that they are afraid that the condition of Canadian banks is such that they will not bear inspection."

"It is asserted that money belonging to the shareholders and depositors of the Home Bank of Canada was used to finance a rum-running enterprise," says the Globe, in an editorial today, "and the failure of this assertion should be established as speedily as possible."

LECTURER IMITATES SOUNDS FROM AFRICA

Major Johnston Gives Address Under Auspices of Sir James Douglas Parent-Teachers' Association

Imitation by the lecturer of such sounds as the monotonous chant of the native dancers, the noise of the witch doctor's horn, the din of a native chief's band, and the sound of the native tongue was a notable feature of the illustrated address given by Major Johnston on the subject of "The White Man's Grave, the West Coast of Africa," before the Sir James Douglas Parent-Teachers' Association in the Fairfield Hall, on Friday evening.

Speaking as the former political officer in Southern Nigeria, Major Johnston gave a highly interesting insight into the African life. His slides, shown in a lantern operated by Mr. Girdwood, were very good. Lagos, the port, and native town with houses of bamboo and wattle roofs thatched with the leaf of the palm oil tree, were shown on the screen. The home life, industries and superstitious rites of the natives were depicted in instructive detail. The pictures of the rites were particularly unique owing to the extreme difficulty of a white man getting near enough to the ceremonies to photograph them.

Mr. W. H. Stokes, the new president of the association, was in the chair.

Nearest of Kin of Canada's Conqueror

During September, Westminster, Kent, England, celebrated the 144th anniversary of the capture of Quebec under General James Wolfe. Among those taking part in the ceremonies was Mr. A. Wolfe-Arthur, of Quebec House, Wolfe's home, the nearest of kin of the famous soldier who won Canada for Great Britain. The picture shows him in the garden of Quebec House.

City & District

Rabbit Breeders to Meet—The Victoria and District Rabbit Breeders' Association will meet at the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday, October 9, at 8 o'clock.

Ford Car Missing—Mr. Thomas Bridges, whose new Ford touring car was stolen from where it had been parked on Cormorant Street last Wednesday, is becoming anxious regarding the car. The police have been endeavoring since the loss was reported to secure trace of it, but so far unsuccessfully. The owner would receive any information about it very gratefully.

Workers Reduced—At the meeting of the cemetery board yesterday morning a report was received from the engineer in charge of the development work, stating that the number of men employed had been reduced from sixty to twenty, and that the last load of rock had been placed on the roads. The board spent most of its time dealing with accounts.

Install Officers—The Onwegoes Young Men's Bible Class held the installation of its new officers for the next six months at the home of its secretary, Mr. Ian Hastings, on Friday night. Following the consideration of the past year's reports, the new officers were introduced and vested with the insignia of office, and were given the right hand of fellowship by Mr. R. G. Howell, the leader of the class.

Breaks Liquor Law—Mrs. Marie Bailey, found guilty in the police court on a charge of being intoxicated, was fined the usual $10, the minimum penalty for a first offence under the act. Accused pleaded that she was a married woman and had six children. She could not pay, she said, and asked the court what would happen to her children if she was forced to spend thirty days in jail, the alternative penalty. The magistrate pointed out that he had no option under the act.

Would Raise Wages—For the purpose of endeavoring to secure an increase in the wages of carpenters here, a meeting is being held in the Trades Hall, Broad Street, under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council tomorrow night. The claim is made that while carpenters in Victoria are getting only $5, those in other cities of the Northwest are drawing from $5.50 to $6.50 per day. The meeting is open to non-union as well as union men, is called to decide upon a plan for securing the increase desired.

Will be Probed—Last week's probates issued out of the Supreme Court include the following estates: The estate of the late Mr. Henry James Fairfax, British Columbia estate, $7,000; the estate of the late Mr. George Christie, British Columbia estate, $500; the estate of the late Mr. Frederick A. Perkins, of Baker, Oregon, who died in January, 1923, British Columbia estate, $3,500; the estate of the late Mrs. Florence Isabel Wells, of Sunnyside, Mass., who died on April 25, 1923, British Columbia estate, $3,000; the estate of the late Dorothy Winifred Sherwood, of Victoria, who died in Seattle on July 20, 1923, estate, $1,075.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known down-town druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. It's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears. By another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. (Advt.)

PRINCE OF WALES ARRIVES AT OTTAWA

Will Spend Several Days at Capital as the Guest of Governor-General and Lady Byng

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—Lord Renfrew arrived here at 10:30 today by special train. He was met at the depot by Lord Byng, Governor-General, and several members of the governor's staff. As the Prince is travelling incognito, there was no official reception. Hon. Martin Burrell, who accompanied the Prince on his tour when he visited Canada previously, came down to the station to greet him.

A line of police formed to maintain a clear space to the station exit, but this protection was scarcely necessary, as the crowd did not press forward until after the royal visitor had passed and showed every desire to respect his wish that no demonstration should be made.

Automobiles awaited the Prince and his party, and upon leaving the station they were driven to Rideau Hall, where Lord Renfrew will remain for several days as the guest of Lord and Lady Byng.

PERFECT PLANS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE'S RALLY

Convention of AM Church Organizations Will Be Held Here Towards End of This Month

A joint meeting of the Victoria Religious Educational Council and the Young People's Board was held in the Y.M.C.A. Building on Wednesday evening, Rev. W. C. Frank, occupied the chair. The object of the meeting was to complete all the details and arrangements for the coming Young People's convention to be held on October 21 and 22.

On Sunday, October 21, a mass meeting will be held at 4 p.m. in the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, when the Rev. Manson Doyle, of Toronto, will be the chief speaker. Mr. E. R. McLean, field secretary for Sunday School and Young People's activities for the Presbyterian Church in Canada, will also speak. The subject of the principal address will be "Weekly Religious Education." The theme of this address will predominate the nature of the convention throughout. It is felt by the council that in so doing something worth while will really be accomplished by the convention.

On Monday at 12:15 midday, a luncheon will be held in the Y.W.C.A. for all young people's leaders and Sunday school workers. An open discussion will take place, led by Mr. A. R. Merrick, on the theme of "Weekly Religious Education."

At 7:45 p.m., in the Metropolitan Methodist Church, a large rally of all the young people's societies of the Protestant churches of the city will be held.

A splendid programme has been arranged. One of the church orchestras will be in attendance to lead the singing; also a male quartette and vocal artists will assist to make the rally a success. A roll call of the different societies will be arranged. Rev. Manson Doyle and Mr. E. R. McLean will again be the principal speakers.

The officials in charge of the arrangements are confident that the convention will prove to be one that will establish a record in getting together the youth of Victoria's churches.

Honors Miss Webster

A miscellaneous shower was held last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Duplain, of Dallas Road, in honor of Miss Evelyn Webster, who is to be married shortly. The room was prettily decorated for the occasion with green and pink paper flowers and streamers. At one end of the drawing-room was a well-decorated table with colored paper and tinsel, in which all the presents were concealed. Little Genevieve Laidie, who was dressed as a fairy, drew the presents up in the bucket, and presented them to the bride-elect. An enjoyable evening was spent in music, games and dancing. Among those present were Mrs. F. Duplain, Mrs. G. H. Jones, Mrs. O'Neill, Mrs. Whittemore, Mrs. W. Watson, and Misses Leslie Wallace, Frances Thomas, Alice Hole, Nellie Jaynes, Hannah Smith, Mabel Unwin, Iruil Deakin, Miss Brown, Thelma Dingwell, Kathleen Davies, Vera Haven, Violet Walsh, Ada Eve, Kathleen Wallace, Annie Bishop, Agnes Nylands, Beth Campbell, Queenie Brown, C. Butler, Hilda Locke, Vera and Olive Jennings, Janie Beckett, Amy Smith, Phyllis Nunn, Mae Smilie, Sadie Underwood, Doris Chambers and Agnes Griffith.

Honors Miss Stenler

On Friday evening Miss Hilda Stenler, whose marriage takes place shortly, was the guest of honor at a delightful miscellaneous shower given by Miss Lillian Smethurst at her home, 1110 Princess Avenue. The many gifts were unopened under a large spotted green kowpie, which centered an artistically decorated table, the color scheme being blue and yellow. The guests included: Mrs. J. E. Jones, Mrs. C. Gray, Mrs. M. Simmons, Mrs. J. Walton, Mrs. O. Grimm, Mrs. D. B. Nickerson, Mrs. F. Lewis, Mrs. B. Vale, Mrs. B. Young, Mrs. W. Blake, Mrs. R. E. Baxter, Mrs. P. Sheeritt, and the Misses H. Stenler, B. Jones, J. Rutledge, E. Webb, L. Stewart, A. Brown, G. Smethurst and L. Smethurst.

Surprise Shower

Miss Hilda Stenler was guest of honor at a shower given for her recently by Mrs. J. E. Jones and Mrs. O. H. Grimm at the home of the latter, the color scheme of the room being carried out in red and white.

Many pretty and useful gifts were presented by the little Misses Wynna and Ellean Grimm, who were dressed as cupids and carried a white basket decorated with cupid and hearts. A delectable supper was served from a table with decorations carried out with the same effect. The guests included: Mrs. J. E. Jones, Enda Mellor, Mrs. R. B. Baxter, Misses Lillian and Gertrude Smethurst, Mrs. P. Sheeritt, Mrs. C. Gray, Mrs. W. Draydell, Mrs. J. E. Kinsman, Mrs. J. Campbell, Miss M. A. Simmons, Mrs. A. Sheeritt.

DUNCAN

Social Evening

The social evening held last evening under the auspices of the Duncan branch of the P.T.A. was a most enjoyable function. It was held in St. John's Hall, with the president, Mr. S. K. Kirkham, acting as chairman. The artists on the programme included: Miss Cope, of Vancouver, who, accompanying herself on the piano, rendered two delightful solos. Mrs. Stuart was heard in an entertaining monologue, and later, with Mr. Easton, gave a most entertaining and amusing interpretation of one of the latest song hits, "Maggie." This was acted throughout and afforded plenty of mirth. Mr. Bricknell, in fine voice, was heard in the opening part of the programme and again later, as was Mr. Ogden, who received a good reception. Moving pictures by the projector owned by the P.T.A. were also given in the early part of the evening. Following the programme the floor was cleared for dancing, the music being supplied by Mrs. Emily Smith, and dainty refreshments were served. In charge of the general arrangements were Mrs. Stock, head of the social committee, assisted by Mr. S. K. Kirkham and Mr. Edwards.

MCBRIDE SOCIAL CLUB

Dance and Card Party are held for Next Tuesday Evening in Port Street Harmony Hall

One of the chief entertainments booked for next week is the inaugural dance and card tournament to be given by the McBride Social Club in the Harmony Hall, Port Street, on Tuesday evening. The committee on arrangements are specially preparing the floor, and the orchestra has selected the latest dance numbers. The refreshment committee will provide a buffet supper, the cafe having been enlarged, so that convenience and comfort are assured. A special tombola prize of one-half ton of coal will be given away, and the prizes for the card tournament are also well worth winning.

The arrangements committee, composed of Mrs. Aikman, Mrs. Burley, Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. Mitchell and Miss Hare, assisted by other members of the club, is sparing no efforts to provide every comfort and service to assure a good time. A hearty invitation is extended to residents of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt, as well as Victoria, to be present. Dancing and cards will start at 8:30 o'clock.

ARRANGE TALENT TEA

Great interest is being taken in the preparations for the annual talent tea of the Christ Church Cathedral girls' branch of the W.A.A. to be held at the cathedral school Saturday next from 3 to 6 p.m. Mrs. Hoper, of Ottawa, the first president of this branch, happily being in town, was able to meet several of the members of the branch on Friday.

The Columbia coast mission has suffered recently the loss by fire of St. George's Hospital, Alert Bay, so the girls are hoping to help the Rev. John Antle in the task of building a new hospital.

Other objects the branch works for are the Chinese mission of Johnson Street, and the different funds of the W.A. to the M.C.C. All old and new friends will be cordially welcome to help empty the tables of tempting needlecraft, sweets, etc., and enjoy the concert arranged by the members.

The Girl in the Corner Apartment

By MAY CHRISTIE
Author of "One Christmas Year," "The Daring Kim," Etc.

THE CHARACTERS
Cynthia Brent, country girl, living in a New York apartment she has inherited from an old lady she once befriended.
Rushy Allison, her gay and frivolous friend.

Alec Kerr, Ruby's fiancé.
Quentin Gray, an artist friend of Ruby's.

Aunt Ellen, who keeps house for Cynthia.
Murray Stewart, for whom Cynthia is working as a stenographer.

Mrs. Wakefield, friend and rich client of Stewart, who takes a fancy to Cynthia.
Violet Jerrold, friend of Murray's.

KLING—The New Secretary
In spite of the fact that Cynthia Brent was standing there in front of her, Miss Violet proceeded to type briskly on her machine, as though she were alone.

"I wouldn't hang about here, if I were you," she raised her head once to say. "Mr. Stewart won't be in for an hour, and neither will the clerk. I've heard to go home."

"He's in love with Violet Jerrold, or write, if you want to—and that will be just as satisfactory for you, won't it?"

So Cynthia—proud and sensitive girl—had given me a little more, with intense ache at her heart.

"He's hard and unjust and cruel," she told herself, walking through the crowded city streets with a little mist before her eyes. "He's dismissed me, with two weeks' salary, at a moment's notice, just because he saw me in the company of Quentin Gray and his foreign friend. He's given me no chance to explain. He's just filled my job at once, that's all."

Then a thought struck her which hurt even more.

"He's in love with Violet Jerrold, and wants to get rid of me. Those glances and little kindnesses of his—he was only playing with me—firing me on of the world of I've been a fool!"

Now that she had lost her job, how would she and Aunt Ellen live? It was true there was no rent to pay for the little flat, but Ray and electric light and food cost quite a bit these days! And she had wanted to give Aunt Ellen a new costume! And a hat! And shoes!

And small expenses mounted up each week.

Tears of loneliness and disappointment and bitter heartache sprang to the eyes that were "poos in a dark forest."

For a moment Cynthia wished that she had never left the quiet and peaceful countryside, where nothing ever happened, and where one day was exactly like the next, and totally devoid of either joy or sorrow!

But that mood passed.

"If I'm to understand life at all, and have happiness, I must have my share of pain and ups-and-downs," she stoically told herself, setting her lips into a stiffer mould. "I've got to face this matter squarely, and be brave about it!"

Passing an old church, on steps of which the pretty pigeons cooed and fluttered, Cynthia of the heart under the great dome and in the wide, dim apocryphal she found a place of peace.

It had weathered many tempests, and provided balm for many an aching heart.

How beautiful it was! And how aloof from the bustling, noisy, fretting world outside! She emerged and slowly walked down the wide, shallow stone steps to the junction of the streets. It was falling now, and automobiles were splashing mud on the pedestrians each time they halted at the pavement's edge.

It seemed to Cynthia that the hurrying thousands all had an anxious, worried look.

"Earning one's daily bread in a huge city is the problem that perplexes most of them," she thought, with sudden intuition.

Then she remembered that she herself was in that very plight, and a sudden wave of anger against Murray Stewart for his unjust dismissal of her replaced the calm mood that her sojourn in the church had begotten.

What a fool she'd been, to think he cared for her!

Her excitement over the arrival of the flowers, too—how misplaced and ridiculous it had been! Murray Stewart had not been the donor.

And now! He had been so merry the impulsive whim of a well-to-do man, who was sorry for her loneliness, and anxious to do a passing kindness!

But not he was not kind. The unjust dismissal had proved that he was hard and narrow, and intolerant. Cynthia reached home at last, weary and dispirited. She had walked for miles and miles, and she was unaccustomed to the city pavements.

That made her, physically, all the more tired. But fatigue of mind and a certain dull hopelessness were harder still to bear than anything merely bodily.

"What's the matter, dearie?" Kind Aunt Ellen stared in astonishment when Cynthia walked in at this still early hour of the morning. Then she asked anxiously:

"I hope nothing has gone wrong at the office? Mr. Stewart rang up nearly an hour ago and asked after you. But I couldn't get what he said. I'm not used to the telephone, and it makes my nerves jump so. Besides, I don't hear well, so I can't say what his message was. He did ask that you would call up yourself."

The heart of Cynthia leaped within her bosom.

Was there some hope? Had Violet Jerrold exaggerated the situation? If she could communicate direct with Murray Stewart, surely he would understand her explanation?

With trembling hands she took the receiver off its hook, and gave the number of the office.

The voice of her secretary, cool and detached, came through. "Mr. Stewart is out just now. Do you wish to leave a message?" No, Cynthia did not wish to leave a message. She would call up again later, she said, wistfully, swinging the receiver back upon its hook.

The sharp ting-ting and double knock of the postman sounded at the front door, and a bulky envelope came skidding through the letter box and fell on the floor of the tiny hall.

Aunt Ellen picked it up. "For you, dearie," she handed it to Cynthia.

When the girl opened it, she saw that it contained a single sheet of ordinary letter paper, with a wad of bills inside. Her two weeks' salary! Typed on the sheet of paper were the words:

"Cynthia Brent—two weeks' salary."

They struck a cold chill to her heart. So it was true, what Violet Jerrold had informed her! She was dismissed, with two weeks' salary, in lieu of notice!

Sinking down on the sofa of the sitting room, she broke into a desolate sobbing.

Tuesday—An Invitation

Deputy Provincial Commissioner Gives Badges to Guides

An interesting event took place on Friday afternoon, when Mrs. Kinloch, deputy provincial commissioner of Guides, presented to the guides of the Victoria, Esquimalt, and Nanaimo branches the following:

All round card and service star—Margaret Peden (Lieutenant).

Service stars—Evelyn Duffield, Violet Painter, Dorothy Cave and Stella Scott.

Second class badges—Dorothy Case, Kathleen Chapman, Evelyn Duffield, May Phillips and Eileen Thomas.

Swimmer's badges—Elsie de Costa, Peggy Adams, Betty Adams, Dorothy Cave and Violet Painter.

Mrs. Kinloch expressed to their captain, Mrs. Adams, her pleasure at the keenness of the girls, and invited as many as possible of the patrol leaders and seconds to attend the classes for guide officers held fortnightly at the Board of Trade Building.

The guides were also invited to meet Mrs. Warren, Canadian commissioner on Esquimalt, when she will hold an inspection in the Board of Trade Building.

Before the presentation of badges the guides had a very interesting talk on "Moths and Butterflies" by the president of the Esquimalt Child Hygiene Council, who is kindly judging the tests for nursing.

And, finally, announced that church parade would be at 10:15 on Sunday at St. Paul's Garrison Church, and hereafter would be on the first Sunday of each month.

HOLD OPENING SOCIAL

Women's Progressive Conservative Club Announces Plans for Next Wednesday Evening

On Wednesday evening of next week the first of a series of social gatherings will be held by the Victoria Women's Progressive Conservative Club in the Caledonia Hall, View Street.

The club has leased the premises for the winter season for every Wednesday evening, and the socials will include dancing and cards. The floor of the Caledonia Hall is known by all as the best dancing floor in Victoria. Excellent music will be provided.

For the opening event of the season three prizes for military $50 will be offered, as well as two ten bids. A free tombola drawing will be held.

AMALGAMATION GETS SUPPORT

ing delegates were guests of honor at a smoking entertainment, which was held in the clubrooms, under the auspices of the association.

The club orchestra was on hand and rendered popular selections, and assisting artists contributed to a programme that was much enjoyed.

The business session will be resumed this morning at 9:30 o'clock. Officers for the ensuing term will be chosen, the place of the next convention likely being decided, and the report of the resolutions committee considered.

The convention banquet will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, after which the visitors will be taken in automobiles and shown the city.

The delegates in attendance at yesterday's session included: Comrades J. A. Johnson, S. N. Palmer and Stirling and Uren, Burnaby; Comrades A. McKenzie, T. Hutchinson and A. B. Jones, Esquimalt; Comrades P. Campbell, Esquimalt; Comrades W. C. Angus and J. A. McVeety, Kamloops; Comrade Alfred Kirkham, Nanaimo; Comrades H. A. Sutton, W. Rourke and J. H. THE SPORTING WORLD

Mann Cup Is Annexed By New Westminster

Royals Outplay the Capitals, Wipe Off Small Lead Gained the Previous Week, and Win Final Game for Famous Lacrosse Trophy by Seven to Two on Local Ground

THE Mann Cup will not enjoy the beauties of Victoria's winter climate this year. It will repose in New Westminster's hall of fame. For the Royals brought over one of the smoothest-working lacrosse teams this city has seen since the day of the famous Foundation Twelve, and trounced the local prizes neatly and soundly by the score of 7-2. The manner of their victory at the Stadium yesterday afternoon, left no doubt in the minds of any of the spectators as to who deserved to be styled amateur lacrosse champions of the world. It was clean-cut and decisive and the score clearly indicates the superiority of the winners. As a consequence, Vancouver will be pried from their possession of some $3,000 worth of gold in the shape of the Mann Cup some time this morning, and the whole city of New Westminster, that stronghold of lacrosse, will gather at the depot a little later with many brass bands as can be marshalled for the occasion.

A Clean Game

However disappointing in result to Victorians, it was a fine game to watch, probably the most thrilling seen here for two seasons and certainly the cleanest. Though the checking was close and the pace enough to satisfy the most rabid fan, there was no evidence of ill-feeling; but, rather, good sportsmanship was the order of the day. Indeed, referee Harry Pickering, resident in white sweater and flannels, hardly blew his whistle except to put the ball in play at the beginning of the quarters. There was only one penalty handed out in the whole game.

After Victoria's 2-1 victory, a week ago, high hopes of success were entertained by the thousand or so fans who turned out to see the game, and there was a marked air of confidence on every hand. But the first quarter was hardly over before the faces of the old-timers began to wear a troubled look, and veterans of the lacrosse of former years heard to observe that "those fellows seem to handle the ball better than our boys do." For it early became clear that the Victorians lacked the finish in making and receiving passes that distinguished the play of the victors, and, not long after, it was easily to be seen that they were rather badly outclassed in team-work as a whole.

It was by no means a walk-over for the Royals, however. They were fought strenuously every inch of the way. But their youth and rather better physical condition stood them in good stead and the speed of the game seemed to tell on them less than on the local boys, who ended the first quarter with two goals against them. At the end of the third quarter, with the score at 4-0, and after most of the crowd had "folded their cloaks about them and silently stole away" in the deluge of rain the outlook seemed hopeless for the victors. And yet, with all the gamemen in the world, they came back in the last period and outshone their opponents, slipping in two counters, the first a splendid stick shot by Manny Norton, and the second from the club of the redoubtable Cotton Brynjolfsson—throughout the game the most outstanding player on the field.

Simpson, in goal for Victoria, was kept very busy in the opening stages of the first quarter, and finally, after five minutes and fifteen seconds, Vernon succeeded in passing the ball to a long shot. A minute later Atkinson duplicated the feat from a few feet out—with a shot that "Simmie" had not the slightest chance of saving.

Play opened at a tremendous speed in the second quarter and though Victoria easily held their own, Wood, the visitors' outside home, increased their score with perhaps the prettiest effort of the game. Kroeger immediately afterwards lost Victoria's lead chance up to that time when he missed an open net by yards from a position just in front of it.

Victoria Shows Up
Victoria was plainly tired in the third quarter and slowed up their play to such an extent that Wood, who played a brilliant game for the Royals, registered two more tallies. It then looked to the spectators as though the game was definitely lost, and when the clouds let loose the downpour most of them left in very bad spirits indeed.

Coulter and Knobs replaced McGregor and Menzies as the last quarter began on a field as wet as the players could hardly keep their feet. Indeed at times it seemed that the game had suddenly changed to one of rugby football. But it was under those conditions that Victoria played their best. And at last, Manny Norton shot the first of the two goals that saved the locals from being whitewashed. Shortly afterwards Cotton Brynjolfsson, after a superb individual effort, in which he outwitted the whole New Westminster defence, registered the second one. Half a minute later Ronnie got home one of the wicked shots with which he had been constantly troubling Simpson for the last score of the game.

Summary

First quarter: 1. Vernon, New Westminster, 8:15; 2. Atkinson, New Westminster, 1:22.
Second quarter: 3. Wood, New Westminster, 1:40.
Third quarter: 4. Wood, New Westminster, 9:12; 5. Wood, New Westminster, 2:48.
Fourth quarter: 6. Norton, Victoria, 8:50; 7. Brynjolfsson, Victoria, 9:10; 8. Ronnie, New Westminster, 11:15; 9. Vernon, New Westminster, Penalties.
First quarter: none; second quarter, none; third quarter, none; New Westminster, 6 min.; fourth quarter, none.

SEMI-FINALS ARE COMPLETED IN Y.M.C.A. TOURNAMENT

James Islanders Have Hard Tumble With Wellers' Pair—Finals Postponed Until Saturday Next

The semi-finals in the Y.M.C.A. tennis tournament yesterday afternoon on the View Street courts were completed after some fast exhibitions. The James Island vs. Wellers contest proving a very exciting one. The James Island team was forced to extend itself to the limit before it finally won from Wellers' representatives.

Miss Phyllis Knappman and Mr. T. H. Knappman, of Wellers, displayed a fine knowledge of the game, each having a deadly service and exceedingly good returns.

All games were closely contested, with the James Island team securing the odd point more often than their opponents.

Miss Richards and Mr. Holland, as usual, excelled themselves on the wooden courts, their steady play and speedy drives keeping them in the lead throughout both sets.

After losing the first set 2-6, Wellers team came back strong in the second set, winning the score 6-2. They almost evened up the count on several occasions. Some fine play was exhibited by both teams near the close of the match.

Miss Richards and Mr. Holland ran out at the long end of the score, 6-3.

The James Island team will meet Mr. Galbraith and Miss Ponsford next Saturday in the final game for the championship.

The most closely fought out set of the afternoon was between Miss Ponsford and Mr. Galbraith and Miss Hamilton and Mr. W. Marshall. In the first set Miss Ponsford and Mr. Marshall led at 4-2 and also at 5-4, but failed to secure the extra game, which, as it later turned out, would have won the match.

Miss Ponsford and Mr. Galbraith evened the score at five all and then secured the next two games, winning 7-5 after a very close struggle.

In the second set Mr. Galbraith and Miss Ponsford opened strong, taking two games straight, and then lost six consecutive strokes to their opponents.

A third set being necessary, both teams exerted every effort to win, but Miss Ponsford's steady returns and Mr. Galbraith's powerful play won the first four games. Miss Hamilton and Mr. Marshall rallied strongly and played remarkably well, but eventually lost out on the final set.

Consolation Match

Mr. Warren Martin and Miss Witty (First Presbyterian) won two straight sets from Mr. Ed Breckenridge and Miss Menzies (First Presbyterian) 6-3, 6-2.

Other games postponed until next Saturday.

Summary of Results

Semi-finals—Mr. Holland and Miss Richards (James Island) beat Mr. Knappman and Miss Knappman (Wellers) 6-2, 6-3; Mr. Galbraith and Miss Ponsford (James Island) beat Mr. Marshall and Miss Hamilton (Wellers) 7-5, 2-6, 6-1.

Consolation—Mr. W. Martin and Miss Witty (First Presbyterian) beat Mr. Breckenridge and Miss Menzies (First Presbyterian) 6-3, 6-2.

Other games postponed until next Saturday.

CEDAR HILL TENNIS

The Cedar Hill Tennis Club held its annual meeting Friday evening last in the Parish Hall, with a good attendance of members.

The secretary-treasurer's report showed a very gratifying result of the year's workings and a balance in hand. The club was also successful in the election of a ladies' dressing-room, etc.

The social section, which was active during the winter months, also showed a source of enjoyment, the success of which was largely due to the retiring president, Mr. W. E. Quisley.

Four interclub matches were played, with a division of honors in scores.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Honorary president, Mr. J. G. Brown; president, Mr. E. D. Freeman; vice-president, Mr. C. E. King; secretary-treasurer, Mr. A. H. Parker; committee, Mr. W. E. Quisley, Mr. H. A. Jamieson, Mr. C. F. Campbell, Mrs. Freeman and Miss Miller.

It was decided to carry on the social section during the winter months.

Further permanent improvements are being considered in the erection of a gentlemen's dressing-room and the making of a new court, which will be left in the hands of the executive committee.

The American Handicap Tournament was won by the following couplet: 1. Miss K. Harris and Freeman; 2. Miss Douglas and Quisley.

Arrangements for the annual dance, which will take place about Halloween, will be made later and will probably be in the form of a masquerade.

How Bobby Jones Has Become Golf Genius

The Story of a Twenty-One-Year-Old Golfer Who Has Become National Open Champion of America With Record Which Outdoes Those of All Famous Stars

HERE is the first installment of one of the most absorbing biographies of a sporting figure ever written. It is the life of Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., who at the age of 21 is the national open golf champion and has a tournament record which the most brilliant veterans have not equalled.

CHAPTER I

A Champion's Childhood—The First Battle

(By O. B. Keeler)

Beginning the story of Bobby Jones, national open golf champion, it is a puzzling question to start speed classic at a speed of 243.67 miles an hour for 240 kilometres (154.27 miles). His total elapsed time was 30:36:01.

A stretch of fifteen yards lies between the two holes. Bobby Jones, a sturdy North Georgia, who cared nothing for sports and was vastly chafed over the celebrity attained by his own son as a baseball player at the University of Georgia, he feels differently about Bobby's prowess. The first sporting event he ever witnessed voluntarily was a Red Cross golf match at East Lake, when Bobby was playing. While the boy was battling at Inwood last July a telegram came from his stern old grandfather:

"Stay with them, boy, and make the putt go down."

Bobby showed it to me with a smile and a suspicious brightness in his eyes.

"He doesn't know a thing about golf," said Bobby. "But I'll bet he is pulling harder than he is. Except maybe Dad."

At the outset it seemed Bobby was not to remain long in this vale of tears and golf activities. As a baby he was afflicted with a digestive trouble which baffled one excellent doctor after another to the number of six, who one and all informed him that he would be a "miracle" if the child grew up.

He Takes Them Holed
Up to the age of five the future champion never had managed a morsel of solid food. It was white of rice and liquid peptonoids and such pap for the youthful Robert, and his father's own account he was a slight pitiful to behold.

The thick clouds of Bobby's father, remembering his own rugged boyhood in the mountains of North Georgia, decided to give Mother Nature a chance. The little family moved out from the city to board at a home in a suburban town, East Lake. There they removed Bobby's shoes and turned him out to grass.

That was the first battle of Bobby Jones, the battle for life. And it may be that some hardy inherent fighting quality in the frail little chap asserted itself for in a month Bobby was taking his eggs boiled instead of beaten, and in three months he was eating anything he could bite, and his dental equipment was adequate.

The game of golf, which he had abbreviated creak, and so Bobby won his first fight, carefully (it may be) at the very gate of the East Lake golf course, a tiny spindling figure in rompers patterling about the old hills of Georgia and peering curiously through the fence at white-clad grown people hitting a little white ball in a game just beginning to be popular in Atlanta.

The little boy in rompers was looking at historic ground—for him. It was there he was to acquire in this club his first lesson in the style that was to make him the most fashionable and the mold of form, wherever golf was played.

What He Has Done
That toy creak was the start of a career which in a brief span of years, was to include these achievements in Bobby Jones' record:
Won national open championship at Inwood, 1923.
Won southern amateur golf championship, 1917, 1920 and 1922.
Won Georgia State amateur championship, 1916.
Runners-up in tie with John Black, one stroke behind Gene Barzen, national open championship, 1919.
Runners-up to S. Davidson Heron, national amateur championship, 1919.
Runners-up to J. Douglas Edgar, Canadian open championship, 1919.
Runners-up to James M. Barnes, southern open championship, 1919.
Runners-up to J. Douglas Edgar, southern open championship, 1920.
Semi-finalist in national amateur championship, 1920 and 1922.
Played in four consecutive national open championships, finishing successively eighth, fifth, second and first, and leading the entire field in aggregate scoring by a margin of 14 strokes.

Next: Killie, the Kingmaker.
Miss Cummings Defeats Miss Stirling in Final Of Golf Championship
RTE, Oct. 6.—Miss Edith Cummings, of Chicago, today won the women's national golf championship, defeating Miss Alex Stirling in the final round, 3 and 2.

Meadowbrook Polo Team Wins Polo Championship
WESTBURY, Conn., Oct. 6.—Meadowbrook today won the American open polo championship, defeating the British Army team in a thrilling rally in the second half of the game. Meadowbrook won by a score of 12-9, thus bringing back to America the title, which was won last year by the Argentine Federation team.

With Them, Boy?
So Bobby Jones did not begin by cutting his teeth on a niblick or taking a Vardon grip on his first rally. His first battle, too, was not on the links, but a grimmer affair, and he was told that the ball must be played wherever it lay, and all strikes must be counted. He began his career; a career that proved a battle for life itself, and golf helped him to win.

Bobby Jones was born in Atlanta, Ga., March 17, 1902, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tyre Jones. He was named for his paternal grandfather.

Heilman and Hornsby Are Batting Champs

Detroit Tigers' Slugger Has Average Over .400—Eddie Collins' Performance Notable Achievement of Baseball Year—Babe Ruth Still Leading in Total Bases Though Passed as Run-Getter

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Harry Heilman, of the Detroit Tigers, will be crowned 1923 batting champion of the American League. Rogers Hornsby, of St. Louis, succeeding himself as the premier swatter of the National League. With the closing of the season tomorrow, Heilman, who won the title in 1921 with an average of .394, has an average of .401 including games of last Wednesday. If this average is maintained in the final games of the race, it will be the sixth time in the history of the American League that a player has batted above .400 for the season.

SOLDIERS DEFEAT SAILORS AT RUGBY

GARRISON FIFTEEN SHOWS PROMISE OF BIG THINGS
Twenty-One to Nil Score in Friendly Game—Soccer Players Make Debut With Oval Ball

The Garrison Rugby team staged their initial appearance in this line of sport yesterday, when they played a friendly match with the Navy at the Canteen Grounds, and at the conclusion of the play, the victors triumphed with a score of 21-0 to their credit. From the start it was easily seen which was the better of the two teams, and the Garrison showed their superiority in almost every phase of the game, their opponents being slightly better in the scrum, due to superior weight.

Playing uphill in the first half of the game, the Tommies scored three tries, but were unable to convert, as there were no goal posts. In the second half of the game the Garrison showed up remarkably well and added other four tries to their score, making the total score seven tries to nil.

With the exception of three or four experienced players, the Garrison team consisted of a lot of young blood who are just breaking into the game, and judging by the display they gave yesterday for their first appearance, they certainly prove a whole source of worry to their opponents when the league gets under way. Ward, of the Garrison soccer team, made his first appearance at rugby, and played on the wing in the quarter. This fleetly player scored no less than four of his team's tries. His handling of the ball and his work in general was of high credit to him.

These youngsters, although young to the game, gave a good account of themselves yesterday and with a little more practice they will turn out to be real rugger players. With this victory to their credit the Garrison will rest until Tuesday when they will hold a practice on the Work Point Ground at 4 p.m. All players are requested to attend.

King of Sicalors
Carey, of Pittsburgh, looks like the king of base-stealers with forty-eight, with Grantham, of Chicago, second with forty-three. Carey and young New York, are running a close race for the honors in scoring. The Pittsburgher has counted 113 times, while Young registered 131.

Others leading batters: Balfour, St. Louis, 367; Fournier, Brooklyn, 333; Frisch, New York, 347; Rousch, Cincinnati, 347; Grimm, Pittsburgh, 348; Young, New York, 335; Hargrave, Cincinnati, 334; Traynor, Pittsburgh, 332; Johnston, Brooklyn, 327; Duncan, Cincinnati, 327.

PAPYRUS GETTING DOWN TO HIS WORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Papyrus, English Derby winner, which will race the American thoroughbred Zev, in the $100,000 match at Belmont Park in two weeks, today showed his first flash of speed since arriving in this country. American trainers who watched the workout were impressed with the form displayed by the British three-year-old.

Coming to the end of a three-week-out, Papyrus stepped the first quarter in 24 seconds flat without effort or urging of his exercise boy. The choppy ride, shown in previous gallops, and which had been a source of some criticism, disappeared in this brief "breeze." The colt settled down to a long, rhythmic stride after he had been trotting at a comfortable pace. The time for the mile was 1:40.

Zev, definitely chosen last night by the American Club to carry over the mile in preference to Mr. Own, had a long gallop of a mile and a quarter under restraint in 2:13. The mile was done in fairly fast time, 1:12, but after the third mile and a half hold on the colt for the rest of the workout.

Paul Jarvis, trainer of Papyrus, plans to let him rest for its first real speed test next Tuesday.

RECORD CARIBOU IS KILLED IN CASSIAR
Party From United States Said to Have Killed More Than Hundred, as Well as Other Game

WRANGEL, Alaska, Oct. 6.—A caribou, killed by Mr. D. W. Bell, of Williamsport, Pa., a member of a party from the eastern part of the states that has just arrived here after a big game hunt in the Cassiar country, across the Canadian boundary from Wrangel, was today pronounced by experts the largest specimen ever seen.

The party brought in more than a hundred caribou slain by its members. Many of these caribou were of unusual size. Mr. H. N. Burns, of Boston, killed a moose whose antlers had a spread of 5 1/2 inches.

Renator Robinson, of Mohawk, N.Y., slew three grizzly bears, one of which was ten feet and nine inches long and weighed more than eight hundred pounds.

The caribou obtained by Mr. Bell had antlers with 28 points, and with a spread of 25 1/2 inches and a length of 65 1/2 inches. It was of the Osborn species.

The party came here en route to Seattle on the way home.

ULTIMATE STRATEGY OF GREAT WAR UNFOLDS IN SEA LORD'S BOOK

generals turned to a war of exhaustion and to still more dire attempts to pierce the enemy's front. All the wars of the world could show nothing to compare with the continuous front which had now been established. Ramparts more than 350 miles long, ceaselessly guarded by millions of men, sustained by thousands of cannon, stretched from the Swiss frontier to the North Sea. The Germans had tried in October and November to break through while these lines were still weak and thin. They had failed with heavy losses. The French and British headquarters had still to be instructed in the defensive power of barbed wire and entrenched machine guns.

Continuous Front—Frontal Attacks
For more than forty years frontal attacks had been abandoned on account of the severity of modern fire. In the Franco-German war the great German victories had been won by wide turning movements executed on one flank or the other by considerable forces. In the Russo-Japanese war this method was invariably pursued by the victors. Thus at Liaoyang it was General Kuroki's army which turned the Russian left; and at Mukden General Nogai's army brought specially from Port Arthur turned the Russian right. It was certain that frontal attacks, unaccompanied by turning movements on the flank would be extremely costly and would probably fail. But now, in France and Flanders for the first time in recorded experience there were no flanks to turn. The turning movement, the oldest manoeuvre in war, became impossible. Neutral territory or sea barred all further extension of the front, and the great armies lay glaring at each other at close quarters without any true idea of what to do next.

It was in these circumstances that the French high command, carrying with them the British, turned again to the forlorn expedient of the frontal attack which had been discarded in the bitter experiences of the past. Meanwhile, the power of modern weapons had doubled and trebled since the Russo-Japanese war, and was increasing almost daily. Moreover, the use of barbed wire and the consequent need of prolonged bombardment to destroy it effectually prevented any chance of surprise. There existed at this period no means of taking the offensive successfully in France: the centre could not be pierced, and there were no flanks to turn. Confronted with this deadlock, military art remained dumb: the commanders and their general staffs had no plan except the frontal attack which had led them to their present position. They had no policy except the policy of exhaustion.

Battles Won by Slaughter

No war is so sanguinary as the war of exhaustion. No plan could be more unpromising than the frontal attack. Yet on these two brutal expedients the military authorities of France and Britain consumed, during three successive years, the flower of their national manhood. Moreover, the dull carnage of the policy of exhaustion did not even apply equally to the combatants. The Anglo-French offensives of 1915, 1916 and 1917 were in nearly every instance, and certainly in the aggregate, far more costly to the attack than to the German defence. It was not even a case of exchanging a life for a life. Two, and even three, British or French lives were repeatedly paid for the killing of one enemy, and grim calculations made to prove that in the end the Allies would still have a balance of a few millions to spare. It will appear not only horrible, but incredible to future generations that such doctrine should have been imposed by the military profession upon the ardent and heroic population who yielded themselves to their orders.

It is a tale of torture, mutilation or extinction of millions of men, and of the sacrifice of all that was best and noblest in an entire generation. The crippled, broken world in which we grew to-day is the inheritor of these awful events. Yet all the time there were ways open by which this slaughter could have been avoided and the period of torment curtailed. There were regions where flanks could have been pierced. And these could have been discovered and made mercifully effective not by any departure from the principles of military art, but simply by the true comprehension of those principles and their application to the actual facts.

Battles are won by slaughter and manoeuvre. The greater the general, the more he contributes to manoeuvre, the less he demands of slaughter. The theory which has exalted the "bataille d'usure" or "battle of wearing down" into a foremost position, is contradicted by history and would be repudiated by the great captains of the past. Nearly all the battles which are regarded as masterpieces of the military art, from which have been derived the foundations of states and the fame of commanders, have been battles of manoeuvre in which very often the enemy has found himself defeated by some novel expedient or device, some queer, swift, unexpected thrust of strategy. In many such battles the losses of the victors have been small. There is required for the composition of a great commander not only massed common sense and reasoning power, not only imagination, but also an element of legend, an original and sinister touch, which leaves the enemy puzzled as well as beaten. It is because military leaders are credited with gifts of this order which enable them to ensure victory and save slaughter that their profession is held in such high honor. For if their art were nothing more than a dreary process of exchanging lives, and counting heads at the end, they would rank much lower in the scale of human esteem.

Slaughter or Manoeuvre

There are many kinds of manoeuvre in war, some of which take place upon the battlefield. There are manoeuvres far to the flank or rear. There are manoeuvres in psychology, all of which are removed from the battlefield, but react often decisively upon it, and the object of all is to find easier ways, other than sheer slaughter, of achieving the main purpose. The distinction between politics and strategy diminishes as the point of view is raised.

At the summit true politics and strategy are one. The manoeuvre which brings an ally into the field is as serviceable as that which wins a great battle. The manoeuvre which gains an important strategic point may be less valuable than that which placates or overawes a dangerous neutral. We suffered grievously at the beginning of the war from the want of a common clearing house where these different relative values should be established and exchanged. A single prolonged conference between the allied chiefs, civil and martial, in January, 1915, might have saved us from inestimable misfortune. Nothing could ever be thrashed out by correspondence.

Principals must be brought together and plans concerted in common. Instead each allied state pursued in the main its own course keeping the others more or less informed. The armies and navies dwelt in every country in separate compartments. The war problem which was all one, was tugged at from many different and disconnected standpoints. War, which knows no rigid divisions between French, Russian and British allies, between land, sea and air, between gaining victories and alliances, between supplies and fighting men, between propaganda and machinery, which is, in fact, simply the sum of all forces and pressures operative at a given period, was dealt with piecemeal. And years of cruel teaching were necessary before even imperfect unifications of study, thought, command and action were achieved. Then men of the beginning must not be judged wholly by the light of the end. All had to learn and all had to suffer. But it was not those who learned the slowest who were made to suffer most.

The Mechanical Deadlock

Mechanical not less than strategic conditions had combined to produce at this early period in the war a deadlock on both sea and land. The strongest fleet was paralyzed in its offensive by the menace of the mine and the torpedo. The strongest army was arrested in its advance by the machine gun. On getting into certain positions necessary for offensive action, ships were sunk by underwater explosion and soldiers were cut down by streams of bullets. This was the evil which lay at the root of all our perplexities. It was no use endeavoring to remedy this evil on the sea by keeping the ships in harbor, or on land by squandering the lives and valor of endless masses of men. The mechanical danger must be overcome by a mechanical remedy. Once this was done, both the stronger fleet and the stronger armies would regain their normal offensive rights. Until this was done, both would be tried and tried again, and if we master the fact that this was the crux of the war problem, as it was plainly apparent from the end of 1914 onwards, the next steps in thought will be found equally simple. Something must be discovered which would render ships immune from the torpedo, and make it unnecessary for soldiers to bare their breasts to the machine-gun hail. This very definite evil and ugly fact that a torpedo or mine would blow a hole in the bottom of a ship, and that any one bullet out of countless streams discharged by machinery would fatally pierce the body of a man, was not one which could be ignored. It must be conquered if the war was to progress and victory to be won. The remedy when stated appeared to be so simple that it was for months or even years scouted and disregarded by many of the leading men in both the great fighting professions.

Reduced to its rudiments, it consisted in interposing a thin plate of steel between the side of the ship and the approaching torpedo, or between the body of a man and the approaching bullet.

The Tale of the Tanks

There is one stage in the tale of the tanks to be described, and for this I must considerably anticipate chronology. When I resigned from the cabinet in November, 1915, in circumstances which will be presently related, and joined the army in France, I conceived myself to be the bearer to them of a good gift. On arrival at general headquarters I drew up a paper called "Variations of the Offensive," which was printed for the Committee of Imperial Defence. I laid this before Sir John French, and later before his successor, Sir Douglas Haig.

The first of these variants may be quoted here: "December 3, 1915.—(1) During the Winter both sides will tend to reduce their forces in the front line to a minimum and rely chiefly on wire and machine guns. The problem of crossing a trench without undue loss and in superior force along a considerable front ought not to present insuperable difficulties. For the specific object of protecting men from machine-gun bullets during the short walk from trench to trench, shields are indispensable.

"Composite shields, covering from five to fifteen men and pushed along either on a wheel or, still better, on a caterpillar, should also be used. These can be inspected at Wormwood Scrubs of various types.

"The cutting of the enemy's wire and the general domination of his firing line can be effected by engines of this character. About seventy are now nearing completion in England. They are capable of traversing any ordinary obstacle—ditch, breastwork or trench. They carry two or three maxima each and can be fitted with flame apparatus. Nothing but a direct hit from a field gun will stop them.

Premature Use of Tanks
"If artillery is used to cut wire, the direction and imminence of the attack is proclaimed days beforehand. But by this method the assault follows the wire cutting almost immediately, i.e., before any reinforcements can be brought up by the enemy or any special defensive measures taken."

The scheme of attack by caterpillar vehicles thus unfolded was not put into operation until the first Battle of Cambrai in November, 1917.

The first twenty tanks, in spite of my protests and the far more potent objections of Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George, were providentially exposed to the enemy at the Battle of the Somme. The immense advantage of novelty and surprise was thus squandered while the number of tanks was small, while their condition was experimental and their crews almost untrained.

Nevertheless, the high military authorities of all countries belonged to the same school of thought. The revelation passed unappreciated by the German command.

To General Haig fell the honor of organizing the Battle of Cambrai, which began on November 20, 1917. Had the war continued into 1919, every tank would have possessed the means of making its own smoke, and all operations would have been conducted under clouds of artificial fog. Throughout 1918 they became the eyes of friend and foe alike the great decisive weapon and distinctive feature of the British, French and American offensives.

The essence of the war problem was not changed by its enormous scale. The line of the Central Powers from the North Sea to the Aegean and stretching loosely beyond even to the Suez Canal was after all in principle not different from the line of a small army entrenched across an isthmus with each flank resting upon water. Once the sea-power of Britain was brought into play, turning movements of a most far-reaching character were open to the Allies. These turning movements were so gigantic and so complex that they amounted to whole wars in themselves. They required armies which in any other war would have been considered large, but which, in this power, and they demanded a complete diplomacy of their own.

The Northern Flank
At the very moment when the French high command was complaining that there were no flanks to turn, the Teutonic empires were in fact vulnerable in an extreme degree on either flank. This was the salient fact of the war situation at the beginning of 1915 were: First, the deadlock in France, the main and central theatre; secondly, the urgent need of relieving that deadlock before Russia was overwhelmed; and thirdly, the possibility of relieving it by great amphibious and political-strategic operations on either flank.

Let us, at this point, cast a preliminary glance upon each of the flanks of the battle line. On the northern flank lay a group of small but virile and cultivated peoples. All were under the impression of the German power, and connected with Germany by many ties, but all were acutely conscious that the victory Germany would reduce them to a state of subservience to the conqueror, and all trembled at the fate which had overtaken Belgium, Holland, mobilized and heavily armed, stood on anxious guard of her frontiers. Denmark, through whose territory passed the gateway of the Baltic, was practically defenceless. Norway and Sweden were under the apprehension of Russia not less than of Germany. It would have been wrong to embroil any of these powers with out being able to defend them by sea and land, and to combine their forces. Had it been possible to achieve this, the position of Germany would have become desperate. The Dutch Army was a substantial factor. The Dutch islands offered invaluable strategic advantages to the British Navy. Denmark could open the door of the Baltic to a British fleet, and the command of the Baltic by the Allies would have afforded a means of direct contact with Russia. This would have rendered the blockade absolute, and would have exposed all Northern Germany to the constant menace of Russian invasion by sea.

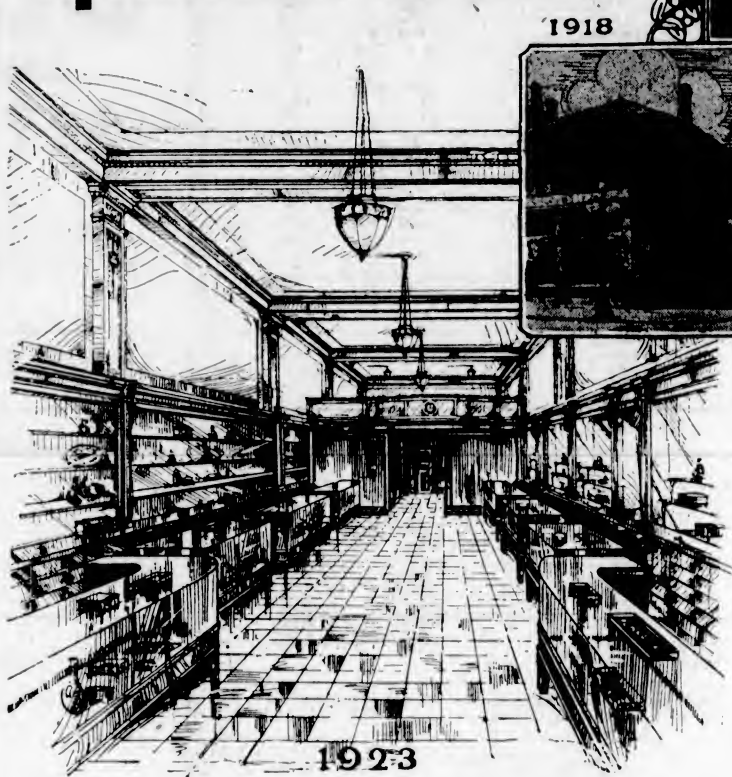

The Southern Flank
Even more remarkable was the aspect of the southern flank. Here Serbia, by heroic exertions, had twice repelled the Austrian invaders. Here a weak, divided, and ill-organized Turkey had lately declared war upon the Allies. These were the warlike states of the Balkan peninsula, namely, Greece, Serbia and Rumania, were divided from the fourth, Bulgaria, by the hatreds of their recent war; but all four were the natural enemies both of Turkey and of Austria and the traditional friends of Britain. Between them these four powers disposed of the organized armies which amounted to nearly 1,200,000 men (Serbia 250,000, Greece 200,000, Bulgaria 300,000, Rumania 350,000); and their total military man-power was of course greater still. They had freed themselves from the Turks after centuries of oppression. They could only expand at the expense of Austria and Turkey. And Turkey, already fighting for her life against Austria, Rumania coveted Transylvania from Austria-Hungary. Bulgaria looked hungrily to Adriatic, to the Euxine, to the Black Sea, and indeed to Constantinople itself, while Greece saw great numbers of her citizens still held down under the Turkish yoke and several of the fairest provinces and islands of the Turkish Empire mainly inhabited by men of Greek blood.

If these four states could be induced to lay aside their intestine quarrels and enter the war together under British guidance against Turkey and Austria, the speedy downfall of the Turk was certain. Turkey would be cut off completely from her allies and forced into a separate peace during 1915. The whole of the forces of the Balkan Confederation could then have been directed against the underbelly of Austria in the following year. If we may consider the fighting forces of the Turkish Empire as the equivalent of 700,000 men, it will be seen that the striking out of this hostile factor, and the simultaneous accession to our strength of new Balkan armies of 1,000,000 men, meant an improvement of our position as against Germany and Austria by nearly one and three-quarter million soldiers. We should have 700,000 soldiers less against us and 1,000,000 more soldiers on our side. The possibility of effecting such a transference of fighting strength was surely a military object of first consequence.

But it was also certain that the breaking up of the Balkan would make the entry into the war of Italy certain. She was the hereditary enemy of Austria. She had immense interests in the Balkan peninsula, in the Turkish Empire, and in the Turkish islands. It seemed highly probable that any decisive or successful action taken by Great Britain in this quarter of the world must draw Italy, with her arm of two-and-a-half millions, directly into the ambit of the Great War. There were, in fact, at the outbreak, two great plans of using sea power to relieve the murderous deadlock in the West. Both aimed at breaking into and eliminating the land-locked waters which guarded the Teutonic flanks. Both would give direct contact with Russia and would rescue our Eastern ally from her deadly isolation. Both would affect in a decisive manner a group of neutral states. Both in proportion, as they succeeded, would open up enormous new drains on the resources of the Teutonic empires. Should we look to Holland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, or to Greece, Bulgaria, and Rumania? Should we strike through the belts at the Baltic, or through the Dardanelles at Constantinople and the Black Sea?

Gossip at the 19th Hole

By Leo Dee

A Ladies' Season

If there ever was a season when golfing was dominated by the ladies, it was the last five weeks, when the ladies have been holding championship events in many parts of Canada and the United States. Nearly the many sectional meets which decided club, city, provincial or state championships, the big air began with the Canadian closed tournament in which several Western contenders took part, the winner being a Toronto lady, Miss Pegler. Following immediately, the Canadian open ladies' championship was staged at Montreal, Miss Genna Collett, then United States champion, carrying off the honors. And now comes the news that Miss Collett has been deprived of her United States title by being defeated in the third round of the tournament by Miss Vanderbeck, who won the title eight years ago.

Victoria Ladies Active

Here also the ladies have been very active in staging club championships and other events, ending up last week with the tournament for the ladies' city championship held on the Oak Bay links. Once more Mrs. Philbrick, by consistent play, proved her right to be considered the premier lady golfer of the city when she defeated Mrs. Parry in the final after disposing of Mrs. Hutchings in the semi-final. Mrs. Parry also won through to the final by a steady game that her opponents found too strong to overcome. Her defeat of Miss Kintoch, of the Uplands Club, last year runner-up to Mrs. Paterson in the championship tourney, was noteworthy, by generously admitting the superior play of the champion, possibly Mrs. Parry has contributed to her own defeat—a matter of psychology. Mrs. Paterson, last year's champion, and one of the city's most prominent contenders for golfing honors, did not defend her title in this tournament.

Retribution is Sure

After congratulating himself on finding a perfectly good two-dollar bill in his hip pocket—nothing else, fellows—one of golf's most devoted adherents is feeling quite gloomy since a chance meeting with the genial secretary of the Uplands Club recently, when the gentle reminder resulted in a transfer of ownership of the above-mentioned bill.

Another Hope Gone

Colwood players will learn with regret the loss of a promising player, and one of the younger members, Harold Lineham, who has decided to try his fortune in Seattle. No player in the city has a finer tee shot or snapper iron stroke than Harold. Lately he developed a chip shot to the pin that is very accurate, and with another year's experience to steady his game, would have been found close to the top amongst the city stars. Victoria can ill afford to lose this young member from their golfing value—but when the opportunity for advancement in a chosen profession is not there, the only alternative is to move, and that is why there are so many Canadians in U. S. A.

Indoor Play

Though the grounds be buried in snow, Chicago golf fans will not be without a semblance of play this winter, as the biggest indoor golf school in the country is located there. Presided over by Bob McDonald, a leading professional player, a miniature course of eighteen holes has been built on the sixth floor of the Leiter building. The playing area is so large that the golfer can use every club in his bag, but full drives must pass through a hole in a canvas to be perfect, otherwise they drop into traps.

A Valuable Club

Among the personal effects of the late President Harding will be found the driver used by Gene Sarazen when he won the national open championship at Skokie. Gene made a special call on the President to make the presentation.

No Flash

The defeat of Walter Hagen in the final of the championships recently by Gene Sarazen proves conclusively that Sarazen is a real golfer and not as many predicted, a mere incident. True, for some time during last winter and spring, following his win at Skokie, the youngster seemed to crack, but many think this was because he became overconfident on account of the tremendous amount of laudation given him by the press, his friends and the golfing public generally—enough to turn anyone's head. That phase having passed, Sarazen is now down to business, playing like a real champion.

The Elk Lake Links

Although not publicly announced, for some time it has been known that the City Council, in their scheme for developing the Elk Lake watershed, has included in its appropriation a sum sufficient to lay out and construct a nine-hole course on this property. On the authority of one of the councilmen the statement can be taken at face value. The course, designed by Mr. A. V. Macdonald, has already been surveyed and work is well advanced on its construction. As pointed out previously in these notes, these links can be of value to city golfers generally only in so far as arrangement is made for cheap and regular transportation. There is no doubt the many tourists using the highway will play on the course, and this business will increase. For that reason alone it is the duty of the Council to provide the very best possible in the way of an up-to-date golf course. At the same time I cannot refrain from expressing my regret that the city overlooked the opportunity of a lifetime to secure a real location for a municipal golf course when it rejected the offer of Hudson's Bay property, now occupied by the Uplands Golf Club.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—Salt Lake took the fifth game of the series with Los Angeles today, 4 to 2.

PORTLAND, Oct. 6.—Only one game was played of today's scheduled double-header between Vernon and Portland, and it was abbreviated to a five-inning affair that was stopped by rain just after Pitcher Pile, of Vernon, had forced in the winning run in the eighth half of the fifth. The inning never was completed, for with two out and Cox at bat, the score two to one for Portland, and three on base, Umpire Ward called "Time."

WEDNESDAY SOCCER

Four Teams Already Entered for the League—Fitz's Probably Will Be Fifth—Meeting Tomorrow

The Wednesday Football League, which last year proved to be one of the best soccer leagues operated in this city for many a season, should be every bit as interesting this year, and with a probability of five teams competing for the Pandey Cup, emblematic of the league championship, the soccer fans should be treated to plenty of excitement during the coming season. The league will meet at the Y.M.C.A. on Monday night, at eight o'clock, when all teams are requested to have a delegate present, as it is the intention of the officials to try and start the league as soon as possible.

Up to the present time four teams are sure of competing, namely: Garrison, Hudson's Bay, Broad Street and the United Bakers. The last-mentioned team known their intention to enter the league to the secretary last week, and with four teams sure of entering there is nothing to hinder the league from going ahead. Fitz's, last year's champions, are also expected to enter, but it is felt they are not quite sure whether or not they will be able to raise a team, and any player who is anxious to play midweek soccer can do so by signing up with last year's champions.

Christendom the World Over

A Weekly Review of Religious News

A Builder of Lives

Without doubt the best known and most experienced worker among boys on the continent, and a familiar name among the friends of boys on the Coast since his visitation here three years ago among the Canadian Rotary Clubs, is C. J. Atkinson, who was the guest of honor of the triennial reunion last month of the "Old Boys" of Broadway Boys Institute, Toronto, of which he was the founder and superintendent. The story of this wizard of work among boys reads like a fairy tale, from the time he was an instructor of incorrigible boys at Mimico Industrial School to his present position as head of the Boys' Federation of America, with headquarters at New York. His organization backed by some of the wealthiest and most influential men of the United States.

First, some street arabs brought into a Toronto East End Sunday school, doubling in number every week under their enthusiastic leader, who took them to camp when boys' camps were a luxury. Then a splendid building set in a five-acre field, bought for $10,000 when "C.J." hadn't as much as a shoestring to put up for cash payment. But St. Theresa's Hospital was built with a shilling, for "Theresa plus one shilling, plus God, can build a hospital." Likewise the friends of boys had faith in God and power over wealthy men. When money was most scarce he worked a few hours each day at his trade as a printer; then back to his real job.

A Great Achievement

In this bustling boys' centre thousands of boys have received training in manhood—by indoor and outdoor athletics, a Boys' Parliament, a complete civic system (even a police court as the self-disciplinary method), the largest winter skating rink in Toronto, manual training, Bible study and Fall Fair, which just held its twenty-second session. Of this training school of manhood C. J. Atkinson was the indefatigable master mind. He completely changed the East End, which before his coming had furnished most of the boys for the police and juvenile courts. Shortly after the Institute was taken over by the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Atkinson moved nearer the centre of the city in order to help the underprivileged downtown boys, among whom his work through the Boys' Dominion has done incalculable good. Now, as executive head of the Federated Boys' Clubs of America, he is still as enthusiastically influential in the work of building lives, which, he affirms, is infinitely more satisfactory than the building of fortunes.

A Roman Catholic Saint in Film

A motion picture was recently exhibited before the nuns of Carmel of Lisleux, France, one of the most secluded of religious retreats. The film presented the life story of St. Therese of the Child Jesus, a former prioress of Carmel, who was recently raised to beatification within twenty-five years of her death, which took place at the early age of twenty-one years. The story of this saintly young girl, who obtained permission of the Pope to take the vows when only sixteen years of age, is well known in the Catholic world, by which she has been affectionately called the "Little Flower." Marvellous cures following the exhibition of her remains led to her being made a saint of the church so soon after her death.

Church Losses in Japan

The preliminary estimates of the loss of mission property in Japan puts the figure at four and a half million dollars. The Episcopalians' loss is estimated at $750,000, the Roman Catholics at $450,000, various Bible societies $75,000, and Canadian Methodists $200,000. The latter body give a special offering today for Japan.

For the national cathedral at Washington, D.C., the Episcopalians have already contributed four million dollars, the apex stone of the great structure on Mount St. Alban having been completed. Surrounding the foundation and apex are national cathedral schools for boys and girls, a library which is to be made the most complete religious library in America, and an amphitheatre accommodating 25,000 persons.

The programme for last Sunday as Rally Day of the Sunday schools in Canada was prepared by a joint committee of the Sunday school boards of the Baptist, Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian churches.

Matriculants in a Penitentiary
Six young men, serving time in the Manitoba penitentiary, are preparing for the university under the direction of Wesley College, Winnipeg. Four of them wrote successfully on a partial matriculation examination. The report to the government of Col. Cooper, former warden, speaks appreciatively of the college's assistance and its valuable contribution to the lives of the prisoners.

Royalty Mending Roads

Approve of the application of Abyssinians for entrance into the League of Nations, Dr. Tom Lambie, of the United Presbyterian Mission in Abyssinia, commends the spirit of Haile Selassie, the present ruler. In order to induce his people to build roads he went out with a large procession and carried along with each of the workers from the bed of the Kubbana River.

The Deaf Hear

Several young ladies of one of the larger local congregations have undertaken to interpret the service to the deaf people who attend. Services for the deaf are held in a number of the larger centres on this continent. There is a congregation of deaf in Toronto, and a Methodist church for the deaf in Chicago, in which city the Episcopalians provide a religious service through St. Andrew's Silent Mission of Trinity Church. The Lutheran denomination has in many large cities a church for the deaf. The acousticon is aiding those who can only partially hear in joining in the service.

Church Union at Work

Articles explanatory of the constitution of the United Church and of the history of the movement are being published in The Methodist Christian Guardian, and The Presbyterian Witness. Joint meetings of Methodist district meetings and Presbyterian presbyteries are being held, principally in the Western Prairie Provinces. Plans are afoot in Saskatchewan for making district and presbytery boundaries coterminous. In this province the provincial joint union committee has arranged for conferences in fifteen centres. A nation-wide series of meetings is being planned for education on the issues involved and for the deepening of the spiritual life.

B. C. News Notes

A provincial committee of the Young Women's Christian Association was organized last week in Victoria, with Mrs. C. J. Peter as president and Mrs. W. H. Leckie as secretary, both of Vancouver.

Rev. Kenneth Cameron and Rev. A. M. Renwick, ministers of the Free Church Highland congregations in Scotland, are on the Coast conducting services for their Gaelic brethren.

Westminster Hall, the Presbyterian theological college for British Columbia, has changed its session from Summer to Winter, and has begun work. This college, along with the Methodists and Anglicans, are co-operating in their teaching staff.

It is likely that Dr. John Keimman, who succeeded D. J. H. Jowett in Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, will be called to St. Andrew's, Fribourg, London.

Following the healing pulpit of Mr. Hickson in Australia, the Archbishop of Melbourne (Dr. Harrison) conducted a service in the cathedral with the laying on of hands on the sick. He said it was the purpose of the Church of England in Australia to continue the work of healing.

Dr. James Black, pastor of St. George's United Free Church of Edinburgh, brother and successor of St. George's of Dr. Hugh Black, now of Union Theological Seminary, New York, is giving lectures at Princeton and Amherst Colleges.

The Patriarch of Jerusalem, as the head of the Orthodox Greek Church in Palestine, is protector of the holy places, dear to all Christians. The chief of them are the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem, and the Church of the Annunciation in Nazareth. He is appealing for aid for maintenance, the revenues for this purpose from church lands and endowments having been almost wiped out by the war.

Count Pahlen, well known in the former court circles in Petrograd, governor of various provinces, and at one time a personal adviser of Queen Alexandra, is a devoted Christian and head of a Bible Institute for Russians in Wernigerode, Germany. It is the result of a religious movement among the twenty Russian camps in Germany during and since the war. Already 400 Russians have been prepared in the school for work in their own land.

Miss Mammie G. Fraser, editor of The Missionary Messenger, the official organ of the Canadian Presbyterian Woman's Missionary Society, which has the second largest subscription list of any missionary magazine in the world, and Miss Jean Houston, editor of the largely circulated East and West, were visiting delegates of the Women's Peace Club, which recently visited the Coast.

Men Who Gained By Enterprise

Here and there are people who do things differently. They apparently take enough time off to get out of the beaten path and, looking around, decide that there's an opening for better work.

Just a few cases in Western Ontario to illustrate the point and they are all from the rural sections, showing that initiative is not the exclusive property of people in the cities.

Here is a school teacher near Brigid. He decided that he would raise chickens that would lay eggs, and was emphatic in his belief that he would keep just one kind. People told him that he would lose money, more money than he would make; so with this assurance he went ahead. He has about 15 acres, grows corn for feed and alfalfa for the chickens to run in. There can be no idlers around his premises, for he uses the trap nest and culls out the poor layers. Last year he averaged 280 eggs per White Wyandotte, and his books showed that each chicken made a profit of $3. He now has 2,300 in his bird family. He aims at 5,000, and will probably quit teaching school.

Near Inwood is a farmer who decided to take a chance on sugar beets. He rented 100 acres that had been in pasture for years, for which he pays $700 rental. The seed and labor is supplied by the sugar beet factories. His crop, planted in the sod land, held the moisture, and is in good shape. It ought to go from $50 to $85 per acre, and his costs will be around $1,300. This will be a good year for him.

Just one more, a former Londoner, a candy maker who tired of constant indoor work. He got a farm, 100 acres, and leased 65 of those acres on shares. This year he grew early tomatoes and got them on the market when they were still selling by the pound. He says he will make $500 on them alone, and his melons are also making money. In his spare time he started to make candy and sold it to the neighbors; the neighbors liked it and told the stores in town. So he made more and supplies four or five towns and the trade still grows. He is outdoors most of the time, delivers his candy and other produce from the same truck, and is making a good, independent living.

Now, of course, you may say that these are exceptional cases. Perhaps they are, but they are also finger points and thought provokers for those who want to apply them.—London Advertiser.

All owners of motor vehicles, whether passenger automobiles or commercial cars, motorcycles or motor-bicycles, in the state of Pennsylvania, must possess formal proof of legal title for real estate before November 25. The law will prevent the sale of stolen motor vehicles in the state.

To keep policemen in touch with central office when tracing criminals, several automobiles used by the flying squad of the Scotland Yard criminal investigation department in London are now equipped with radio sets.

The Mysterious Letter

THAT PUT MORE APPETIZING FOODS ON 2,000,000 TABLES

ONE morning some years ago the postman brought us a puzzling letter. It came from a scientist in Warrington, England, who said, in effect: "I have a method in which you will be interested." That was all—he gave no real clue to his meaning. However, we replied: "If you are ever in the United States come to see us."

Some months later he did come and explained the idea whose development by us was to effect sweeping changes in cooking methods. We employed him and through several long years we perfected, by more than 1000 experiments, the method which gave to the world a new, remarkable cooking ingredient.

This ingredient was a rich, creamy shortening made from the pure sweet oils of growing plants. Here, for the first time, was a single shortening which not only filled every shortening need—every cake making, baking and frying purpose, but actually improved the cooking results.

New delicate flavors from food

Experienced cooks welcomed Crisco as a new aid to their skill because it instantly revealed new delights in food flavors. They discovered that with Crisco the fine, natural flavors of foods asserted themselves, undisguised, as formerly, by the flavor of the shortening.

For you, as for a multitude of other women, Crisco deep frying will retain all the delicate, natural flavors just as if these flavors were imprisoned in air tight cases. Crisco puts such a quick brown seal on fried foods that the flavors can't get out and neither can the Crisco soak in.

To your muffins, to your biscuits and other hot breads, Crisco will lend the same delicious flavors achieved by many of our most noted cooks—the rich, natural flavors of the ingredients.

Friends by the million and what they say

To keep sympathetically in touch with home cooking we often send out women who chat with housekeepers about culinary problems. Among the most thoughtful housekeepers these investigators find an almost universal preference for Crisco. Some of the following varied and interesting reasons for this preference may be new to you:

"Because it is a pure, wholesome, vegetable shortening, not an animal fat," say many women.

"Because it stays sweet and fresh indefinitely; need not be kept in the ice-box," say others.

"I prefer Crisco because, after straining, you can use it again and again. Why, you can fry onions, then fish and then potatoes in Crisco and the potatoes will not even hint of the onions or fish," is one comment often heard.

Made in Hamilton. Sold throughout Canada.
Without a doubt you can achieve in your own home the same delicious cooking results that husbands and children are enjoying in 2,000,000 other homes. Ask your grocer for a tin of Crisco today; try it in the recipe given below, or use it in your own favorite recipes without any bothersome change of method.

Chocolate Layer Cake
Coffee

The above menu for a buffet supper was sent to us by Mrs. L. R., a young hostess who entertains charmingly. Mrs. R.'s recipe for chocolate layer cake is given below:

Mrs. R's CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE

1 cup sugar
1/2 cup Crisco
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoonful vanilla
2 eggs
2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
2 cups milk
2 cups flour

Cream the Crisco, then add the sugar and cream again. Add the eggs, well beaten, then the milk slowly, stirring all the time. Add the vanilla.

Sift together the flour, salt and baking powder. Add to the mixture, stir until smooth and bake in two layers about 20 minutes in a hot oven.

FILLING for Chocolate Layer Cake

1/2 lb. Baker's Chocolate
1 cup sugar
1 cup milk
1 cup flour
1/2 cup water
2 cups sugar
2 cups milk
2 cups flour

Put the Chocolate in double boiler and cook until melted, then add the sugar, Crisco and water. Cook until thoroughly blended. Mix the corn starch and milk together and add to the hot mixture heating all the time. Cook until thick, add vanilla, then spread on cake, while both are warm. This filling will not soak into the cake or become hard or stiff.

The Crisco Cook Book

THIS remarkable cook book, written by Marion Harris Neil, formerly cooking editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, contains 350 tested recipes answering the daily puzzle, "What shall we have for dinner tonight?" Practical suggestions for choosing meats, fish, fowl and game. Time-table showing just how long to cook various foods. Special sections on soups, vegetables, salads, puddings, breads, eggs and the art of carving. 128 pages of practical culinary information. This book would cost at least 25c in any book store but you can get it free by mailing in the wrapper from one tin of Crisco. Simply fill in the coupon at the right and mail together with the outside wrapper from a Crisco tin.

For easy digestion, say doctors, a fat should have a melting point near body temperature of 98° degrees. This pure vegetable shortening melts at 97° degrees—even below body temperature. Yes, it is very digestible.

Avoid Smoke and Unpleasant Odor

Fry with this fat and keep your home fresh and free from unpleasant odors that detract from the charm of hospitality. Tests made by the Domestic Science Department of a university showed that this fat could be heated to 440 degrees without smoking while the most commonly used animal fat smoked at 375 degrees.

Many Opportunities Offered to Inventors

There is a very curious and interesting book being now slowly compiled in the offices of the Institute of Patentees in London. When it is finished it will be a fairly complete record of the inventions that ought to be made with as little delay as possible. It will be a guide and perhaps an inspiration for professional inventors, for it appears that there are numerous people who have a special gift for inventing and make a living by it just as there are persons with a special gift for painting or mimicry. Moreover, this gift is not confined to a single field. A man may invent a mouse trap one year, and a bullet-proof cloth the next. He can hardly invent to order, but to find out the invention which is most in demand is highly important. Invention is often wasted because it results in the invention of something for which there is no demand. For example, a local inventor had a device which would prevent one accidentally putting more than a single ticket at a time in the conductor's box, and he actually had the idea he could sell it to the former general manager of the Toronto Railway Company.

Wells' suggestion

The book is the idea of Sir William Bull, Bt., for many years a member of Parliament and an honorary vice-president of the Patentees' Institute since its foundation. At the last annual dinner he said that a list of things that needed inventing would be extremely valuable to inventors, and he suggested a few of them. Later on he wrote to H. G. Wells asking him for a list, but Mr. Wells was too busy to give the matter consideration, though he said that Sir William was at liberty to make use of the numerous suggestions for inventions that are to be found scattered through his books. Other authorities were asked and they made a few suggestions. In this way the book is growing, and of its 200 pages ten have been filled. Anyone is invited to enter the office and make out his list, for Sir William remarks, "It may be that an idea written in this book will give a flash of inspiration to an inventor which will alter the history of the world," and the idea is just as likely to be suggested by the man in the street as a distinguished scientist.

On List

Here is Sir William's own list:
"1. A glass that will bend.
"2. A smooth road surface that will not be slippery in wet weather.
"3. A furnace that will conserve 95 per cent of the heat it generates.
"4. A noiseless airplane.
"5. A noiseless gun.
"6. An airplane that can be easily and safely managed by a boy or girl.
"7. A process that will make flammable unshrinking.
"8. A motor engine of one pound weight per horsepower.
"9. A key that will not lose its identification.
"10. A method of reducing friction.
"11. A simple and effective method of utilizing the power of the tides.
"12. A process of extracting phosphorus from vulcanized India rubber so that it can be boiled up and used again.
"13. A pipe that can be easily and effectively cleaned.
"14. A temperance drink that will keep and yet will not pall on the palate.
"15. A cinema film that will speak."

Domestic Inventions

Professor F. M. Baker, another British scientist, is the next to commit his requests to "What's Wanted." His requests are dated August 11:
"1. A wire connector, i.e., an arrangement for allowing for expansion and contraction in signal wires.
"2. An improved fog signal, preferably of cab signal type.
"3. A domestic cooking range which usefully applies a reasonably large percentage of its heat. (N.B. Domestic inventions are the most fruitful field for inventors who have not specialized.)
"4. A fire-grate, giving the open-fire effect without wasting the major part of its fuel.
"5. A wireless loud speaker free from the gramophone effect.
"6. A motor headlight that will light the road surface without dazzling the eyes of approaching motorists or pedestrians.
"7. A means whereby a ship's officers can inform themselves of the position, speed and direction of approaching ships.
"8. Improved ship's davits."

A Local Idea

Another man of some science asks for a method of utilizing atomic energy, a greatly simplified clothing "not strange in appearance," a cheap house warmer that can be fired by anyone, a new game of skill, a method of conveying speech direct and readably to paper, improved methods of electrical storage and power transmission, and a process of instantaneous color photography. Still another demands a method of removing old paint without the use of fire, and a horseshoe that will enable a horse to keep its feet on smooth surface roads. A plan by means of which house refuse can be destroyed easily and cheaply at home. We recall a Toronto gentleman who thought one of the greatest needs of civilization was for a domestic animal, for fable purposes, that should be in size halfway between a sheep and a rabbit, so that it could be consumed by a farmer and his family at a single meal and would thus help solve his food problem. With the exception of the utilization of atomic energy there is not a suggested invention on the list that would seem to present nearly as many difficulties as have been conquered by scientists in the past.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

CANADA'S MINERAL RICHES

In a leading editorial The Toronto Globe asserts with confidence that "Canada is entering on a new period of mineral development which, like the expansion of the pulp and paper industry, is giving the country a timely life over the stale of post-war reaction. The increase in the output of gold, copper and nickel especially is almost sensational, and has an element of permanency that is highly reassuring for the future. The mines are destined to play a part in the progress of the country more important than has been anticipated, and more immediate in results." The Globe bases its conclusions on the report recently issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics which has a cheerful significance. One of the most encouraging features is the revival of nickel production, which particularly concerns Ontario. Virtually all Canadian nickel is mined in Ontario, the output reaching the maximum during the war. In 1913 the yield was 49,676,772 pounds, valued at $14,902,632. It rose rapidly to 92,567,233 pounds in 1918 valued at $37,002,917, but the close of the war brought a slump which was keenly felt in the Sudbury district. The quantity mined dropped to 44,544,883 pounds in 1919, and to 17,496,490 pounds last year, valued at $6,123,771. But the world market for the metal is becoming normal again. The production for the first six months of the present year was 27,071,426 pounds, or nearly seven times greater than in the corresponding period of 1922. The smelters and refiners of the two nickel corporations operating in the Canadian field have also been reopened. Copper tells a similar story. Gold is almost keeping pace with nickel and copper in the rate of increase, and has surpassed them in value. Even silver is holding its own. "All the statistics," adds The Globe, "show that the great primary industries of Canada, based on the resources of the soil, the mines, the forest and the fisheries, are essentially sound, and made a foundation of almost inexhaustible natural wealth upon which the prosperity of

ADDRESSED BOYS ON VIRTUE OF COURTESY

Lecture Given by Mr. W. G. Gaunce at the University School on Friday Night

Visitors and the boys of University School listened, Friday night, to a lecture given by Mr. W. G. Gaunce, who took for his subject the well-nigh forgotten virtue, "Courtesy." Starting out by remarking that he probably owed the privilege of speaking in that place to his reputation for brevity, the speaker proceeded to contrast the cultural qualities, such as gallantry and affability, with that essential expression of a right true heart, courtesy. "Courtesy," he said, "is poetry; it is religion between man and man, boy and boy; a virtue that the mind will not express where the heart does not dictate. Courtesy's mission in the world is to make men and boys look up, laugh, love and uplift."

The audience were convulsed by the accounts of the wretched buildings and appointments of the school of his day and how delinquents used to be caged into a triangle of rude benches and summarily dealt with by a ferocious usher armed with an immense cane.

"Great heart and great brain," he said, "are capable of grand achievements, not necessarily in pulling down world's big plums, but in every day intercourse in making one's fellows laugh and love. Canadian boys had matchless opportunity of building up a fine, healthy body in this great out-of-door land, but they must not forget to build up the heart as well. Continuing, the speaker recalled the wise motto of Tom Brown at Eton: 'Never thrash a boy smaller than yourself but never run from a bigger one.'"

Lack of courtesy between labor and capital, nation and nation, had flooded the world in blood and law. "It is reported of Adam, that his first act on exit from the Garden of Eden was to arm himself with a club. Masters, parents, bishops, kings, all had been armed with clubs, but the death knell of force had sounded and the day was upon them when courtesy should reign in the hearts of humanity."

MADE INSPECTION OF ANCIENT DRAWINGS

About thirty members of the Natural History Society and the Historical Society had a very interesting visit to Beecher Bay yesterday afternoon. The object of the trip was to inspect the rock pictures there which are supposed by students to date back many many centuries.

On the west side of the bay on a sloping rock there stands out distinctly in the granite formation a crude portrayal of a whole man, whose measures about six feet six inches in length, two feet three inches in depth, and with a tail measuring about seventeen and a half inches in width. Eleven inches from the tail the outline shows a width of about five and a half inches.

On the east side, about fifty feet away, on a vertical rock is the outline of a head or a sea lion. This is eleven feet three inches in length, two feet eleven inches in depth at its widest point. About the neck are three bands. One of these is parallel and the third being bowed. The neck is fourteen and a half inches in width. There are also lines indicating in a crude way the mouth. The lines which form the outline in the rock, which have evidently been cut into the rock by hammering hard pebbles into it, are from three-quarters to seven-eighths of an inch in width. This was evidently filled with paint at one time, as particles of the paint still remain in the grooves. In some others of the tracings on this coast colored palms are clearly seen, having withstood the elements and the wear of the waves.

The members of the party learned of another of these native drawings at Beecher Head, in which two deer are traced. They are situated about midway on a perpendicular cliff rising eighty feet in height from the sea shore. A visit will be paid to it later, the trip necessitating going by water on account of its location.

DURABILITY OF CONCRETE

There is now ample proof in the world that concrete provides a sound material of very good durability. Many structures have been built which have stood sufficiently long to prove that their life will be excellent. After many years of existence they show no signs of deterioration, and give promise of permanency equivalent, at least, to anything constructed by man, and superior to many of his other efforts. In all conscience, a great deal is expected of the material, and its success in the wide range of work to which it is applied is really rather astonishing. In its use in buildings, although exposed intermittently to sun, rain and frost on one side, and to a relatively dry atmosphere and stable temperature on the other, it is perhaps exposed to the least trying conditions we expect it to meet. Many choice building stones fall under these circumstances. We submerge concrete in almost any clean water, salt or fresh, and employ it for structures alternately submerged and exposed often to excessive heat or frost. We expect it to defy erosion and attrition action, and want it to be impermeable, though many of our ordinary construction materials fall short in these respects. In roads we are applying it in a manner in which it has to comply with very difficult requirements. Road slabs have to withstand all kinds of bending as well as impact, and other destructive forces. The sun arches them in summer, frost curls them up in winter. The surface may be hot and dry soon after a short period of curing, the bottom may remain moist indefinitely. Maturing and contraction take place at different rates throughout the depth, while in prolonged frost the subsoil may freeze and movements of all kinds may take place. All things considered, it is surprising, not that we have some failures, but that on the whole concrete serves us so well.—Engineering

WILL CONCENTRATE ON VANCOUVER BRANCH

Mr. J. N. Harvey Decides to Withdraw From Local Clothing Firm—May Sell as Going Concern

Mr. J. N. Harvey, head of the clothing firm that bears his name, was in the city recently. The object of his visit was one that Victorians will regret, having for its purpose the withdrawal of Mr. Harvey from Victoria in order that he may concentrate all his efforts upon the Vancouver branch of the business, which he finds requires the fullest share of his attention.

It is not without regrets on the part of Mr. Harvey that he has decided upon this move, for, as he stated to a Colonist reporter, the outlook for business is good here and the Victoria branch has been a very satisfactory one. It is more than likely that while Mr. Harvey feels it necessary to withdraw from the local store, the business will in all likelihood be carried on under new owners, who may take over the stock as a going concern. Mr. Harvey spoke in the most flattering way of the local staff which has conducted the business, with Mr. R. B. Price as manager.

In spite of the fact that he feels that it is advisable to concentrate on the one business, Mr. Harvey's faith in the tourist business as an adjunct to trade here in Victoria was of the most enthusiastic type. He feels that the fringes of this business only have been touched as yet, and he is a firm advocate of the closest co-operation in this line between Victoria and Vancouver.

A stock-reducing sale is to be initiated at once by Mr. Harvey's company.

"After very careful consideration our directors have reached the conclusion that the interests of our company would be best served by closing the Victoria business and concentrating in Vancouver," said Mr. J. N. Harvey.

"We regret exceedingly pulling out of Victoria just at the present time, but our experience in the new stand in Vancouver, where we have the whole building, has led us to the conclusion that by concentrating our efforts and resources there we can double our turnover and cut the overhead in two."

"I certainly have no reason to lose faith in Victoria; we have come safely through the readjustment period and the business is on a paying basis, and in addition July, which is usually an ordinary summer business month, has through the tremendous increase in tourist trade been turned into a really profitable month, showing in Victoria an increase in excess of 40 per cent over last year."

"Regarding our business here, we have found that the people of this city demand good merchandise. We have always endeavored to meet them in this, and they have shown their appreciation by their loyalty to the store. The only reason we have for closing this store is to concentrate on a bigger effort in Vancouver. The store will be closed on Friday all day in preparation for a sale to open Saturday morning. After the stock has been reduced to the minimum, we will then remove the balance to Vancouver, or sell as a going concern."

Old-timers in Victoria will recall that this business was established by B. Williams & Company in 1881, was taken over by the Harvey Company (who were already established in Vancouver) in the Spring of 1911, and ever since then has been under the active management of Mr. R. B. Price.

Six Huge Truckloads "Our Own Brand" Butter Loaded for Shipment to Liverpool

"Our Own Brand" Butter Invades European Market

When the Royal Mail Packet steamers sailed from Vancouver to Liverpool last month they carried in refrigeration 175,000 pounds of "Our Own Brand" Butter, and these are the first shipments of Butter made from Western Canada to Europe via Panama Canal.

Known for quality and sold in huge quantities in Western Canada, "Our Own Brand" Butter will now make its presence felt in Europe in competition with the best Danish products.

"Our Own Brand" Butter Is Great Prize Winner

The delicate texture, the high quality and consistency of flavor contained in our butter have annexed for us one long series of prizes and gold medals—too many to enumerate—at exhibitions in various provinces of Canada. Merit alone has obtained for it entrance to most of the Western homes and the foremost position on the shelves of Western Grocers and Butchers.

TRAVELING HEALTH OFFICER SPEAKS

Address Under Auspices of Cowichan Health Centre and Women's Institute Given at Duncan

DUNCAN, Oct. 6.—Dr. Lamb, traveling medical health officer and specialist in tuberculosis, who has been visiting Duncan in his tour of the Province, gave an address at a public meeting held in the Cowichan Women's Institute rooms, Duncan, on Wednesday afternoon, his subject being "Tuberculosis." The meeting was held under the auspices of the Cowichan Health Centre and the Cowichan Women's Institute, the chair being taken by Mrs. Moss, O.B.E., president of the Health Centre committee.

Dr. Lamb, who was appointed some two months ago as traveling medical health officer, in order to further the campaign of the Provincial Health Department against disease, in the carrying out of his duties explained simply and clearly the causes, symptoms and curative treatment of tuberculosis. He stated that tuberculosis was essentially a disease that could be overcome by treatment, and its victims could live to reach old age, if they would place themselves in a doctor's hands at the first symptoms and carry out necessary precautions. His address was followed with interest, and many questions were asked. At the conclusion of the address, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Dr. Lamb.

On Thursday morning a clinic was held at Dr. Watson's office, at which Dr. Lamb made examinations and gave advice.

PORT ALBERNI NOTES

PORT ALBERNI, Oct. 4.—In the prosecution by the city of C. E. Bate, of Nanaimo, for selling automobiles in this town without the necessary licence, on Tuesday, the magistrate fined defendant $50 together with $21 costs. An appeal may be taken.

The Alberni volunteer fire brigade will hold its annual dance in Clarke's Hall, Alberni, on Halloween.

A meeting will be held on Friday afternoon in the public school for the purpose of forming a Parent-Teachers Association.

The Girl Guides' Association is inaugurating a series of what drives to be held each Thursday evening in the G. W. V. A. Hall, commencing at 8 o'clock.

MOUNT NEWTON SOCIAL CLUB

SAANICHTON, Oct. 6.—The Mount Newton Social Club held their first card party of the season on Wednesday evening, with a large number of members present. Those winning first prizes were Mrs. Hall, Miss Scott, Mr. Salmon and Mr. E. Roehon. A season prize will be given to the person having the highest score, the final game to be played on December 26. The next card party will be held on October 17, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

ANNUAL SAANICH BALL PROVES SUCCESSFUL

SAANICHTON, Oct. 6.—The fourth annual agricultural ball, held last night in the Agricultural Hall, under the auspices of the directors of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society, was a great success, about two hundred guests being present.

The hall had been elaborately decorated with flags and bunting, and Heston's four-piece orchestra supplied splendid music.

The supper-room was in charge of the lady directors, and their reputation as fine caterers was fully justified by the supper served last night. Dancing was kept up until 2 o'clock in the morning.

NANAIMO NOTES

NANAIMO, Oct. 6.—At a special meeting of the Local Council of Women held yesterday afternoon, Mrs. John Thompson was elected a delegate to the Provincial meeting in Victoria next week.

A motor truck owned by Mr. J. Newton, and a touring car collided at the intersection of Wallace and Westworth Streets yesterday morning, both cars being considerably damaged.

Mr. H. Motilshaw reported to the police last evening that while driving along Halliburton with a Chevrolet truck, he struck a rig driven by Mr. J. Gregory. The horse was injured about the neck and Mr. Gregory was slightly dazed. The buggy was wrecked and the truck also damaged. Mr. Motilshaw stated that he was confused by the lights of an approaching automobile.

The members of the Orange Lily Lodge held a pleasant whist drive last evening, at which prizes were won by the following: Mrs. Hindmarsh, Mrs. J. Wilson, Mr. Little, Mr. A. R. Kilbey, Mr. C. Horne and Mr. J. Bell.

WEST SAANICH W.I.

KEATING, Oct. 6.—The regular monthly meeting of the West Saanich Women's Institute will be held on Tuesday afternoon, October 9, when all members are requested to be present. On Wednesday afternoon the Institute will have an exhibition of women's work. Afternoon tea will be served by the members, and a delightful programme of music will be given. In the evening a game of

WATER RATES IMPASSE

DUNCAN, Oct. 6.—The North Cowichan municipal council does not approve of the city council's new water rates by-law, under which the city proposes to charge consumers in North Cowichan substantially higher water rates than to their own citizens. The matter has been taken up through the municipal solicitor, and an effort will be made to prevent the approval by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council of the city's by-law in its present shape.

CANNOT VISIT DUNCAN

DUNCAN, Oct. 6.—The following letter, under a New York date line, was received yesterday by Mayor Smythe:

"I very much regret the time at Mr. Lloyd George's disposal during his visit to the United States and Canada will not permit him to pay a visit to Duncan. Mr. Lloyd George is sorry for this and requests me to ask you to convey to the Duncan City Council and Board of Trade his warm appreciation of their kind invitation.—S. Cope."

Wei-Ah-Whish and Mene Menon

By ETHEL M. HARDIE

A Game of Hide-and-Seek

Dragon Fly Lake is the loveliest lake in all the country round about. It washes the feet of a whole circle of hills, and in return the hills give up every drop of moisture they can spare to keep the lake fresh and beautiful. The lake is full to overflowing all the year long—which is an ideal condition for a lake—and the surplus water is drained off by a little stream at one end.

By a wonderful little stream that winds among the ferns and trees, out of shadow into the sunshine, over and over again until without the least bit of warning it goes careening off into space over a ledge of rock and tumbles head over heels into a deep ravine.

The stream enjoys its tumble thoroughly, and each drop of water sees how far it can jump before it joins its fellows in the bubbling pool at the foot of the cliff. The spray wets the rocks on both sides, and where it rests the most beautiful maidenhair ferns have grown and wave up and down in the gentle breeze by the rushing of water through the air.

Wei-Ah-Whish found the ravine quite by accident one day and hurried back to the camp to tell the grown-ups. They were interested, of course, and actually followed the stream to the fall, but would go further. They said it was too much of a climb down to the bottom of the cliff, and Aunt Maria was afraid of tearing her silk stockings.

The little boy was sorry for the grown-ups. They missed so much fun, but he couldn't make them explore the ravine if they didn't want to. He showed them a short cut back to camp, then slipped off to the alders to wait for Mene Menon, the funny little man who had made his summer home so happily. "Mene Menon isn't afraid of climbing, or getting his feet wet, or getting his clothes torn," thought the boy as he settled himself on a grassy bank with his back against an alder trunk; "he's a friend worth having."

The boy listened to hear Mene Menon singing in the trees, and presently felt two cool, thin hands across his eyes.

"Guess Wei-Ah-Whish, who I am, fairy spirit or bogey man?"

Wei-Ah-Whish laughed and grasped the little man's hands before he could take them away. He turned round and then, still holding Mene Menon's hands round the tree trunk, sang in return—

A strange little fellow,
Mene Menon,
His hands are so yellow;
His voice like a 'cello;
Uncertain as Jello,
Mene Menon.

Mene Menon was pleased and began to dance. The boy danced, too, and round and round the tree they went to the tune of the song the boy had made all by himself.

"Now, where?" asked Mene Menon, when they had finished, and caught up a breath or two.

"The ravine," said the boy. "Would you believe it, Mene Menon, the grown-ups didn't want to climb the rock beside the waterfall—didn't want to get to the very bottom of the ravine and follow the stream! They thought they could see everything from the top of the cliff."

"A stiff-legged generation, those grown-ups!" snorted the little man, "but let's forget them, Wei-Ah-Whish. I'll race you to the top of the waterfall. One to three to hands—two to get ready—and three to go!"

Off they started, and those grown-ups who heard the snapping of twigs and sound of footsteps on the soft earth thought a couple of deer had been started in the underbrush.

Mene Menon ran on one side of the stream and Wei-Ah-Whish on the other, but soon the boy was left behind. He was slower in jumping from stone to stone and lost time. When he reached the waterfall, Mene Menon was rocking backwards and forwards on the bank, singing to himself an entirely new song:

Over she goes,
Heels over toes—
Ripple and dimple and laugh!
Plinkety, plunk—
Bubbly, bunk—
Ferns nod their thanks for the bath.

"Slow poke," said Mene Menon, when he saw the boy. "I almost went to sleep waiting for you. I don't believe you," said the boy, "and for punishment I sentence you to climb the cliff ahead of me, and if I fall—look out!"

"Oh! Oh!" said the little man with a grin. "That being the case I'll lead you down the Maiden Way and see that you don't fall."

"The Maiden Way?" It was worth risking a question.

"Yes," said Mene Menon. "The Maiden Way. Under the waterfall is Guyhala's cave. The cave where Guyhala threatened to put the blue-jays, if they didn't behave themselves, on the night of the concert. No human has ever been inside the cave, but sometimes, perhaps, when Guyhala is well-pleased with himself, I will ask him to let me take you to its secret opening. But for the present, the Maiden Way is hid with maidenhair ferns and only used on special occasions."

Mene Menon went to the edge of the cliff and sang softly:

The Maiden Way,
The Maiden Way—
Show us ferns,
The Maiden Way;
Wave aside
Your feathery tips,
Show us steps
And little dips,
Leading down
The Maiden Way.

He sang the song again, and as he sang the ferns parted at his feet and uncovered the nearest set of stairs that the boy had ever seen leading down the side of a cliff.

Wei-Ah-Whish felt the spray on his face and wondered if he should stay and bow his thanks to the waterfall like the ferns. But Mene Menon was ever so many steps ahead of him and he had to hurry to catch up.

There was a pool at the foot of the fall, but the little boy couldn't see where the water went next. It couldn't stay in the pool. It was too shallow, and in the bottom of the ravine he saw only a path of white stones leading through the trees and ferns. "Water must have covered the path at one time," reasoned the boy, "the stones are so beautifully smooth—and nothing but water would have worn those slicks in such a crazy fashion."

Mene Menon saw his puzzled look and started off down the street of stones. "This afternoon, Wei-Ah-Whish," said Mene Menon, "I will take you to the stream and show you the game, for the stream does all the hiding and we all the seeking."

"In Winter and Spring," went on the little man, "this stone walk is a running stream, as you may judge, but in summer there is barely enough water to spare from the lake to keep the ferns and trees green in the ravine. The stream was clever at hiding, and we are going to find those places."

It was a new game, and Wei-Ah-Whish enjoyed it immensely. Mene Menon found the first two places where the stream came bubbling up to the surface. But after that Wei-Ah-Whish found just as many as he—where the ferns were thickest—where the moss was greenest—under the old tree trunk where the water ran in a line, but Mene Menon and Wei-Ah-Whish were cleverer at finding.

They followed the stone bed night through to the end of the ravine, and presently Mene Menon stopped to upset the columbine cups—cups as dry as dry-could be, and full of tiny black seeds, which were just at the foot of the parent plants. Columbine cups, trillium seeds like small yellow pancakes, and tiger lily pods—they split them all, here and there, and the little boy hoped he'd be able to visit the ravine next year, to see the flowers he had planted.

"They won't all grow," said Mene Menon. "The birds will eat that, and Jack Frost, the mischievous fellow, but there shouldn't be any shortage as far as I can see."

They had reached the end of the ravine and saw a rank, swampy field stretching ahead of them.

"The stream finds its way through the swamp," said Mene Menon, "into a civilized ditch, through more fields, another small valley and so on into the lake. The stream is very clever, and our game of hide-and-seek is finished."

"I am sorry," said the boy as he started back up the stony path. "We will come back again another day."

"Perhaps," said Mene Menon, "but walk faster. Wei-Ah-Whish, the shadows are lengthening, and it is I who must meet Guyhala at sundown."

Mene Menon sprung on his toes from stone to stone, and hopped as lightly over old stumps and hollow places. "I can do that," said the boy, and kept on trying until he reached the foot of the fall. "Now," whispered he, "I wonder if I can find the Maiden Way!" He hummed Mene Menon's song over to himself, but stopped at the fifth line. He couldn't remember a word more, and turned round to ask Mene Menon's help. He looked to the right to the left, behind and before him, but Mene Menon was nowhere to be seen. While Wei-Ah-Whish had been thinking so deeply the little man had slipped off to keep his appointment.

"That's a nuisance," thought the boy, "now I shall never find the fairy stair. And with that he began to pull himself up the wall of the ravine with the help of whatever roots or branches came to hand."

Over she goes,
Heels over toes—
Ripple and dimple and laugh!
Plinkety, plunk—
Bubbly, bunk—
Ferns nod their thanks for the bath.

"Slow poke," said Mene Menon, when he saw the boy. "I almost went to sleep waiting for you. I don't believe you," said the boy, "and for punishment I sentence you to climb the cliff ahead of me, and if I fall—look out!"

A Black Boy's Achievement

This is not a corn country, and not many negroes live here. For all that the story of Walter Flower's success in wheat raising is worth telling. Walter, fifteen years of age, and lives in Arkansas, where the land is very rich and the climate suitable to the growth of maize or Indian corn. The farmers usually raise forty-five bushels to the acre. Walter had listened to lectures on agriculture, and he determined to try to do better. He took up an acre of land, and by carefully following instructions from the Department of Agriculture succeeded in obtaining a crop of ninety-one bushels. Soon all the farmers in the neighborhood began to ask him how he did it, and he is spending his time this year in showing them how.

Rambles in Bookland

When the dusky shades are creeping
From the corners of the room,
And the cheerful firelight, leaping,
Drives them back into the gloom,
With its roses round me spread,
I can see my fancy flitting
Through the books that I have read.

Mark! I hear (with low sobbing swell)
As I heard in other times,
Amy March, her Marmee telling
All about the pickled times.
And before the tale is ended,
Tidie fancy always sees
Mary, and the path she wended,
O'er the tragic sands of Dee.

Come a way, deep grief revealing,
From a white-haired trembling slave,
And with Uncle Tom I'm kneeling
At the side of Eva's grave.
And the memory of his anguish
Should a lasting strength impart
To the tiny heart that languish
In a superfluous heart.

Then again the scene is shifting,
And in fancy's realm I see
Alice at my side is drifting
Softly through the Looking Glass.
And the fairy friends we met there,<
I have made my very own;
For I fear it's hard to get there
When our childhood's years have flown.

There! The flaring gas is lighted!
Not a shadow lingers near,
And the friends that thought invited
Have escaped, as if in fear.
Never mind! I still can find them,
Any moment that I need,
For the printed pages bind them
In the books I love to read.

At this an angry light came into the old woman's eyes. Her cruelty suddenly changed into a shining lance; she dropped her cloak; and she said to the goddess herself:

Arachne's face grew very red, and then very white, but still she would not ask Minerva's pardon. Instead she said to the goddess herself:

Now, Arachne had never been very respectful to old people, particularly to the goddess Minerva, and she was very angry at being reproved by her.

"Don't advise me," she said, "to do as you would have me do. I shall say and do what I please."

Stories From "Our Dumb Animals"

Faithful Mother Seal
A sea captain not long ago captured a young seal, hoping to tame and rear it on board his ship. He placed it in a sack to secure it, but wide as the ocean was, and swiftly as the ship sped on, the mother was as swift, and followed in search of her young. When it was first caught, the mother howled pitiously, and the "baby" carked back its grief, but the men were relentless, and coolly watched the agonized mother follow him till the ship reached the wharf at Santa Barbara.

Here he thought his prize was safe, for surely no seal would venture ashore, and the ship was docked. Suddenly the mother gave a cry close to the ship, and the little one, as if obeying instructions, struggled, still in the sack, to the edge of the deck, and rolled pitiously, and the "baby" carked back its grief, but the men were relentless, and coolly watched the agonized mother follow him till the ship reached the wharf at Santa Barbara.

ENLARGE PLANT TO INCREASE PRODUCTION

Dodge Brothers Announce New Assembly Building as Part of 1923 Expansion Programme

An immense new assembly building, duplicating the present structure in size, is announced by Dodge Brothers as the principal unit of the 1923 expansion programme. The building is six stories high, one thousand feet long and seventy-five feet wide, with more than one-half million square feet of floor space. Construction work which started some months ago is now nearly completed. The new assembly building, paralleling the old structure, is just across the street which formerly marked the boundary line of the great Dodge Brothers' factories.

Factory executives would not comment on the number of additional cars contemplated in this extensive addition, but it is believed that the immediate aim is a capacity of one thousand cars a day. In the face of the greatly overold condition which prevailed throughout the entire year just past, it is not unreasonable to assume that this number mentioned could be absorbed easily by Dodge Brothers dealers.

Other units of the expansion programme are the new cyanide building, a million dollar addition to the power house, and a mammoth new closed body building. The latter is com-

Jewett's Latest Closed Model

Jewett has just introduced a Six-passenger brougham finished in black high-laked enamel. Heretofore it has been a recognized impossibility to produce a baked enamel finish on a body framed in wood. By the new Jewett process every panel is dipped and baked individually before being attached to the frame. The all-steel panels which entirely sheath the new Jewett brougham receive three coats of enamel, three bakes and three polishes. The above is a photograph of the Jewett brougham.

AUTO INDUSTRY WILL WORK AT TOP SPEED

Automobile Manufacturers State Factories Will Work at Capacity During Winter Months

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Signs are multiplying that indicate the great automobile industry which gives employment to, or affects millions of Americans, will enjoy steady active production during the coming winter. There have been sharp increases in the last fortnight in the orders from automobile manufacturers for finished steel sheets and semi-finished bars and strips.

The demand made its effect felt even before the United States Steel Corporation opened its books for the fourth quarter at the same level of prices as had existed for the third period and persisted in spite of uncertainty growing out of the establishment of the eight-hour day in the steel mills.

Representatives of steel makers in the automobile centres were taken by surprise by this demand, as a number of lines of automobiles have recently been reduced in price, and any possible increase in prices of raw materials might well have disarranged a production programme.

Companies ordinarily begin to buy some material at this season to prepare for stocking cars for the Spring trade and some of the recent purchases have been for that purpose. Nevertheless, nearly every company that has brought out new models recently is experiencing a Fall demand in excess of expectations and this is taken to indicate increases of production.

Some of these already are in operation. The Buick Motor Company is running at capacity again with the output for September forecast at 18,000 cars as against 16,000 in August. The Hupp Motor Company is running at a rate of 4,500 cars a month, which is at least 25 per cent higher than was anticipated for this season. The Hupp Company will make more cars in the first nine months of 1923 than it made in the entire twelve months of last year.

The Cadillac Motor Company is making about 100 of the new models a day, and is expected shortly to increase that to 150 a day, while the Ford Company, with the change to new models entirely completed, is continuing at the rate of 40,000 cars a week.

KEEP WINDSHIELD CLEAR AND AVOID MANY ACCIDENTS

Two of the most unpleasant things that a motorist has to put up with when driving are rain and snow. A rain-blurred screen is always difficult to see through, and at night it becomes a positive danger owing to the reflection of other head or side lights in the raindrops and the almost total inability of the driver to set in consequence.

There are many different forms of wind-screen cleaners in the market today, one or other of which should be on every car. One of the simplest is a hand-operated rubber squeegee which can be moved to and fro across the glass by the driver as required.

A fitting such as this is used on most cars, and is gradually becoming the standard. It is a chief drawback lies in its being hand-operated, as the driver has to take his attention off driving to move it. This difficulty has been overcome by an ingenious method by which the squeegee is operated by suction from the inlet pipe. It is necessary only to turn a tap to set it in motion, and it will function so long as the engine is running.

There are other forms of wind-screen cleaners, one of which consists of an electric motor fitted in the wind-screen. The electric motor causes a circular blade of glass to revolve at a high speed. The raindrops are then thrown off by centrifugal force, and a clear view is obtained.

This device is much used at sea, and has been found extremely useful. There are many forms of chemical cleaners in use. The most popular make consists of a felt pad impregnated with chemicals. This is rubbed over the screen when it is wet, and causes the raindrops to run rapidly to the bottom of the glass.

One of the simplest and cheapest forms of wind-screen cleaner is an apple or a potato. If either of these is cut in two and rubbed over the screen the vision is much improved.

Rapid Trackless Trolleys
SCHENECTADY, N. Y. — Nine trackless trolleys, the first to be installed in Philadelphia, have been contracted for by the Pennsylvania Rapid Transit Company. Other trackless trolley lines are under construction and additional routes are expected to be placed in operation in the near future.

Nearly one-third of all the plate glass produced in this country and approximately 1,750,000 tons of iron and steel were used in the construction of motor vehicles last year.

PACKARD CHRISRAFT WINS GOLD CUP RACE

Packard Marine Motors Make Excellent Showing in Races Held Recently on Detroit River

Consistent speed of 50 miles an hour for many hours now is possible on the water in comfortable little boats as a result of the hull and motor development brought about by the Gold Cup and International Sweepstakes races on the Detroit River recently.

The sweepstakes race, which carried purses totalling $15,000, brought about a new class of runabout speed boats, and both races were marked by a consistency in performance of some of the motors which was called the Gold Cup and International Sweepstakes races on the Detroit River recently.

The Gold Cup race is run each year in three heats of 30 miles each, and the sweepstakes, which was held this year for the first time, is a 150-mile grind. Motors for the Gold Cup race are limited to 625 cubic inches of piston displacement and in the longer race a limit of 1,350 is fixed.

Packard motors were declared to have made a most remarkable showing. In the Gold Cup race four boats powered with standard marine engines made by the Packard Motor Car Company were entered. One the Packard Chriscraft, which won the race a year ago, finished first; another, Rainbow II, finished second, and a third, Lady Shores, finished fourth. The fourth boat turned over in the first lap and did not finish, although her motor was in perfect condition.

In the sweepstakes race other standard Packard marine motors, but of larger piston displacement, and having twelve instead of six cylinders repeated the same kind of smooth, easy running that had characterized the Packard boats in the Gold Cup race and finished second, third and fourth.

Col. J. G. Vincent, vice-president of engineering of the Packard, won the Gold Cup again this year, and in his Packard Chriscraft II took second place in the sweepstakes race. The average speed in the Gold Cup race was 45.5 miles an hour and in the sweepstakes race it was 50 miles an hour.

In motor boat racing there is no alternating checking and accelerating of a motor. Power must be continuous, and through the whole race motors are run at practically full power, with the result that many fail by the wayside. Out of the eighteen boats which started in the sweepstakes only eight finished.

Packard officers said that the marine motors are made with the same quality methods that are used in producing both the single-six and single-eight cars, and they asserted, to this fact was due their 100 per cent score for reliability in the big boat races.

Durant has announced construction of two larger additions to his Lansing factory, which will increase the production from 400 to 550 cars a day. The cost is estimated at $350,000.

STARS NOW PLACED IN REACH OF ALL

Major Cockburn, of Atkinson Motor Co., Announces New Financing Policy—Long Period Payments

Major L. W. R. Cockburn, director of the Atkinson Motor Company, announced yesterday a special financing plan for the purchasing of Stars and Durant cars.

"It is no longer necessary for anybody to do without a motor car," states Major Cockburn. "A Star can now be purchased for a $150 cash payment and the balance spread over a period of 2, 6, 12 or 18 months. This plan has been inaugurated primarily to help those who in the past have believed that they could not afford a car. It is our object to place Stars in the hands of those of modest means, and have the full use of the car while paying for it on our deferred payment plan."

Major Cockburn feels confident that Victorians will take advantage of this exceptional offer. The same plan for the purchasing of Durant cars has been adopted, with the cash payment slightly higher. Second-hand cars will also be sold in easy terms spread over a long period.

EVEN GREATER PERFECTION IS BEING REACHED

DETROIT, Oct. 6.—"It is when automobile shows claim public attention and the manufacturers' new products have been studied and analyzed that it seems the height of mechanical development, engineering achievements and motoring luxury and comfort have been reached," declared a local auto man. "Likewise the influence of the automobile on our living conditions and industrial and commercial development seems to have reached the furthest point in the matter of efficiency and complete acceptance."

"But as each succeeding year rolls round and we again visit the automobile shows, we find our ideas as to ultimate perfection and development upset, due to continuous endeavor on the part of the manufacturers for more perfection in their products."

"The 1923 automobile shows without question display the automobile at the very highest point of its perfection in every way; and it seems right now that those activities in our workday life that are affected by the automobile have also been perfected to absorb the utmost utility and adaptation of the motor car. Therefore it is of unusual interest to see how much further the automobile industry can progress as well as the use of its products."

"Here are a few predictions for the auto industry."

"1.—Within two years five million owners will possess two or more cars."

"2.—Saturation point means transportation sufficiency, and we grow and expand too rapidly for transportation to catch up with demands and requirements."

"3.—Auto factories will operate on a more accurate basis with finer limitations and more delicate operations than watch, surgical or astronomical instrument factories."

"4.—That an auto mechanic will be the greatest skilled workman in the world."

"5.—That auto chassis will be so developed as to carry a 25-year guarantee against breakage, rattles or squeaks."

"6.—That lubrication will be developed so that non-lubrication will be impossible at any point—one place for feeding all greases needed; one place for feeding all oil needed."

"7.—That auto engines will be so developed that the point of vibration will be positively eliminated; hoods will be constructed not to lift up."

"8.—That garages will be for storage and gas, oil and accessory supplies only; no repairs needed whatsoever."

"9.—That every office building will have its own garage in the building, while heavy traffic streets will be reconstructed for auto traffic, either overhead or underneath."

"10.—That there will be national driving signals, laws and drivers' permits."

"11.—That two-cent fare buses only will be permitted on busy streets, operating from parking grounds."

DETROIT GOES RIGHT AFTER JAY WALKERS

Ordinance Drafted Will Help Reduce Toll of Traffic Accidents—Auto Dealers Behind Move

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 6.—Another step forward in helping to eliminate Detroit's traffic accidents was taken during the past week by the drafting of a so-called "jay-walking" ordinance in the office of the corporation counsel.

Up to the present, practically all accident prevention legislation has been directed at the motor vehicle and its driver, but those who have made an intensive study of the subject are almost unanimous in the belief that 10 per cent of the accident cases, the pedestrian is as much at fault as the vehicle driver.

To this end, many cities throughout the country and in foreign lands have drafted regulations for the man on foot, and they have found these regulations do much to make the pedestrian use the same care and precaution which the motorist must of necessity use. Detroit's proposed ordinance, which is to go to the Council soon, is patterned after the more effective ones in use, and it is expected that the ordinance will mean not only fewer accidents but better traffic regulation, according to several Detroit authorities on the subject.

Liberty for responsibility for the framing of the ordinance lies with the Detroit Auto Dealers' Association, which has always backed safety movements and has sponsored a number of plans which have proven effective. City officials have joined with the motor car dealers in recommending the passage of such a measure because in the past the police department has been unable to correct dangerous conditions arising from careless acts of pedestrians, there being no charge to prefer against them.

Mr. W. Frank Cameron, 949 View Street, has been appointed Vancouver Island distributor for Chatter Fix, a "patent medicine" for Ford transmission linings which he claims will entirely eliminate "chattering, shuddering and shaking" of Ford.

"After many experiments extending over a long period the efforts of a local man to find some way to stop the bad acting of Fords when the brake, reverse or low gear pedals are put into action have been crowned with success," says Mr. Cameron.

"Chatter Fix" is a wonder. It will not injure any part of the motor or transmission, and all those who have used it are more than satisfied."

Mr. Wallace Tergeeson, of the Tyre Shop, has returned home after a visit to Southern California.

Mr. Frank Beck, of the Beck Motor Company, Ltd., Vancouver, was in the city last week for a few days on business.

Mr. William M. Gray, vice-president of the Gray-Dort Motors, Limited, Chatham, Ont., was in Victoria last week on his way to California, where he will spend a short holiday.

Mr. George Weiler, of the Weiler Auto Supply House, left for a trip to Southern California. George expects to be away about three weeks.

"Business has been excellent the past few weeks," says Tom Morayson, sales manager of Revercomb Motors, Limited, local Ford dealers. "We are looking forward to a big Fall business, and from present indications it should be exceptionally bright."

The Consolidated Motors (Victoria) Limited, corner Yates and Vancouver Streets, have been appointed Vancouver Island distributors for White trucks. Mr. Clarence Ganner, well-known local truck salesman, has been appointed manager of the truck department. "It is building motor trucks," states Mr. Ganner. "It is the policy of the White company to make them the highest grade possible. This policy is founded on the conviction that nothing but a sturdy or less refined can give a full measure of service. The value of a motor truck is measured by performance, in terms of low eventual cost. There is no other criterion. When an owner has to save his truck by cutting down mileage, reducing speed, lightening rated loads, avoiding hills and rough going, he limits its earning power." The Consolidated Motors, Limited, Vancouver, B.C., have been appointed British Columbia distributors.

The Morley-Pauline Rubber Company, Victoria distributors for Firestone tires, report September a busy month. Last month business picked up considerably, and by the first of October their large stock of tires, tubes and truck tires was nearly exhausted.

The Rolfe Battery Company reports that local motorists are already having their batteries put into shape ready for the winter weather. With the cold mornings, batteries are given plenty of work in turning over the cold motor.

H. A. Davie, Limited, local McLaughlin-Buick distributors, are still waiting for cars. There has been such a big run on the 1924 models that it has been practically impossible to get shipments through from the Oshawa factory.

Motor cars and trucks registered in the United States on July 1 totaled 12,045,128. This was a gain of 2,440,000 over July 1, 1922, an increase of about 23 per cent. Every state had more vehicles registered than on July 1 a year ago, while thirty-seven states had already surpassed the final 1922 total. There is now one motor vehicle for every 4.5 persons in the United States.

MANY CARS BUILT BY DURANT PLANTS

Net Value of Two Years' Output of Various Plants Totals More Than $114,000,000

A total production of 200,000 cars built by Durant Motors, Incorporated, was reached last week, according to announcement sent out from the office of the Durant Motor Company of California in Oakland. This production has happened within a two-year period, and the figures include over 80,000 Durants, 115,000 Stars and other Durant-built cars, such as Locomobile, Flint and Mason Road King truck. The net value of total products reaches more than $114,000,000.

The Oakland plant joined in celebration of the event simultaneously with the Durant plants at Long Island City, N.Y.; Elizabeth, N.J.; Bridgeport, Conn.; Lansing, Mich.; Flint, Mich.; Muncie, Ind., and Leaside, Canada.

A "symbol" car commemorating the event was put through the production line at the Oakland plant, while similar cars were going through the seven other plants. Appropriate exercises attended the production of the eighth "symbol" automobile.

When present building operations are thoroughly completed on the many Durant plants throughout the country, the capacity will be 667,203 automobiles per year.

The plants are arranged for the annual production of the various Durant-built lines, when needed, in the following quantities: Durant, 120,000; Stars, 337,300; Flint, 100,000; Princeton, 15,000; Locomobile, 1,000; Specials, 75,000; Mason Road King trucks, 18,750.

OLDFIELD AGAIN TAKES UP RACING

"Chief" Durant Has Signed Barney as Member of Famous Durant Special Team—Popular Driver

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—A startling announcement comes from Durant headquarters. It is that Barney Oldfield, regarded by many as still the master driver of the world, will again sit behind the wheel of a racing car. This time he will join Chief Durant's famous team, which includes such stars as Jimmy Murphy and Eddie Hearne.

Oldfield is probably the best known driver of racing automobiles. In fact, his name is a synonym for speed. Al G. Daddell, writing in newspapers throughout the state, declares that Oldfield will probably be a permanent member of the Durant team and wonderful things are expected from the old master. He can handle a racing car with the best of them and in trials showed that he had lost none of his cunning.

Plays and Players

Merry-Go-Round Is Immense Production

Critics Unite in Lauding Latest Universal-Super-Jewel as the Year's Greatest Picture, Which Is the Feature Presentation at the Dominion Theatre This Week

NEVER in the history of the motion picture industry has a production been accorded such unstinted praise at the hands of critics from coast to coast as was "Merry-Go-Round," the Universal-Super-Jewel, which is booked for the Dominion Theatre here this week. Especially interesting was the approval of the principals and featured members of the cast and of the directorship. It proved a revelation alike to the industry and to the theatre-goers. Some of the unusual points in connection with this picture are:

The discovery of a new star—Mary Philbin, who only a few short years ago was a Chicago high-school girl. Some one entered her in a beauty contest run by the Hearst newspapers, and when it was over she was found to be second choice. Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures Corporation, saw her photograph and arranged a screen test, which she passed satisfactorily. The dainty little miss was then started on a severe course of training in small parts, gradually increasing in importance, until finally she was deemed ready for starring honors.

Regime Work
She began work in the "Merry-Go-Round" with the best wishes and confidence of the entire studio, but even her most ardent admirers were unprepared for the exceptional portrayal she gives in the pathetic role of a little orphan-girl on the Frater, the Conny Island of Vienna.

In selecting the artists the casting director spent many weeks in going over lists of available players in order to get types that were true to life. For the principal male role, that of an Austrian army officer, the part of the nobility, Norman Kerry was selected. He brings to the part of the vain and foppish soldier all of the consummate ability that has made his portrayals of other parts stand forth as masterpieces of acting. Cesare Gravina, George Selmann, George Hackathorne, Dale Fuller, Anton Vaverka, Maude George and Dorothy Wallace are among other well-known players in featured roles.

Much Work Necessitated
Nine months were required for the building of the sets, rehearsals and actual shooting, and more than one thousand extras were engaged during the greater part of that period. In order that each detail of the picture would be absolutely true to life as it was lived in Vienna during the festive days just preceding the world war, Director Rupert Julian sent a staff of specialists to that city to take photographs and obtain data on the city shown in the film. The most noteworthy set in the picture, and one of the greatest pieces of engineering work ever done in connection with the production of the picture, was the reproduction at Universal City of the Frater. So marvellous was the likeness that many of the visitors at the film capitol had, who had visited the original, stated that they easily could imagine that they were in Vienna once more.

Another unusual happening was the importation of the gold-trimmed carriage and harness formerly used by King Charles of Austria, and also of the army officers' uniforms. In order to obtain these it was necessary for Universal to file a bond with the Austrian Government and also take out life insurance policy from Lloyd's at London.

ETERNAL FEMININE PHOTOPLAY'S MOTIVE

Women All Down the Ages Epitomized in Screen Story at Royal Monday

One hundred generations of women have lived since the day of the great Prophet Isaiah and womanhood has undergone many changes through the sweep of fleeting centuries.

From the bejeweled and bedizened creatures of long gone ages with their tinkling ornaments on tinted feet and their cauls and their chains and other barbarous adornments, clear down through the misty corridors of heteroskeller, flappercent era of jazz and bootleggers, each generation has produced its own distinctive type of femininity.

And never before in novel, stage or screen has that modern dynamo of ever-changing emotions—the woman of today—been pictured so realistically in all her strength and weakness as in Daniel Carson Goodman's amazing screen drama "What's Wrong With the Women?" announced for exhibition at the Royal on Monday. "What's Wrong With the Women?" unfolds in vividly dramatic sequences a story of mighty revelations of the heart and soul and answers with blows like the hammers of Thor the problem it sets for itself—"What's Wrong With the Women?"

It is in no sense an attack upon womanhood of today. It is in no sense a sermon or propaganda. It is in no sense unkind to women. But it rips aside the curtains that hide her weakness, her follies and her whims, and deals a crushing indictment to the forces of folly, hypocrisy and extravagance.

In the cast are such notable players as Wilton Lackaye, in the role of the wealthy architect who strives vainly to understand and to restrain his wife and daughter; Rod La Rocque, as a young husband married in debt by his erring wife's extravagance; Constance Bennett, beautiful young daughter of Richard Bennett, the dramatic stage star; Barbara Castleton, Julia Grayne Gordon, Huntley Gordon, Hedda Hopper and Paul McAllister, constituting what photo-play critics have acclaimed as one of the most brilliant casts ever assembled for a motion picture.

Labor Unemployment Growing in Britain

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Labor Party and Trades Union Congress are calling an emergency meeting to consider the unemployment problem. Arthur Henderson, M.P., Labor leader, speaking at Derby, said that at the present time there were probably 1,500,000 unemployed in the country, and by Christmas there will be two million working people totally or partially unemployed.

Two Scalded to Death
WINNIPEG, Oct. 6.—Two men were scalded to death when a steam pipe in the hold of the tug Archibald burst in a head-on collision with the tug Guest, near Selkirk, twenty miles north of Winnipeg, on the Red River late last night. The dead are Charles Stewart and Robert Dewar, both of Selkirk.

BUSTER KEATON'S BIG COMEDY AT CAPITOL

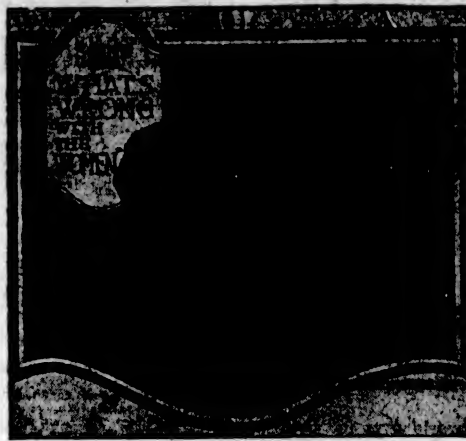

Funny Boy's First Six-Reel Feature Will Be Featured Here All This Week

"Love is the axis upon which the world revolves," declared Buster Keaton recently, and proceeded to make a picture to prove it. "Three Ages," which is to be presented at the Capitol all week, not only proves Keaton's theory, but it is a comedy of six reels and marks the entrance of this popular actor into full length feature pictures.

"Three Ages" opens with the caveman age and shows Buster as a full-fledged caveman surrounded by others of his tribe. Unfortunately Buster has fallen in love with the woman who is desired by the strong man of the clan. A duel is arranged. Buster, being the weaker, seeks to win his rival by foul means. He "leads" his club with a rock, beats his rival into insensibility and finally, after a merry chase, he seizes the woman forcibly from his enemies and escapes with her.

The next episode takes place in the period of the triumphant Roman Empire. Again Buster has a rival for the woman he loves. A chariot race is arranged between them to decide the affair. The day of the race comes and it is snowing hard. Buster's rival appears in a splendid chariot drawn by four coal-black horses, and Buster appears in a chariot on runners drawn by Eskimo dogs. His rival, furious, throws him into a den with a hungry lion. Buster escapes, defeats his rival and takes the woman.

The action now changes to a later day. The same situation appears. Buster's rival is just as hot on his trail as during the two previous episodes. Now the contest to decide between them is a football match. Buster, puny and weak, against the towering brute strength of his rival, seeks to avoid him by playing different positions on the team, but his rival follows him each time to a position directly opposite. By a clever strategy Buster wins the game after which his rival "does him dirt." But here, too, Buster wins out and wins the girl.

In each period in which the action takes place, Buster had the parents of the girl against him. The favored one was the strong rival. So Buster was constantly working against the greatest odds, and his conquest each time was more noteworthy.

This week's musical attraction is an exceptional one. Victor Edmunds, the popular Capitol tenor, and Miss Beatrice McDonald, soprano, will sing the "Miserere" scene from "Il Trovatore," which contains one of the most popular melodies in the realms of grand opera.

Editor of Veteran Resigns Position

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—The resignation of T. C. Lapp as editor of The Veteran, the official publication of the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada, was sent to the directors this morning. This resignation follows upon that of C. G. Macneil, Dominion secretary of the association, and was stated by Mr. Lapp to be due to the same cause.

Held in Bond Case
NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Peter Ardinghe, assistant manager of the Letter of Credit Department of the National City Bank, was arrested today on an indictment returned earlier in the week charging him with criminally receiving some of the $100,000 worth of bonds stolen from the office of the Southern & Western Life Insurance Company of Cincinnati, in November, 1922.

SNOWS OF YUKON FEATURED IN FILM

Another Vileto Story of Northwest Comes to Columbia Screen This Week

Charles Jones shifts his scene of activities from the western plains to the dazzling snows of the Yukon in his latest William Fox production, "Snowdrift," which is showing at the Columbia Theatre for three days, commencing tomorrow. This is a vireto story of the Northwest, which should find instant favor with all movie fans.

In its original form this screen story was a novel by James B. Hendryx, and the leading role seems ideally suited for Charles Jones. Jones has the character of Carter Brent, also known as "Ace-in-the-Hole," a mining engineer from the States who is in love with "Snowdrift," a white child who has grown up with the Indians. A French-Canadian run-runner and the captain of a whaling vessel bribe the Indians to help them in their attempt to steal the girl and sell her into slavery in Dawson. Johnny Claw, the run-runner, exchanges his liquor for the furs of the Indians and then, seeing "Snowdrift," starts over the frozen trail to Dawson. Brent arrives at the Indian village soon after and hurries to Dawson, where he finds the girl held prisoner in a dance-hall. Then follows one of the most dramatic fights ever made for the screen.

This is a different type of a story for Charles Jones and one which will prove to be just as entertaining as his former pictures. Suburb photography, an absorbing story, vigorous action and a strong supporting cast help make this one of the best pictures in which Jones has been seen. Those in the cast include: Irene Rich, Dorothy Manners, G. Raymond Nye, Colin Chase, Evelyn Selbie, Lolo Encinos and Lee Shumway.

Chicago Millionaire Married at Paris

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The religious ceremony uniting Allister McCormick, of Chicago, and Miss Joan Tyndale Stevens, of London, was performed at the British Embassy Church today.

HILARIOUSLY funny, pulsating with thrills—the love force working in Caveman, Ancient Roman and Modern American. With this, his first full-length feature film—6 reels—Buster Keaton sets a new standard in comedy production. Monumental in its bigness, eye-filling in its grandeur and beauty. The Roman Colosseum, where the sensational chariot race is run, is the largest exterior ever constructed for a picture—with 1,000 people in the scene. And Margaret Leach, England's foremost beauty—so adjudged among 80,000 contestants—is in the cast.

GREAT CLASSIC PLAY OFFERING THIS WEEK

Compton Company to Produce "The Stoops to Conquer," at the Playhouse Wednesday

The liveliest interest has been aroused over the production this week of "The Stoops to Conquer" by the Compton Comedy Company. Rated as one of the gems of English literature, and as one of the most perfect examples of stagecraft and comedy, it cannot fail to impress Victorian lovers of the classic drama. The whole play, moreover, is such a delightfully amusing and entertaining piece of work that those who fear a classic offering might prove somewhat tedious, will speedily have their minds disabused on that score, and may be certain of spending one of the most delightful evenings of their lives by witnessing a performance of this magnificent comedy. The plot of the play is too well known to dwell on. Mr. Compton will play Tony Lumpkin, a part in which his father, Edward Compton, and his grandfather, Henry Compton, made great successes. Miss Peggy Dundas will be the Kate Hardcastle character that will suit her delightful style to perfection, and in which she should score heavily.

A newcomer to the company, who will play Constance Neville, will be Miss Dorothy Clancy, who brings with her a long list of London successes. Miss Agnes Burton and Mr. Herbert Leslie will be cast as Mr. and Mrs. Hardcastle, two fine character roles, which will give them ample opportunity of displaying their great talents. Mr. Clifford Winter-son will be the dashing young Marlow, so bashful in the presence of ladies, and Mr. Bruce Bredin will be his friend, Hastings. Numerous character roles will be ably sustained by Mr. William Marshall, Mr. George Durham, Mr. Gibson-Gunn, Mr. George Fenton, Mr. William Hill and Miss Roebur.

CONCERT PROGRAMME GIVEN FOR BILLY MUIR

Pupils of Miss Marian Heming Will Give Recital in Empress Hotel Ballroom Next Friday

A most attractive programme has been arranged by Miss Marian Heming for her pupils' recital next Friday evening in the Empress Hotel ballroom. It is of note that fourteen of those appearing in the first half of the programme are between the ages of 9 and 15. In the last half an entirely new feature for a pupils' recital has been introduced in that after each selection by a student a repetition will be made on the Duo-Art piano, played by Mr. Frederic King, of Fletcher Bros. To give variety to the programme, Miss Heming is assisted by Mrs. Charlotte Foot and Miss Beatrice McDonald, two of the most popular of the younger vocalists of the city.

The gross receipts of the concert will be given to a former pupil of Miss Heming, Billy Muir.

The programme in full is as follows:

About the Virgil Method and Others, M. Heming; Extracts from a lecture by the late A. K. Virgil, read by Mrs. Marjorie Press; "Bagatelle" (Berthold), Beatrice Ruttan; "Rondo" (Weber), Vida Shandley; allegro, "Sonata No. 7" (Mozart), Kenneth Bennett; "Lullaby" (Nevin), Miss Nora Tolson; "Valse Postique" (Gottschalk), Miss Hilda Anderson; "Rustle of Spring" (Sinding), Beatrice Hicks; "Russian Dance" (Prim), Noel Cusack; "The Nightingale" (Nevin), Howard Horsey; (a) "All For You" (Martin), (b) "Blackbird and Rose" (Clarke), Miss Charlotte Foot; "Scherzo" (Pirani), Miss Eva Howard; "Arabesque" (Schumann), Miss Olga Hare; "Chant d'Amour" (Stojowski), Miss Foot, Part II; "Polonaise" (Chopin), Miss Lucille Hall; (a) "Waltz Song" (Puccini), (b) "Devotion" (Schumann), Miss Beatrice McDonald; "Nautilus" (MacDowell), Miss Dorothy Holmes; "Boire de Vienne, No. 7" (Schubert-Liszt), Mrs. Jack Michell; (a) "The Shepherd Boy" (b) "Cradle" (MacDowell), Miss Rita Ormiston; "Hungarian Rhapsody" (Liszt), Mrs. Marjorie Walker; "God Save the King." WARD TWO SECURES RECORD TURNS

Difficulty Found in Providing for Crowds Taking Part in Military 500 at Conservative Rooms

The regular weekly military five hundred of Ward Two Conservatives was held in the association rooms, Campbell Building, last Thursday night. As advertised, the committee had made provision for fifty tables, and by 8:30 all the tables were filled and enough players were turned away to fill another ten tables. Some of the players, unable to take part last week, arrived as early as 7:30, determined to be in the play.

The prizewinners were as follows: First table, Mr. Wilby, Mrs. Burley, G. J. Jones and Mrs. Hinchfield; second table, Mrs. B. Merriman, G. W. Gibbs, E. Francis and Mrs. McKlermon; third table, R. Steel, Mrs. Paterson, G. Wood and Mrs. Goodwin. Twelve ten-bids were made, G. R. Sharp and Mrs. E. Ridgard being the winning couple.

Mrs. Gough was then called up to draw the tombola tickets, which resulted as follows: First tombola ticket 11, held by Mrs. S. Russell, 1025 Redfern Street, won 100-pound sack of flour; second, Mrs. R. Lancaster, 194 Joseph Street, holding ticket 289, won a 20-pound sack of sugar; third, being a beautifully worked ladies' handbag, was won by J. Anson, holding ticket 133. None of these tombola tickets are sold or given to other than bona fide players, who must be in the room the same evening. The committee in charge announces that for next Thursday the usual fourteen good scrap prizes will be given, as well as two free tombolas, first, half a ton of coal, delivered; second, 20-pound sack of sugar.

After the distribution of prizes had taken place the floor was cleared for dancing, to the strains of Mrs. Gleason's orchestra. The home waltz at 11:45, followed by "God Save the King," brought to a close the first evening's entertainment and military five hundred that this ward has ever held. Numerous remarks to this effect could be heard all over the rooms.

ST. JOHN'S HARVEST FESTIVAL

Thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessings of harvest will be the keynote of the festival services to be held in St. John's Church today. There will be holy communion at 8 a.m. and at the 11 a.m. service, Rev. W. W. Craig, rector of Christ Church, Vancouver, will be the preacher. At 2:30 there will be a short children's service, and at 7:30 evening prayer, when Dr. Craig will again be the preacher. The services will be conducted by Rev. F. A. P. Chadwick, M.A., the rector of St. John's, and the large choir, under the direction of Mr. J. G. Burnett, will render special music and lead in the joyous popular congregational singing. At the morning service, commencing at 11, a Te Deum, composed by the organist, Mr. G. Jennings Burnett, and choirmaster, will be sung; also Stainer's anthem, "Ye Shall Dwell in the Land," with Miss Wise and Mr. Moss as soloists. At the evening service, commencing at 7:30, special musical settings to the Canticles will be sung, with Miss Fox singing the solo in the Magnificat, and Miss Moore as soloist in the anthem, "All Thy Works," composed by the organist. The church has been most beautifully decorated for the services by many volunteer helpers from the congregation.

HIGH-CLASS MODERN DRAMA ANNOUNCED

Excellent Surprise Promised "Pan"
Patrons on Monday Night
by Macy and Baird

After seeing the Macy and Baird Stock Company at the Pantheons, recent several of their famous "Toby" plays the public naturally associate them with this class of drama, but on Monday night the regular Pantheons patrons have a pleasant surprise in store.

"One Girl in a Million" is not a "Toby" play, but a high-class modern drama in every respect, and is readily acknowledged the premier of all crook plays.

It tells the story of a shop girl, who has been reduced to poverty at her father's death, being defrauded by her father's partner. This partner is now pursuing the girl with his unwelcome attentions and is prevented from annoying her by a young crook, even though he risks his liberty in so doing. The girl later helps the crook to escape his pursuers and later they plan a method of securing her father's stolen property by stealing it back again.

In the attempt the girl escapes with the valuables, but the crook is captured. How she eventually secures his release and at the same time wins her property back forms the climax of one of the most interesting dramas to be presented in Victoria this winter.

Miss Jean Rose, as the shop girl, and Mr. Howard R. Macy, as the crook, have two of the best parts in the entire list of plays to be presented by this company. Mr. Leitch, or "Toby," as he is better known, has a wonderful comedy part and is assisted by Miss Margaret Bronson in furnishing the usual one thousand laughs.

Mr. Nordaeth, Mr. P. A. Dale, Mr. Joe Baird and Miss Zoe Bates have interesting parts, while Mr. Allan Wisbert, as the unscrupulous partner, does exceptionally fine work.

Starting October 15, this company will conduct a weekly amateur contest, consisting of anything at all in the vaudeville line that the contestants wish to present. The winner each week will be engaged to work between the acts of the regular programme the following week. Applications for entry should be made to Mr. R. Jamieson at the Pantheons Theatre or at the box office.

SHOCKS CONTINUE IN STRICKEN AREA

Extraordinary Session of Diet Called for November 10—Appeal Made United States Dentists

TOKIO, Oct. 6.—Another slight earthquake at 10.30 o'clock last night, lasting about two minutes, rattled windows and dishes. The people, made timid by the disaster of September 1, rushed into the streets, and children screamed, but there were no casualties, and the damage was not serious.

The government has informally decided to convene an extraordinary session of the Diet on November 10 for the purpose of passing appropriations for the reconstruction work.

Ambassador Woods, of the United States, cabled Secretary of State Hughes asking that relief be solicited from the National Dental Association of the United States for Japanese dental colleges and dentists whose losses in the quake and fire were great. Five of the six dental colleges in Japan, together with the equipment of one thousand of the country's eleven hundred dentists, were destroyed.

The Foreign Office has denied the government contemplates any foreign loans at present for reconstruction, saying that currency contraction is essential to economic stabilization, and that this will be impracticable if foreign loans were floated now.

Officials say they believe reorganization of investments should be gradual.

Exhibits Expected From All Sections of the Province Will Stimulate Seed Growing Industry

The most important exhibition of its kind ever staged in Victoria will be held here on November 12 to 17, when potato exhibits from all sections of the Province will be grouped at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium for the second annual Provincial Potato Show and educational seed exhibit.

The show is being held under the auspices of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, the Victoria Potato Growers' Association, and the Chamber of Commerce.

The show will be officially opened to the public on Wednesday afternoon, November 14, at 2.30 o'clock. Reduced transportation rates (regular fare and one-third) having been secured on the railroads and steamships, it is hoped that all those interested in the potato industry will avail themselves of the opportunity to attend this annual event.

The prize list, which is very complete, has been arranged to give everyone—adults and children—the chance to exhibit. In order to encourage the use of good seed and the growing of standard varieties, prizes are being given for certified seed potatoes only of standard varieties. There is no class for the general run of seed. Those who have potatoes grown from certified seed, but not inspected during the growing season, may show in Class "B" (commercial), the object of this class being to encourage the public to use high-grade seed for the commercial acreage. Certified seed growers are not allowed to show in this class. On the other hand, those who have potatoes grown from any kind of seed may show in Class "C" (commercial).

A special class for cottage gardeners has been arranged, and should, therefore, be an inducement for city folk, as well as farmers, to take an interest in the show.

Class "F" for the best exhibit of not more than thirty prepared dishes, in which potatoes are the main ingredients, should attract the housewives.

A Popular Class
The district potato class, open to any district in the Province, will again be popular. Any district which can produce good potatoes should compete for the cup presented by the advisory board of Farmers' Institutes and the special cash prizes which go along with it. In 1922 the cup was won by Comox district, Vancouver Island.

MARY PHILBIN AND NORMAN KERRY
Who Appear in the Universal-Super-Jewel, "Merry-Go-Round," at the Dominion Theatre All This Week.

Class "I" should be of interest to every boy and girl. For the best collection of six potatoes of each of not less than six named varieties exhibited by any school in the Province, three substantial prizes are being given.

In addition to these classes the Women's Institutes of Vancouver Island have arranged a special class for their exhibits.

During the Potato Show a growers' conference will be held, and addresses will be given by leading authorities from British Columbia and across the line. A special session is being arranged for seed growers.

Added attractions will consist of a demonstration in the methods to employ in cooking the various varieties. The value of the potato in the daily diet will also be explained. Machinery displays and seed exhibits of all kinds are being arranged. An illustrated lecture on Central British Columbia will be given by Col. Davies.

of the Land Settlement Board.

There never was a better time for the potato and seed growers of the Province of British Columbia to get together to discuss matters of vital importance. Every district is expected to have one or a number of representatives, present to join in the discussions, and Prof. C. Tice, Department of Agriculture, Victoria, or the nearest agricultural representative, will furnish further information.

McGill Confers Degrees Upon Two Westerners

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—Fifty-eight degrees, one of which was honorary, were conferred by Sir Arthur Currie, Principal of McGill University, at the Autumn convocation this afternoon. The occasion also marked the celebration of what Sir Arthur referred to as that memorable day known as "Founder's Day."

The following degrees were awarded to British Columbia students: Bachelor of Arts, John Richard Lochard, Vancouver; Bachelor of Science in Applied Science, Lee Handley, Vancouver.

QUAKE REFUGEES ALL LEAVING HAVEN HERE

Red Cross Workers Perfect Arrangements for Passage of Most of Quarantine Station Guests

The next few days will see the departure of the last of the sufferers from the Japanese earthquake from their temporary home at William Head Quarantine Station. They have been so happy since their arrival in Victoria, and have made such warm friends, that it is with the sincerest regret in every case that the refugees have said "Good-bye." Those who say the little band when they first arrived off the President Jefferson, just three weeks ago, would find it difficult to recognize the individual members now. In old and motley garments, wan and pale from the fearful experience they had been through, they were a pitiable lot. The small children clung to their mothers' skirts and refused to talk or answer the gentlest questioning. The older members had been suffering, most of them from sleeplessness and loss of appetite, and they plainly showed that they were under a severe mental strain. The change that has been wrought since then is little short of wonderful. Good health and good spirits have returned. They are going out into the world again, but not only their bodies cured, but they are imbued with a feeling of cheerful optimism, the result of the kindness and consideration and material assistance which has been given them. Particularly in the children, who are today as bonnie and happy and care-free as any boys and girls in America.

As the head of the Red Cross, and instrumental in caring for these sufferers, Mrs. Harold Fleming is deserving of all of the expressions of gratitude which they have showered upon her. Most persons in Victoria know that Mrs. Fleming has been president of the Red Cross since its inauguration, and served in that capacity all through the war, and since then voluntarily and without any remuneration whatever. She is happy in this noble work, and the help which she is able to give through the Red Cross, the suffering which she is able to alleviate are more than recompense to her for all of her time and trouble.

Generous Victorians
The people of Victoria have been most generous in coming forward to assist in this particular fund, the drive for which was begun immediately the extent of the devastation was known, and they will be interested to learn just what has become of the twenty-five refugees whom the Red Cross have had in their charge.

Upon the arrival of the Jefferson, Dr. Brown, in charge of the Quarantine Station, and whom the children look upon as a sort of fairy godfather, turned the large building, known as the First Class, over to the refugees. Miss Whillan was placed by Mrs. Fleming in charge during her absence, and Mrs. Grimison, of the executive of the Red Cross, supervised the culinary arrangements. Every member of the staff at the Quarantine Station did what they could to brighten the lot of their visitors, the cook, Mr. Lucas, of the Madge, failing to end assisting with the meals most cheerfully until other arrangements could be made.

The first refugees to leave were the two young men, Mr. Nobles and Mr. Porter, whose homes were in Edmonton, and who were sent there the day following their arrival here. The rest all expressed a desire to remain in Victoria if work could be found here, as they felt that there could be no more congenial surroundings, and they were quite secure from earthquakes, typhoons or other unpleasant phenomena. Immediately efforts were made to interest the Government so that employment might be found if possible. Unfortunately nothing came of this, and it was decided that, in view of the fact that most of the refugees had friends and relatives in the Old Country, the next best thing to do would be to arrange transportation for them across Canada and back to England.

Providing Clothes
This has entailed a great deal of time and trouble and the untying of countless knots of red tape, and in the meantime the refugees had to be fed and clothed.

The first week was spent in outfitting them. They were supplied with new clothes, including boots, shoes, overcoats and hats and gloves, and complete suits of underwear. But as these were the only clothes they had, it was necessary to provide second suits, which were made from the gifts of clothing which had been sent in from sympathizers, and which, if they did not fit as they were, were remodelled or cut up into small garments for the children. Mr. and Mrs. Burton, who were a little more fortunate than the rest of the refugees, left the station on September 19 and took up their residence in Victoria temporarily.

Mrs. Cranch and her nephew, Maurice Bruce, who were surprised to meet one another on board the President Jefferson, after each had supposed the other dead, left on the 24th of September for England, sailing by the Minnedosa. They must have come in for the terrific hurricane which has just been sweeping the coasts of England and France, and during which the Minnedosa had a narrow escape.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, the young couple who were separated for three days during the earthquake period in Yokohama, and whose wonderful experience sounds like some impossible dream, were enabled to sail on the 15th for the home of their parents in the Old Country.

Party Broken Up
Arrangement for the transportation of Mr. Boris Bardacke, the only refugee on the Australia who landed here, was made at once. He was sent to Montreal, where he expects to secure work.

The Gratton family, who lost one of their children, have gone to Vancouver, where Mr. Gratton, who is a violinist, and was at one time a member of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, has secured a position. Mr. and Mrs. Leback have also gone to England, leaving Victoria on the 2nd of this month. The last to go were the Robb family and Mrs. Robb's sister, Miss Walker. The three little Robb boys were very loth to leave their erstwhile home at the station, as were the four small Grattons, and all expressed a very strong desire to "come back soon."

There are a number of little hospital cottages at the Quarantine Station, and one of these has been turned over to the Gaborettas, the only refugees who are left. They had expected to be the first to go, as they have relatives in Seattle. But it seems another case of the unfortunate "quota," although it was supposed that in a matter of this kind formalities might have been waived. The Red Cross is doing all it can to bring their release about, and arrangements will probably be made soon.

Unless the Oriental liners which come in during the next few days bring more refugees, it is doubtful whether there will be any further cases to come directly under the jurisdiction of the local Red Cross. But the organization is prepared for any and all emergencies, and the fund will be used either here or in the devastated areas for the relief of the suffering white people, unless donors otherwise stipulate, when it will be earmarked for whatever purpose wished.

PRESS COMMENT ON STATEMENT VARIES

Marquis Curzon's Outline of British Foreign Policy Before Imperial Conference Draws Criticism

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The next turn in the drama of Anglo-French relations lies with the Dominion premiers. The official summary of Lord Curzon's remarks at yesterday's sitting of the Imperial Conference ran between five and six thousand words. The publication of the summary was a break from established precedent, but it left unsaid much that Lord Curzon told the Dominion delegates.

The comment that one hears today, and is reflected among certain quarters, is what the Government proposes to do and asks whether the Foreign Secretary is trying to undo the Entente.

The governmental Morning Post thinks the statement will satisfy all reasonable Englishmen, but The Times fears that part of Lord Curzon's remarks are likely to provoke resentment in France, and believes the Dominion premiers will be reluctant to acquiesce in the Government's attitude of impotent expectancy.

"They believe, and we believe," continues The Times, "that there is increased need for British intervention and more active participation in the solution of a problem which is gravely impeding the recovery of trade and the peace of the world."

FOOTBALL CONTEST PRINCIPALS GUILTY

VANCOUVER, Oct. 6.—Football guinea contests, as conducted by three weekly publications here, became things of the past yesterday afternoon when the principals in the charges of keeping betting houses appeared before Magistrate Shaw in police court and pleaded guilty. Fines were imposed.

The question of whether the crown can confiscate the cash, amounting to several thousands of dollars, which contestants had placed with the operators of the competitions and seized when the police last week executed search warrants on the premises, will be decided next Thursday.

"What's Wrong With the Women"

NOTICE TO OUR PATRONS—"What's Wrong With the Women?" has been booked at the last moment to replace "Within the Law," which was the attraction advertised for this week, the reason for this being pushed ahead being the unusual excellence of "What's Wrong With the Women?" and to the fact that it is booked in other cities so far ahead outside of this one week, that we should not have been able to present it to our patrons until some months to come, and then we are afraid it would not have been in the best of condition.

DOPE TRADE TERRORS STAGES WARNING VOICE

Incessant Horrors of Drug Habit Among Young Has Presentation at Pantages This Week

LILLIAN BURKHART

Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith To arouse the mothers of the country to the terrors of "dope," Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith is now on her second tour of the Pantages circuit, and will appear at the local theatre on Tuesday night at 9 o'clock, and on Wednesday and Thursday at the usual matinees and two nightly performances.

Her message is presented in a one-act playlet, in which she endeavors to give the public some idea of the traffic in narcotics now being waged among the young people of the country.

The "dope" question is interesting and perplexing hundreds of social workers, who are striving to grapple with it.

Mrs. Goldsmith, who is the president of the Los Angeles Philanthropy and Civic Club, believes she can interest many more people throughout the country, and bring home the necessity for concerted action against the evil.

As she travels, Mrs. Goldsmith is in touch with anti-narcotic organizations everywhere, lending her aid wherever possible to help to kill the traffic.

The act, which is called "The Straight Dope," is a graphic page out of the gigantic underworld business now in progress.

Besides Mrs. Goldsmith, the bill will include Rhoda and Broshell, who offer a melodious programme on concertina and accordion, while Miss Margo Rhoda has some very pretty dresses.

Johnny Clarke & Co., in his latest success entitled "Plenty," which includes unusual balancing and very funny falls.

Bohan and Tee, two young ladies, are billed as "Harmony Duetists." Johnny Burns, as "All By Himself," and the screen will show a new Century comedy and a scenic.

WEEKLY ORDERS OF MACHINE GUN BRIGADE

11th Canadian Machine Gun Brigade—No. 1 Company orders. The first parade of the season will be held by No. 1 Co., 11th C.M.G. Brigade, at 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday night, October 9, at the New Drill Hall.

On this parade, recruits will be sworn in and other ranks will be outfitted. An officers' meeting and a men's mess meeting will also be held.

All ranks are earnestly requested to attend not only this parade, but to be present at all subsequent parades throughout the season, and to strive to bring to No. 1 Company as many recruits as possible. By so doing, the sum total of every individual effort will go far towards making the forthcoming season from every viewpoint, one of outstanding success.

AMALGAMATION IS FAVORED BY UNIT

Captain C. F. L. Money Says Army and Navy Veterans Are Willing to Aid With Union

"The Army and Navy Veterans' Association in Canada is in favor of the amalgamation of ex-service men into a united veterans' body, contrary to press reports from Calgary, Alberta, where the Dominion convention of the organization was recently held," Captain C. F. L. Money, secretary of the local branch of the Army and Navy Veterans, so declared to The Colonist last night on his return from Calgary.

Captain Money was chairman of the convention committee on amalgamation, the other members being Colonel Fellow, Colonel Drummond and Major Forbes. The committee went fully into the various phases of unity among returned soldiers, and recommended to the convention that it go on record as favoring amalgamation and express its willingness to lend assistance and co-operate with other veterans' bodies to bring about union, the report being adopted.

The resolution adopted on this question at the Army and Navy Veterans' gathering in Calgary read as follows:

"Whereas the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada in convention assembled at Toronto, 1921, went on record in favor of the amalgamation of all ex-service men, subject to certain conditions, namely:

"That the organization be non-political, non-partisan and non-sectarian, and that the qualifications of membership be not below the standard set by the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, and that the best interests of the older members of the said Army and Navy Veterans be fully served."

"And whereas the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada are still in favor of amalgamation, yet such amalgamation has not been consummated."

Dear Miss Burkhardt,

Last evening I had the pleasure of hearing you at Pantages in your educational and delightful sketch "The Straight Dope". I cannot refrain from expressing to you my deep appreciation, not only for your genius as an actress, but for the novel and interesting manner in which your playlet is presented.

The appeal you make should be heard by everyone who has an interest in the welfare of the State.

All thinking men and women must bend every effort in a nation-wide movement to abolish the use of narcotics. Because of your deep sincerity and the artistic, forceful manner in which you present this new and novel play, it gives me great pleasure to commend it to the community at large and to all officers and administrators of the law.

Wishing you every success,

Believe me,

Sincerely yours,

P. C. 3rd Lt. Governor, Alberta.

That "Kruschen"
Feeling!

As Young as the Youngest

The old boy is enjoying himself just as much as the young boy. His heart is as youthful, his spirit as boisterous, his energy as unflagging as his grandson's.

It's "that Kruschen feeling" again—the feeling that comes from sheer health and fitness, the feeling that expresses itself in infectious jollity and unvarying good humour.

And the cause of it?

Just a tiny pinch of the magic Kruschen powder that can't even be tasted in a breakfast cup of coffee or tea. As much as will cover a 10 cent piece, every morning at a cost of half a cent a day—could there be an easier or a cheaper road to happiness?

A tiny, tasteless pinch—but it works wonders. It supplies the body with just the six salts, blended in just the right proportion, that Nature decrees for its well-being. Sedentary occupation, insufficient fresh air and exercise, worry, overwork, errors of diet—all or any of these prevent your system from extracting these necessary salts from your food. Hence the need for Kruschen—six salts in one.

What Kruschen does for you is to ensure that your liver and kidneys do their duty actively and efficiently, clearing the body of all the poisonous waste matter that has been clogging the system, and purifying the blood. At the same time it has a distinct tonic effect, invigorating you both physically and mentally, banishing depression, listlessness, headaches, indigestion and all the ills that arise from internal disorder, and filling you with a bracing sense of energetic health.

Tasteless in Coffee or Tea

Put as much in your breakfast cup as will lie on a 10 cent piece. It's the little daily dose that does it.

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

A 75¢ bottle of Kruschen Salts contains 150 doses—enough for three months—which means bounding health for less than half a cent a day. The dose prescribed for Kruschen. Get a 75¢ bottle today.

ONE BULL FIGHT WAS ENOUGH

A London man who has returned from Europe admitted to a few of his friends that he had seen a bull fight in Barcelona. He also admitted that he was not proud of the fact that he had attended. To him it was repulsive and revolting, a sacrifice of poor, blindfolded horses and of bulls.

His view is interesting. "You say it is no worse than our auto races where riders are pitched into the air in collisions and killed. I tell you it is an entirely different thing. A man goes into a race of that sort of his own free will, and he knows the chances he takes. A bull fight is different. I shall never forget the way a poor, battered horse, blindfolded and trembling, and mounted by a picaador, was led broadside to an infuriated bull that simply charged and sunk its horns into the side of the poor animal. The horse was thrashed and made to get out of the ring, to be fixed up for the next bull, until it would die from cruel torture. Of course the bull, mad with anger, is going to be killed in the end. As he sank with a dull thud after an unequal fight, I felt disgusted at a people who could cheer such a spectacle. I felt disgusted with myself for going. It was not sport. It was not as manly as a prize fight, nor was it as fair as a street scrap.—London Advertiser.

SOURCE OF WEALTH FROM EIDERDOWN

Investigations on New Coast Reveal Fact That Vast Revenue May Be Derived

Investigations carried on by several ornithologists in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and more northern parts of Canada have brought to light the possibility of an industry of considerable magnitude in the production of eiderdown. Thousands of eider ducks nest on the rocky shores and islands of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and northward, while a few scattered breeding places are also to be found farther south and these nesting grounds provide a potential source of supply of down which is in demand in commerce.

The protection of insectivorous birds has been usually insisted upon by reason of their value to farmers in destroying countless millions of insects and thereby increasing the crops of the country. Among other species the eider ducks should be specially considered, for they provide a direct return for their protection.

Protected in Europe The conservation of the eider duck in Europe has been practiced for many years, especially in Iceland and Norway, where it is rigidly protected during the nesting season, even the discharge of guns in the vicinity of nesting places being forbidden by law. Under this protection the birds have become exceedingly tame and live around human habitations as fearlessly as barnyard fowl.

Fortunately the most intensive production of eiderdown is not injurious to the species, because it is not necessary to kill the birds to get the down. In fact, where the most down is collected it is found that the birds increase more in numbers. The eider ducks pluck the down from their bodies to line their nests, and it is from their nests that the down is gathered. Large collections of down are made each year, the first being made shortly after the nests are built. This procedure does not interfere with the hatching of the eggs, as the ducks immediately provide a new supply. The second collection is made after the eggs are hatched and the nests abandoned for the season.

Down is Valuable The down is valued highly and the prices range from $2.50 to $5 a pound. It is much sought after for the manufacture of quilts, comforters, etc., owing to the fact that it combines a minimum of weight with a maximum of warmth. Each nest, it is estimated, supplies slightly over an ounce of down per season, and at the present prices each nest should produce from 30 cents to 50 cents worth of down each year. The crop of down in Iceland has shown a steady increase since the protection of the birds was seriously undertaken with the object of developing the industry, and it is quite possible experiment will show that with protection of the birds and the adoption of modern methods of collecting the down, the eider duck colonies within the usual range of the species on Canada's coast could be made to produce a substantial addition to the incomes of the people of the district. If, however, the inhabitants of remote parts of the range, such as the Arctic Coast, allow these birds to be reduced in numbers or driven away by permitting birds or their eggs to be destroyed they will have removed an important resource.

An idea of the value placed on the eider duck in Iceland may be gained from the fact that recently one island off the coast of that country, eight square miles in extent, sold for approximately $200,000 solely on account of the eiderdown produced there. The birds have been protected under existing laws by both Provincial and Dominion authorities and in parts of their range at least, it is probable, this total protection will be extended.

LUTHERAN CHURCH TO BURN ITS MORTGAGE

St. Paul's, Corner of Princess and Chambers St., Has Arranged for Interesting Service on Tuesday

On Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, at the corner of Princess Avenue and Chambers Street, having completely freed itself from debt, will ceremoniously burn the mortgage. Another milestone has been passed in the history of the congregation, and great preparations are being made to make this "mortgage-burning service" a decided success. The Rev. E. R. Pfeuger, A.B., pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Vancouver, B.C., will be the preacher for the service. Rev. Mr. Pfeuger, who was a former pastor of St. Paul's Church, is an eloquent and earnest speaker.

The "mortgage-burning ceremony," which will take place near the close of the service, promises to be an attractive feature of the programme, and a bit out of the ordinary, although the details have not yet been decided. The preparation is in charge of an efficient committee. After the service all present will be invited to repair to the social rooms of the church, where refreshments will be served. The members and friends of the church are looking forward to this event with enthusiasm and confidence, and it is expected that the building will be filled to capacity.

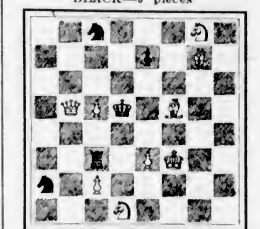

The Rev. R. F. Kibler is the pastor of the congregation. Three years ago, after graduating from the Lutheran Seminary at Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, Mr. Kibler accepted a call to Victoria and took up work in St. Paul's Lutheran Church. Under his efficient leadership the congregation has shown progress, and now stands at the gateway of a field of larger conquest and service. The members of the congregation are to be commended for their energy and zeal in the upbuilding of the church in the kingdom of God here on earth.

(g) A better way to challenge White's loose piece was to offer his own for it with 30 . . . B-B 4. But after the exchange White would retain a marked advantage of position, doubling his Rooks on the only open file.

98 Out of Every 100 Women Benefited

An Absolutely Reliable Statement Important to Every Woman

Remarkable Results Shown by a Nation Wide Canvass of Women Purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. — 50,000 Women Answer —

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 50,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100.

Did you ever hear of anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure-all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

Its reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world—leading all others.

Such evidence should induce every woman suffering from any ailment peculiar to her sex to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and see if she can't be one of the 98

How Williams & Travers established a Business of their own

MR. WILLIAMS and Mr. Travers decided to start a retail clothing business. Williams had $4,000 cash to put in the business, and Travers $1,000, together with seven years' experience in selling clothing.

They found they had enough money to buy store equipment, but when it came to establishing credit, they ran against a snag that seemed impossible to overcome.

One day a North American Life man told them about a business insurance policy. "If each of you will insure his life making the firm the beneficiary, you will find it far easier to establish credit."

That was five years ago. Today this firm is well established—in fact, it is one of the most successful retail clothing stores in Western Canada. "We might never have got started had it not been for that business insurance policy," he told our representative.

This case indicates but one of the many benefits of Business Insurance. Send for our booklet, "You're a Business Man," which explains all of them.

RAILWAY SHARES DISPLAY STRENGTH

Expected Higher Dividends Motive for General Advance—Industrialists Show Weakness

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Two contrasting price movements took place in today's brief and quiet session of the stock market, railroads moving to higher ground under the leadership of Chesapeake & Ohio, while the industrialists, with few exceptions, continued to yield to selling pressure applied by professional short interest.

Speculative anticipation that Chesapeake & Ohio would increase its annual dividends to $5, and possibly $6, before the end of the year, furnished the impetus for the brisk rally in that stock, which carried it to 49-1/4, or 6-1/2 points above yesterday's low. It closed at 49. Buying of this issue also was influenced by a report that the Van Sweringen interests had exercised their option on the Huntington holdings.

Strength of C. & O. was immediately communicated to other rails, in which favorable dividend developments are supposed to be pending, and finally spread to the railroad group as a whole. Ann Arbor, common and preferred, jumped 4-1/2 and 4-1/4 points, respectively, while gains of one to two points were registered in Reading and Chicago & Alton preferred. Big Four, Rock Island, Lackawanna, Wabash preferred, "A," Lehigh Valley, "Katy" preferred, and Missouri Pacific preferred.

U.S. Steel common, Studebaker, Baldwin and American Can, after referred to as the industrial stocks, all closed at slight recessions. Jones Brothers' Tea suffered another sinking spell to 25-5/8, but rallied later to 26-3/4. Weakness of this issue was associated with unfavourable reports that the dividend would be cut to $25.

Kroger was one of the outstanding spots, jumping 14-1/2 points to 223-1/2 on publication of a report showing that earnings for the first nine months of this year were $54,917,447, an increase of $11,672,787 over the corresponding period of a year ago. U.S. Cast Iron Pipe, common and preferred, continued their rise to new high ground on reports of large current earnings.

Foreign exchanges were under moderate pressure, German marks being quoted at eleven cents a hundred million.

Demand sterling fell back three-quarters of a cent to $4.84-7/8, and French francs dropped five points to 119-1/2 cents.

Today's bond market was pretty much a continuation of yesterday's session, with chief interest against the railroad group. While the bulk of buying was in the so-called speculative issues, there was a moderate demand also for the investment adjutages. Seaboard Air Line adjustment 5's moved up two points, but generally the gains were fractional.

Active United States Government bonds settled down to a steady tone, with several issues unchanged from yesterday's final figures.

An increase in the demand for foreign bonds resulted from the advance in that division, the advance including not only French issues, but some of the South American bonds. Mutual funds were extremely dull, with the trend slightly downward.

Ireland Still Sings But in Tragic Key

Gay and Rollicking Emerald Isle of Yore Gives Place to Land Saddened by Fratricidal Strife—But Still Spell of Shandon's Bells Is Potent With Visitors to Banks of Lee

(BY DR. EDWARD DE WITT JONES)

CORK, Ireland, Oct. 6.—The overarching keynote of Ireland is sadness. It is a long way from gay and rollicking Ireland of today—as far almost as the East is from the West. Lever's story of the Irish dragon describes a singing Ireland, and its pages are enlivened with snatches of ballads and roundels. The hero swash-buckles his way through love affairs, duels and debts, a frivolous and carefree fellow whose interests are almost wholly material. His ideals, such as he has, are quite accurately assessed in the flippancy lines sung by a comrade of the same dare-devil breed:

It's a little for glory I care;
Sure, ambition is only a fable;
I'd soon be myself as Lord Mayor,
With lashings of drink on the table.

The Ireland that is singing, but mostly in the minor key, and certain of Tom Moore's plaintive melodies are best suited to her present mood. I was three days on Irish soil before I heard music and singing. It was a strolling minstrel, playing his pious reason down by the railway station, and about him was gathered a dozen or more of men, women and children. His instrument was a melo-ancho accordion, and he sang with no little skill to his own accompaniment. The thing he played and sang accorded perfectly with the somberness of the people: "memories that bloom and burn," scenes of havoc and desolation. It was that little ballad made famous by Ebon Williams, entitled, "Absent."

Sometimes, between long shadows on the grass,
The little truant waves of twilight pass,
My eyes grow dim with tenderness the while,
Thinking I see thee, thinking I see thee smile.

Yes, it's a long way from the Ireland of O'Malley to the Ireland, say, of Patrick Pearse and Easter, 1916, President Cosgrave, DeValera and Mary MacSwiney. But for that matter, there are several Irelands, three at least: Gaelic Ireland, dreamy, romantic, ecclesiastic; Anglo Ireland, convivial, sprightly, cosmopolitan; and Belfast Ireland, which is thrifty, practical, commercial. The coat of arms of the first is a Celtic cross; of the second, a four-armed; of the third (will they ever forgive me?) a check book.

Ireland's Third City
Cork, the third city of Ireland, resembles an aging, high-born beauty who has seen better days, yet retains not only traces of unmistakable charm in face and figure, but also remnants of a costly wardrobe and a few priceless jewels. Most of the Irish cities and towns boast a proverb which is supposed to satirize the place. The clever phrase in circulation is "Cork is God's town and the devil's people." Cork and Corkonians bear the marks of the struggle and strife through which they have passed. Piles of debris and charred ruins in the centre of the city are stark monuments of bitter conflict, not so startling nor impressive as the people themselves. Young and old reveal the fact that they have lived for months on their nerves; they reveal it in their faces, in their clothing, in the movements of their bodies and in other ways.

A hint of Irish laughter is not so apparent in Southern Ireland as in days gone by. The ready tongue, the apt repartee, the never-failing mother-wit lacks the spontaneity of other years. The feet of the youthful as well as the old drag. You miss the sallies of banter that greeted and delighted you a dozen years back. Whatever may be true of other parts of Ireland, this section is suffering still. The iron has gone into the soul of the people. They are not despondent, but somberness sits upon them, and a sombre Irishman does not comport with Irish-American traditions, and borders on the ominous.

The people look under-nourished. Cork alums are the same as alums everywhere. Foul-smelling, dirty, wretched—all this plus frayed nerves, the result of days and nights of terror. Babies abound here; babies in the arms of mothers, young and middle-aged; babies on the street, babies in doorways, babies as plentiful though not as cheerful as the populous dandelions that people the Springtime. And the babies here look pinched and wan. The older children have the same appearance, they look hungry and thin-blooded. There are exceptions, of course, but not many. Babies, fat, laughing babies are not in sight along the streets of Cork these days.

The Town Clerk
At the temporary municipal headquarters in the grey old courthouse which bears many marks of the disorder and strife, the Free State sentry glanced at my credentials and passed me on to another soldier. A beardless boy, who took me to the town clerk. This official, quite a dignitary in Ireland, was acting in the absence of the Lord Mayor, whose present whereabouts no one seemed to know.

The clerk sat at a table littered with papers and heaped with documents. He patiently explained the difficulties of official life in days of reconstruction. Yes, Cork had suffered, and so had other cities. No place nor person had escaped. All had experienced loss, but the end was in sight. No, he could not tell me a great deal about politics. He was an official, you see, and it would not be proper for him to talk on that subject. He was confident, however, that better days were coming. There was something he wanted me to have as a souvenir of the occasion, and he searched through many drawers until he found a little book bound in green cloth, filled with facts and figures of Cork's municipality. Would

I take the little book as a token of esteem, just a little reminder that the Irish regard the Americans highly? I took the book, thanked the town clerk, and bade him good-bye. I left him, a smallish man and the soul of courtesy—sitting there in the big room behind the long desk heaped high with reports, letters and documents, another impressive symbol of the Ireland that is serious, and much in evidence. One of the citizens, in a position to know, told me that 10,000 men are out of work, and no immediate prospect of getting any. The streets, St. Patrick's in particular are thronged with men and boys idling away the hours, talking, arguing endlessly, but laughing seldom. They are a nondescript lot, but not ignoble. They appear to be waiting for something to happen, watching, wondering, questioning. And these unemployed men and boys, as in the case of their more fortunate fellows, for the most, carry a cane, and have their bowler hats. Whatever be the shortcomings of an Irishman, he is seldom if ever uninteresting.

The Voice of the People
An instant looking woman waited on me in a small shop near the heart of the city.

"What is the matter with Ireland?" I inquired.
"Too much lawlessness," she replied, promptly, "too much internal strife, too much irresponsibility. We have driven away our best citizens, and I fear they will not come back. Peace, unity and law, that is what we need, and assurance that fighting among ourselves is at an end. You can't work, sir, at your best unless you can live without dread of molestation."

A similar view was given me by a fine elderly gentleman long occupying a secretarial position in a well-known concern. He said that the financial difficulties of reconstruction. "Events of the last two years have driven away a high type of citizen, and we could ill afford to lose; things are a bit brighter now, but I doubt whether Ireland will be established in my own time. It is a big task and it takes years. Capital is taking advantage of these unhappy days to reduce wages, and that means war of another kind."

The proprietor of a Blackthorn shop, three times the size of the one I first sighted, was more optimistic. "Our first fight was glorious, but our last fight, which was among ourselves, was shameful."
"How is business?" I asked a man in a drug store.
"No business at all," was his reply. "This country is in a bad way. There is money in Ireland, but it won't come out of hiding. All things are settled. We are not fighting enough to last us a long time. No better country in the world if we could settle our difficulties than old Ireland. But I'd leave tomorrow if I could get out."

I stepped into a little grocery store, and before I could speak the proprietor greeted me heartily:
"You are an American, are you not?" I knew it soon as I laid my eyes on you. It's a great country, I have a boy over there (he pronounced it "bye"), been over there I say, a grand country. How are we doing here? Not very well, sir; but better than a little while back. Oh, it's been a devil of a place to live here since we got to fighting among ourselves. You say you've heard little singing and not much laughter. Well, no wonder. It's been a sorry time for us, but we'll come back here. We are hard to down, but I hope we are through fighting among ourselves, and I'm rather belated here."

Cork—Old and New
Cork—the name is from "Corroch," meaning a moor, marshy place, and was chartered in 1185 by King John of England. It has been the home of numerous dignitaries and distinguished personages. To catalogue the saints, scholars, poets and other illustrious who come from Cork or once resided there would require a volume. Two famous names associated with the city and widely known in America are William Penn and Father Mathew.

A statue of the latter stands in a conspicuous part of the city and bears the inscription: "I was erected by a grateful people. A casual observer cynically inclined might argue that the statue of limitations on the great priest's reform had expired, but that would not be fair to the facts. Be it known that there are teetotalers in Cork, and the work of temperance has not ceased. Cork is an old city and relief of its long life are easy to find. There are the old buildings, the old streets, and the old traditions—they, too, are there. Yet it is not the old which appeals most to the nowadays visitor to the city. It is the new, not the old, which interests us most.

That big black hole. What made it? That heap of timber and pile of brick and stone. What building stood there, and when did it fall? Was it destroyed by the Black and Tans, or did it happen in the Civil War? Then there are the inscriptions, the rude lettering on walls and public buildings—most any place that is conspicuous, there you see them. One might imagine that a college fraternity had staged an initiation in Cork, and that would not be fair to the facts. Be it known that there are teetotalers in Cork, and the work of temperance has not ceased. Cork is an old city and relief of its long life are easy to find. There are the old buildings, the old streets, and the old traditions—they, too, are there. Yet it is not the old which appeals most to the nowadays visitor to the city. It is the new, not the old, which interests us most.

These inscriptions attract more attention on the part of the tourists than the ancient manuscripts in the library at Mount Usher, Cork's seat of learning. For one reason, possibly, because the inscriptions are more legible.
MacSwiney's Town
Edmond Spenser, the poet, once lived in Cork, but the place is not so eloquent now as the knowledge that it is Terence MacSwiney's town. Something of a poet was Terence, too, and he gave the place a wonderful thing in literature. But his thoughts were all on Ireland and her independence. He was Cork's Lord Mayor for a brief season, and he still held that office when he endured seventy-four days of hunger strike in Brixton Prison, England, for Ireland's sake, and, "so passed his strong heroic soul away." Yes, Cork is his city. His sisters have their home there, though Mary spends most of her time at Dublin. Out yonder in the Republic, a cemetery and a mile distant from the heart of Cork, his grave still heaped with floral wreaths and floral crosses, the wasted body of the debonair young revolutionary, Lord Mayor of Cork, reposes in the soil of "dear Ireland."

Up that hill yonder, facing the River Lee is the home of Daniel Corkery, the gentle, mystic author of "The Threshold of Quiet." He knows and loves the old city, and is himself a wise representative of Gaelic Ireland. A Republican? He is that, and in his judgment the cause of all the bloodshed in the civil war is, to quote his words, "the accursed oath of allegiance to the King."

New Street Names for Old
Revolution and war change many things, and among others the names of cities, streets and ships. "Petrograd" is a good example of the first, and "The Leviathan" of the last. New and significant street names are numerous in Cork, thus "Great George's" Street is now "George Washington" Street; "Old George's" has become "Oliver Plunkett" Street; "King" is changed to "MacCurtain" and "Nelson Place" is "Emmet Place"; "Queen's" is "Cobb's" Cove as it is pronounced, which is, I believe, its original name.

One sees the Irish language in print constantly, and occasionally hears it spoken. The newspapers sandwich into the columns of English paragraphs of Gaelic and at every Free State or Republican meeting at least one speech is delivered in the Irish language. The constitution of the Free State thus provides "The National language of the Free State is the Irish language, but the English language, the hardest of wear. They are the biggest bargain in pants we have ever had. Sizes 30 to 46. Reg. Price $7.00. $4.45

The teaching of Gaelic is part of the educational system, and every Irish boy and girl learns the ancient language. Summer schools in Irish are conducted in various parts of this country and teachers are required to attend. Such a Summer school is now in progress at historic Queen's University in Cork, and the hundreds of Irish as in the stately buildings, shaven lawns and fine old trees.

The Bells of Shandon
Cork is the home of the famous "Shandon Bells" immortalized in the well-known poem written by Francis J. Mahony better known by his pen name of "Father Prout." The church which houses the chimes is a picturesque structure and worth going many miles to see. It was built in 1720 on the site of the old Church of Our Lady, or St. Mary Shandon, an ancient edifice destroyed in the siege of Cork by Mahony in 1690. Five of the famed bells bear the date of their casting, 1750.

Shandon Church has long been a favorite with tourists who reckon that they have climbed the hill, interviewed the sexton and listened to his playing their favorite hymns. The chimes ring out the quarter of the hour and at irregular intervals through the day the air is vibrant with the melody of "Lead, Kindly Light," "Abide With Me," and other great hymns of the faith. The bells of the church have been few and far between. When on a week-day chances to hear as I did, "Vankee Doodle," "Swanee River" and "Old Kentucky Home" emanating spiritedly from that picturesque tower, one thing is certain and may be written down as a fact—the bells of Shandon are an entertaining American citizen.

The Charm of the Chimes
Such old, old bells, and what tragic scenes have transpired around and about that church built so high above the city, 175 feet above the level of the sea. The chimes rang out at early morn and in the soft twilight of those days when Cork streets echoed with the marching feet of Black and Tan, Republican and Free State soldiers. And what melody did the bells chime those gray days when the pride and glory of Cork's youth were borne through the streets, accompanied by British comrades, youths who gave their all for Ireland's independence? Possibly the people of Cork do not remember what the chimes said on those red days of fire or those black days of death. All their lives they have been hearing the bells of Shandon. Even Niagara Falls loses something of its awe to one who has lived to hear always within the sound of its waters.

I asked an old Irish man living under the shadow of the bell tower if she ever tired of the ringing bells, and she answered: "I can't say, but I do, sir. You see, I do not notice their ringing half the time." So it has been from the beginning and always. Yet I think Father Prout was not wrong in his appraisal.

"I have heard bells chiming
Full many a clime in,
Tolling sublime in Cathedral shrine;
While at a girl rate
Braas tongues would vibrate,
But all their music
Spoke nought like thine."
